The Dirigible Experiment
Mr. Sloan Cuts Power Rates
England Goes to Germany
34 Questions. Try Them

—By Arthur Brisbane—

THE R-100 TRIP proves British determination to rule the new ocean of air, and make safe her islands that are real islands no longer. It is a lesson to this country, too much given to watchful waiting in aviation.

The difficulties of R-100, drifting with a damaged fin, in a storm that heavier than air ships might easily conquer, indicate that the dirigible of light fabric, with power unequal to its difficulties, is only an interesting experiment, thus far.

Future Zeppelins, of light metal strong as steel, obviating danger from lightning, with engines powerful enough and frames rigid enough to defy storms, may compete with heavier than air planes.

The present dirigible is like a big ship on the sea of feeble construction, equipped with an engine too weak to control the waves.

Matthew S. Sloan, head of New York's Edison Power Co., yesterday filed with the public service commission schedules of lower rates for electric current.

This follows Mr. Sloan's advice to a recent convention of power men, to improve business by making power cheaper and its use universal.

Consider the results, if all houses had electric vacuum cleaners, washing machines, fans, cooking stoves and every farm used electricity to cut wood, grind feed, pump water, milk cows, etc.

Henry Ford, hearing of the new power charge schedules, called at Mr. Sloan's office to congratulate him.

"To increase profits and general prosperity," said Mr. Ford, "increase production and cut prices. That is how I succeeded."

That is how all industry, intelligently managed, must win success. If railroads had tried it business might be better, and motor buses, automobiles and motor trucks might not be ruining much of the railroads' business.

Ramsay MacDonald, with his daughter, has gone to Oberammergau and will see the Passion Play tomorrow.

First British prime minister to visit Germany since the war, he will be well received and entertained at dinner by the premier of Bavaria. War hatreds and suspicions are gradually dying, and the results of war are puzzling.

Of the three great European nations involved, Germany, beaten, is more prosperous than England, victorious. And France, victorious, is infinitely more prosperous than any of the others.

Forty-nine boys, competing in the Edison "most intelligent boy in America test," had before them 34 questions, of which they must answer 31.

They were asked to give the value of ten acres of farming land in a good section of Iowa. Not even the governor of Iowa could answer that with certainty.

The boys were asked to tell by what facts they will determine whether they have succeeded or failed, as they lie on their deathbed. Answers to that question will be interesting.

On his deathbed a man doesn't look back over his life, praising or blaming himself. He is too worn and weary. He asks for a handkerchief, or, like Goethe, for "more light," his failing eyes making him think the room is dark.

The 34 questions are deep and interesting. The boy reading them might well say to Mr. Edison, "If I could answer your questions, I wouldn't need your scholarship, I'd be too wise already."

Government prohibition forces, for the present, will concentrate on "big violators," ignoring "home brew" and other efforts of citizens to alcoholize themselves. Prohibition may become an effort to prevent bootleggers from making money by their trade, leaving the citizen to supply himself with alcohol as best he can, without interference.

Unfortunately the citizen would then poison himself slowly. Nothing is more destructive to a man's interior, barring wood alcohol, than improperly made "home brew."

Ninety per cent of New York's so called "legitimate" theaters, in which actors appear in person and talk to each other, are closed. Producers learn that the public prefers a good "talkie" to a second rate legitimate play.

World Fliers Fly From New York on the First Leg for New Record

Harbor Grace, N. Y., Aug. 2—Mears landed here at 4:25 p. m., local time.

New York, Aug. 2—John Henry Mears, at 2 p. m. today was believed to be nearing Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, first goal on his projected round-the-world airplane flight in which he hopes to recapture the record he has twice held.

Although favored by brilliant sunshine and fair weather all along the North Atlantic coast, Mears' all-red monoplane, City of New York, piloted by Henry J. Brown, veteran air mail flier, had not been reported sighted since it took off from Roosevelt Field at 6:40 a. m., Boston daylight time, today.

Attaches at the air field, however, figured that the plane, capable of a cruising speed of 150 miles an hour, should have been well north-east of American territory by noon, if all had gone well.

The take-off at Rosevelt Field was one of the best ever seen there. With a red sun at his back Brown drove the plane aloft 1000 feet short of "Death Gully" where Rene Fonck's first trans-atlantic attempt ended in disaster. Brown circled the field once then pointed the plane north-east out to sea for Harbor Grace, hoping to reach there in 9 hours or about 3 p. m. The distance is 1200 miles.

A third "member of the crew" aboard is a Sealyham terrier "Tailwind II" presented Mears by Mary Pickford to replace Tailwind I who accompanied him in a previous world flight and later was killed by an auto truck.

Mears and Brown planned to

Los Angeles, Aug. 2 (AP)—George R. Hutchinson, Richmond, Va., aviator, said today he would leave tomorrow on a non-stop flight to either Roosevelt Field, New York, or to Richmond.

FIND BODY OF DROWNING VICTIM

Suffield, Ct., Aug. 2 (AP)—The body of Howard E. Cook, 18, of Agawam, Mass., who was drowned while wading in the edge of the Connecticut river canal here Wednesday night, was found today wedged against the flume grating at Windsor Locks.

'Edison Wizard, Jr.,' on His R. I. Job Early

Providence, Aug. 2 (AP)—After an eventful day in the limelight of an appreciative metropolis which hailed him as the newly chosen protege of Thomas A. Edison, Arthur O. Williams, serious, quiet and unassuming, came home from New York early today and four hours later returned to his humble job as messenger boy in the main banking rooms of the Rhode Island Hospital Trust Company.

In marked contrast to yesterday's colorful activities when, after receiving the coveted award from the electric wizard, Williams had to parry all day long the questions of a horde of inquisitive reporters and to give a talk on the radio, the 17-year-old East Providence youth stood almost unnoticed publicly today in his messenger boy's uniform in the huge hall of the

Hoover May Come Here for Vacation

Washington, Aug. 2 (US)—President Hoover may spend his summer vacation on the New England coast instead of in a tour of the national parks, it was learned today. In that event, he will go to Gloucester.

A change in the President's original plans has been made necessary by the fact that he will be unable to leave Washington until late this month. The national parks close Labor Day and he would not have time to make his proposed tour.

2 Killed in Maine Automobile Wreck

Belgrade, Me., Aug. 2 (AP)—Two Waterville men were killed when their automobile left the highway near here last night. They were Harold T. Poullin, 23, and Ernest Vigue, 25. The bodies were found early today by Deputy Sheriff Bell of Augusta.

GIRL BRIDE OF P. O. BANDIT BACKS HIM

"He's Only a Kid!" She Tells Court; "Master Mind" Takes Blame; 2 Held in $50,000

"He's only a kid! He's only 23! I can't understand why he should do such a thing."

The girl bride of Elden F. Orchard, 23, self-styled scion of a wealthy, respectable family, stood behind him in United States court today while he was arraigned in connection with yesterday's kidnapping and robbery of Aaron Cohen, Revere sub-postal station proprietor.

Disillusioned but determined to stand by her husband, Mrs. Orchard, a petite and attractive brunette, went in search of $25,000 bail set in the postal robbery charge by Commissioner Wilmot R. Evans.

"MASTER MIND" TAKES BLAME

Orchard, she said, was the son of well-to-do parents, his father owner of a $200,000 apartment house in Cambridge. He has been living at a Massachusetts ave., Cambridge, house with his bride.

Arraigned with Orchard was Ralph Nichols, 31, ex-convict, forger and confessed "master mind," who attempted to shoulder all the blame for yesterday's dramatic crime by stating that Orchard was only his dupe in the outlawry.

Nichols, too, was held in $25,000 awaiting a hearing on Aug. 11.

HAD FORGERY "RACKET"

Meanwhile, as new charges rolled up in the wake of Nichols' arrest and confession, it became evident that the postal robbery and kidnaping of Cohen was unpremeditated, that Nichols had gone to the Revere sub-station to work a forgery-larceny scheme in which the abduction of the clerk had no part.

He admitted that while in Sing Sing prison he manufactured a certified check stamp forged on the Franklin Trust Co., of Patterson,

MORRIS HURLS FOR RED SOX

Philadelphia, Aug. 2—The world's champion Athletics returned to their home orchard today after a month's road trip and opened a three-game series with the Red Sox at Shibe Park.

Manager Heinie Wagner sent Morris to the box in the opening game to twirl for the Sox. He was opposed by Shores for the Athletics.

FIRST INNING

Red Sox—Oliver singled to center. Warstler struck out. Regan flied to Haas. Webb tapped to Shores. NO RUNS.

Athletics—McNair singled over short. Haas walked. Cochrane doubled to right, scoring McNair, Haas stopping at third. Simmons hit to Warstler, and Cochrane was run down between second and third, Warstler to Reeves to Regan to Warstler, Haas scored and Simmons took second on the play. Simmons stole third. Simmons scored on Foxx's sacrifice fly to Durst.

CALL WOMEN IN STOCK PROBE

Lou K. Dichter of Watertown, the stock salesman whose dealings with women clients resulted in cancellation of his license, will be questioned by Asst. Atty. Gen. Louis H. Sawyer.

Sawyer said today he planned to interview all women who preferred charges against Dichter. He has also called for a full transcript of the testimony of the women victims at the hearing held last week before the securities division of the department of public utilities.

MINE STOCK PROBE

Dichter sold more than $100,000 worth of stock in a suburban trust company to women. Complaints were lodged with the Stock Fraud Bureau of the Boston Evening American and the securities division of the department of public utilities took prompt action and revoked Dichter's license.

Plane Cracked Up in Message Test

Lieuts. Charles Otis of Boston and George Sprague of Saugus, of the 26th Division Aviation Unit, escaped without injury today when the ship in which they were picking up messages cracked up at Marston's Mills, Barnstable.

Flying low attempting to pluck with a dragging hook a message fastened on a wire between two poles, the plane lost speed and dropped into underbrush, bringing up against a stonewall. The fliers escaped without a scratch. The lower left wing, under carriage and propellor, were wrecked.

UP 300 HOURS IN ENDURANCE HOP

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Aug. 2 (AP)—Droning toward the record of 554 hours, Lou Reichers and Bob Black drove their red monoplane past the 300-hour mark today in their effort to set a new refueling endurance mark. They passed the halfway mark yesterday.

The motor of their plane was working smoothly. The feeling at the field was that they might well stay up until Labor Day, the goal they set when they took off.

St. Louis Fliers on Thirteenth Day

St. Louis, Aug. 2 (AP)—Dale Jackson and Forest O'Brine today began the 13th day of their flight to regain the world's refueling record. At 2:11 p. m. (E. D. T.), they had been in the air 293 hours.

They were encountering considerable rough flying weather, but it apparently had caused them no concern.

Prisoner May Be Missing Student

New Haven, Ct., Aug. 2 (AP)—Whether Luther Hiney, 20, is Morgan P. Moorer, Jr., of Asheville, N. C., who disappeared from the University of North Carolina last February, is a question which police seek to answer today.

Hiney, who was arrested for trespassing on railroad property, resembles pictures and descriptions of Moorer, police say, but he does not know where his home is.

VETERAN HUB LEADER NOT IN SENATE RACE

But He Still Has Till Friday to Change; Curley Gives Him Support

Ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald put himself definitely in the race for the Democratic nomination for governor today by filing nomination papers with the Boston election commissioners for certification.

He has until next Friday to retrace this step, but the opinion was generally expressed today in political circles that he will not now retire from the contest for the governorship.

His action indicates that nothing has resulted from efforts to induce him not to run for Governor. The object of these efforts was to leave Joseph B. Ely of Westfield unopposed, while either Fitzgerald or Marcus A. Coolidge of Fitchburg ran for senator.

HAS 480 SIGNATURES.

All eyes are now turned to Ely. Coolidge is being widely advertised as a candidate for senator, and it remains to be seen whether the Westfield man will oppose Fitzgerald or Coolidge.

Although only 250 names are required in the county, Fitzgerald handed six papers, each bearing 80 names, to Frederick Hopkins, deputy chief assistant registrar of voters, at City Hall annex, who passed them over to Peter E. Tague, chairman of the election commissioners.

It was five minutes before closing time when the candidate appeared at the election commission offices with his 480 signatures.

The former Boston mayor is the first to file, as he was the first declared candidate in the race for the governorship.

"I'm filing 480 names, although only 250 are required," he said.

After a brief conversation with Commissioner Tague, who a few years ago was his opponent in a bitter tussle in the political arena, he departed.

HAS CURLEY SUPPORT.

Recent reports that Fitzgerald would run for senator, with Joseph P. Ely of Westfield campaigning for Governor, are believed to have been silenced by "Fitz's" action today.

With the support of Mayor Curley, voiced after the Worcester convention of last Monday, it had been predicted that Fitzgerald would insist on running for Governor.

The elimination of Fitzgerald from the senatorial contest leaves Marcus Coolidge of Fitchburg, former Congressman Joseph O'Connell and former Dist.-Atty. Thomas C. O'Brien in the race. Other possibilities, either for Governor or Senator, are ex-Mayor Peters, former Gov. Eugene N. Foss, Sherman Whipple, John J. Cummings and Ely.

RELATIVES OF PINTHIS DEAD IGNORED AS SEARCH IS ABANDONED

REASON FOR ACTION IS MYSTERY

Blue and cold — and undisturbed by any humane gesture—the sea rolled today over the sunken tanker Pinthis, tomb of 15 men on the ocean bed off Scituate.

The diving operations which yesterday resulted in the recovery of two bodies had been abandoned.

Anguished relatives of the Pinthis crew gathered at Plymouth or waited at Fall River and New Bedford for news of their dead or for the bodies of their dead, but for them there was only prolongation of suffering from the secrecy and mystery which have attended the Fairfax-Pinthis disaster since the night of June 10.

"NO FURTHER SEARCH"

Yesterday's diving operations—less than two hours of underwater work—were but the shallow gesture to hush public indignation at previous failure to attempt reclamation of the Pinthis dead, so far as the public could learn from the private interests involved.

"As I understand it, there will be no further search," said Miles Wambaugh of the law firm representing the Merchants & Miners Transportation Co., owners of the Fairfax.

"I understand that there will be no further search made for bodies," said Robert R. Duncan of the Boston law firm representing the Shell oil interests, lessees of the Pinthis.

NO INFORMATION GIVEN

"We don't know anything about it," said New York representatives of the Merritt, Chapman & Scott Co., the diving concern employed jointly by Merchants & Miners and Shell.

"But will any further attempt be made to get the bodies of the other 15 men believed in the wreck?" the Boston Evening American asked, voicing the question on the lips of the dead men's families.

"We don't know anything about it," was the answer.

ANOTHER QUESTION.

It was apparent that the two divers yesterday did not enter the torn hull of the Pinthis in search for other bodies—that the two recovered were those earlier reported as being caught in superstructure rigging.

Whether the recovery of those two bodies was the only purpose of yesterday's work or whether there was, as well, a purpose of survey to determine responsibility for the disaster which cost 49 lives, was another unanswered question in the mystery.

Some of the relatives of the Pinthis victims have began to believe that yesterday's diving operations were intended not so much for the recovery of the bodies as to establish some legal point in connection with the collision.

Although two bodies were brought to the surface, it was pointed out that they had been caught in the deck gear of the tanker and required no unusual effort to recover. Also no real plans had been made ashore for the care

Mayor Edmond P. Talbot of Fall River, the city from which the tanker sailed with a crew of 19 of her citizens, today prepared further demands on the operators of the vessel to accede to the public demand, first sponsored by the Boston Evening American.

Mears and Brown Hop Off to Regain World Record

leave Harbor Grace for the transatlantic hop soon after refueling but weather conditions may prevent this till tomorrow or later.

When they left Roosevelt Field all weather indications were favorable.

GOODBY SALUTE.

Brown's wife, his sister Mary of Chicago, and Mr. Mears' daughter, Elizabeth, were at the field to see them off.

"Good-by, lady," Brown said as he kissed his wife and patted her shoulder. Then he kissed his sister and climbed into the cockpit.

Miss Mears' leave-taking from her father was more extended, but none of the women showed emotional strain. Not until the City of New York was fading into the distance did Mrs. Brown give way, and then only for a moment.

Miss Mears is the only near relative of the head of the expedition, but back in Berea, O., are two small Browns, Henry James, Jr., six months old, and Harriet Virginia, 3. Harriet bade her dad farewell over the long-distance telephone just before she went to sleep last night.

Dr. James H. Kimball, United States Weather Bureau meteorologist, furnished a last-minute weather report which indicated favorable flight conditions over the Atlantic for the next 48 hours.

FOR NEW RECORD

He said they would encounter some clouds but that there were no storms in their path and they would have following winds.

This marks Mears' third effort at the round the world record. His two previous attempts were successful, breaking then existing records.

In the present attempt he is shooting at the record of 21 days, eight hours and 26 minutes, established by the Graf Zeppelin last summer and which broke his own mark of 23 days, 15 hours and 21 minutes, established with the late Capt. C. B. D. Collyer in 1928.

This is Mears' first world airplane trip. On his previous dashes, fast steamships were used on long water-jumps.

From Harbor Grace, the plane will head for Baldonnel airdrome, near Dublin, from which Fitzmaurice, Koehl and Von Huenefeld started their successful western transatlantic crossing. It is 1900 miles from Harbor Grace.

That will be the longest overwater hop in the circumnavigation of the globe.

ONE MOTOR PLANE

From Baldonnel their course carries them 900 miles to Berlin, 1,200 miles to Moscow, 1,300 miles from Moscow to Nova Sibrak in Siberia, 1,600 miles to Chita, 1600 miles to Khabarovsk and 1125 miles to Chignik.

From Chignik their course carries them 1,900 miles across the fringe of the Bering Sea and the North Pacific to Seattle. Thence they will fly 250 miles to Spokane and then 2,500 miles to New York City, by way of Chicago.

Their plane, the City of New York, is a Lockheed-Vega cabin monoplane, with high wing. It is powered with a 425 horsepower Wasp motor.

The fliers expect their flight to take from 15 to 20 days, depending on the weather. Flown along the 60th parallel, they estimate the total distance at 17,775 miles.

Pilot Brown was born in Chicago. He is 31 years old, a graduate of the University of Washington at Seattle. He served in the air corps during the war but was not sent overseas. In 1925 he entered the air mail service and flew the mail, mostly between Cleveland and New York until he resigned to pilot Mears' round the world plane.

"CITY OF NEW YORK"

The plane has a short wave radio set, operating on 34½ meters and 8650 kilocycles. The call letter is KHIMN. Mears, who has been studying telegraphy, will handle the key.

A large gas tank separates Mears in his cabin from the pilot's cockpit, the two compartments being connected by a speaking tube.

The plane's fuselage is red, the wings silver, the registry number is NR-500-V. The name "City of New York" is painted on the sides in white and on one side is the American flag, on the other the seal of New York city.

The plane carried 330 gallons of gasoline, 100 less than the full capicity of her tanks, which give her a flying range of 18 hours and 2500 miles with a top speed of 180 and a cruising speed of 150 miles an hour.

The fliers carried coffee and orange juice, chicken, ham and cheese sandwiches, fruit cake and chocolate bar. The food was prepared by Mears' daughter.

N. J., and that he had used it in many larcenies.

The scheme was to answer advertisements of property for sale, agree to buy and give the "certified" check for more than the price, accepting the balance in cash—and disappearing.

CASH MANY ORDERS

Cohen's Oak Island store, in which the postoffice is located, was advertised for sale and Nichols, with Orchard, went there yesterday evidently to work the scheme successfully employed on at least two occasions in Boston.

While they were bargaining, Cohen received a call asking him to carry his money orders to the main postiffice. The two offered to drive him, then bound, gagged and handcuffed him and toured Charlestown, Brighton, Revere, Chelsea, Allston and Newton cashing money orders before being caught in Brookline.

OTHER HUB VICTIMS

Arraigned in Brookline before his appearance in federal court, Nichols admitted having stolen $100 from Hulda Beylin of West Newton st., and $200 from Florence Costellonas of Pembroke st., by the check scheme. Both had advertised lodging houses for sale.

As a result of publication of his photograph, two other persons telephoned police headquarters that Nichols was the man who victimized them through forged checks.

Inspector William Goldston discussed with Chief Postal Inspector Parke D. Colvin the forgery angle of the case and it was decided to give the federal robbery charges precedence in trial.

Nichols was paroled from Sing Sing with two and one half years of a sentence for forgery unserved, he told police. He has been living in Austin st., Cambridge.

Funeral services for John F. Coleman, president and treasurer of Coleman Brothers, Inc., Boston contractors, will be held Monday morning, with a solemn high mass of requiem at the Church of Our Lady of Sorrows, Sharon, at 10:30. Burial will be at Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden.

Since he entered the contracting business, established by his father, the late Patrick Coleman, 40 years ago, Mr. Coleman had been engaged in some of the largest construction work ever done in Boston and vicinity.

Warrants for 2 Hub Tong Killings

Warrants charging murder were issued in municipal court today against Harry Bockay of Cambridge and Yee Chuen, Harrison ave., in connection with the slaying of Leon Toon in Oliver pl. on July 30. Toon was killed by hatchet and gunshot wounds, the first victim of a new tong war which broke out simultaneously in Boston and New York.

CHINESE FLEE IN PANIC FROM RED HORDES

Pillagers With Firebrand Menace Three Cities; Natives Seek Foreign Protection

Shanghai, Aug. 2 (AP)—The Yangtze river cities of Hankow, Hanyang and Wuchang, with a joint population estimated at several millions, today lay in the path of China's advancing blood-crazed revolting armies and Communist forces.

Thousands of terrified Chinese, bearing their property, sought refuge in the barricaded foreign concessions of Hankow as Communist armies moved toward the tri-cities, fresh from the conquest and destruction of Changsha. The cities were under martial law. The capital at Nanking also was under military rule.

Changsha, smouldering remnant of what once was a prosperous silk manufacturing city, was reported still to be occupied by remnant of looting Red forces, activity of which prevented entry of landing parties from foreign gunboats.

Hundreds of wealthy Chinese were reported captured and held for ransom. Sixty provincial officers, hiding in the ruins of the city, were summarily executed. All foreigners were believed safe aboard the gunboats or in other cities.

Evacuation of Kukiang and the nearby mountain summer resort of Kuling was under way. Chinese authorities gave foreigners three days to leave, disclaiming responsibility for them after that time.

Nationalist authorities at Nanking, explaining establishment of martial law, said it was precautionary against possible Communist activity within the capital.

Troops Rule Amoy Under Martial Law

Amoy, Aug. 2 (AP)—A tense situation arose here today when Communists threatened vengeance on municipal officials for continued opposition to Red activities. Martial law was declared and troops patrolled the city.

Padlock Taken Off for Church Services

Jersey City, Aug. 2 (AP)—A federal prohibition padlock has been removed by court order from the building owned by James P. Meehan and fitted out by the Rev. E. J. Smith as a church for his Negro St. Paul Baptist congregation.

The padlock was placed on the building a fortnight ago for an old violation on the day it was to have been dedicated for church use.

18 POSTOFFICE WORKERS ARE RETIRED

Mail Workers May Retire at 63 if in Service 30 Years, Men Are Told

With the announcement today of the retirement of four clerks and fourteen carriers connected with stations of the Boston office, came word that employes in the service reaching the age of 63 years and who have rendered at least 30 years' service are entitled to optional retirement.

If employes do not take advantage of the provisions for optional retirement, it is not necessary for them to make application for retention in the service until they reach the regular retirement age, which is 65 for clerks, carriers and laborers, and 70 years in case of a supervisor.

Supervisors and fellow employes joined in wishing the following retired clerks and carriers many years of good health and happiness:

SAVE WOMAN IN 3-ALARM FIRE

A bedridden woman was half carried, half helped down three flights of stairs by her daughter-in-law today as fire, for which three alarms were sounded, swept through the three-family house at 163-165 Union st., Everett.

Fearing the flames would spread to other wooden houses nearby, the Everett department called help from Malden and Chelsea.

The fire apparently started on the top floor. With the flames crackling close by and the apartment filling with smoke, Mrs. Bessie Grosby lifted Mrs. Ida Grosby from bed and took her down the stairs to safety.

Members of two other families also fled the fire, which caused damage estimated at $1500. The flames spread upward, destroying the roof. The damage on the lower floors was chiefly from water. The cause was undetermined.

The house was occupied by Mrs. Rose Listofsky and three daughters and a son, all adults, on the third floor, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gottenberg and two children on the second floor, and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Grosby and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Grosby on the top floor.

200 Cars Tagged in Cambridge Drive

Cambridge police today began enforcing a City Council order banning all-day parking in that city. More than 200 cars were tagged, most of them said to be owned by persons who work or shop in Boston.

Mrs. Belmont Criticizes Cable Act Amendments

Augerville, La Riviere, France, Aug. 2—Recent amendments to the Cable act are inadequate, according to Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont, president of the National Woman's Party. The amendments remove chief discriminations against married women in the nationality law and facilitate recovery of nationality by American women married to foreigners.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont

Mrs. Belmont declared that a campaign would be constantly waged to keep Congress reminded that American women, but not American men, lose citizenship upon marriage to foreigners, ineligible for citizenship in this country.

American women married to foreigners may not give American nationality to their foreign born children, Mrs. Belmont pointed out.

Tunney Takes Position With Wheel Manufacturers

New York, Aug. 2—Contrary to persistent rumors that he would purchase a newspaper and become its editor, James J. Tunney, the retired undefeated champion of the world, has stepped out of his role of social lion to become an executive in a manufacturing company.

Former Stage Star in Hiding With Husband

New York, Aug. 2—Fate continues to stalk the tracks of Lora Sanderson, stage beauty of former days. The toast of Broadway a few short years past is now in hiding in the Adirondacks with her husband, William W. Easterday, who is being sought by the New York police.

Lora's rise to theatrical fame began when she won a beauty contest in Missouri. Her career was stormy and hectic. In 1926, she was committed to an asylum following a nervous breakdown, which ended her stage career.

Air Beauties Fly to Greet President

Only a whiff of powder puffs was necessary to prepare Phoebie Omlie and Blanche Wilcox Noyes to meet President Hoover after they had piloted their boudoir-like little aerial coupes here from Chicago.

Under their leather flying coats the two women wore smart attire, suitable for almost any occasion.

Nancy Hopkins

Another aviatrix who met the President was Nancy Hopkins, 21, who flew from New York for the week-end.

FLIER AIMS TO SET NEW RECORDS

Tells of the Accomplishments Since Jules Verne Set Style in Fiction

By JOHN HENRY MEARS

Who Established Two Round-the-World Speed Records and Will Now Attempt to Break the Record Made by the Graf Zeppelin

Copyright, 1930, New York American, Inc.

New York, Aug. 2—Thousands of letters and messages and tokens of good will and encouragement have come to Henry J. Brown, my pilot, and me from people who express the hope we will succeed in making our dash around the world in less time than it was made last summer by the Graf Zeppelin.

It gives us a great kick to know that so many people are boosting for us in our effort to bring back the record into America's keeping.

And, God willing and weather permitting, that will not be the only record we will hang up during the journey. We hope to make the first daylight crossing of the Atlantic ocean. Think of it, to sleep one night in America and the next in Europe.

There is still another record at which we are casting covetous eyes. It is the first non-stop airplane flight across the Pacific.

FOGG'S IMAGINARY TRIP

The first man to set out for the sole purpose of making a record trip around the world was the famous Phineas Fogg, hero of Jules Verne's novel, "Around the World in Eighty Days." It created a great stir, that sensational imaginary journey. The thing could never be done, of course, but it was "an interesting idea."

What was their surprise when in 1889 Nellie Bly, a little girl reporter for the New York World made herself famous by beating Fogg's record eight days.

Five men succeeded in establishing new circumnavigating records between 1890 and 1913.

An American who had been traveling all winter took a busman's holiday the summer of 1913. By traveling continuously eastward for 35 days he found himself once more at home with a new world's record for his little daughter to boast about at kindergarten.

EVANS AND WELLS

"My daddy is the fastest man who ever went around the world," I overheard her saying one day soon after. "I listened with rather mingled emotions, for, you see, I was the gentleman to whom she was referring. A little questioning revealed that the young lady had not been reading my mail, as I had feared at first, but the phrase was only the result of a rather hazy knowledge of grammar.

Edward S. Evans and Linton Wells, after looking over the transportation facilities at the command of the traveller of 1926, wondered why these superior advantages should not enable them to break that long-established record.

The result was a new record of 28 days.

Two years later their time was bettered five days by Charles B. D. Collyer and myself and Tail Wind, a Sealyham terrier, who was our mascot and pal. We used our Fairchild monoplane, the City of New York, for all land hops. But across the Atlantic and Pacific we folded back her wings and lashed her to the decks of fast steamers.

HIS NEW MASCOT.

It was the memory of those long, wasted days on shipboard that made me certain in 1929 that the Graf Zeppelin would make her world cruise in less time than we had made ours. And sure enough, Dr. Eckener set his passengers down at their goal 21 days 17 hours after he left Lakehurst, N. J.

When I flew out to Hollywood several weeks ago to get our beautiful maroon and cream Lockheed-Vega monoplane Mary Pickford stopped work on her newest picture to wish me luck and present me with a successor to dear old Tail Wind who did his job of mascot so faithfully and well two years ago.

The Sealyham pup that Miss Pickford chose to bring us favorable winds is enough like our old mascot to be his brother. So we promptly named him Tail Wind II.

He started out very nicely. He brought us a strong tail wind all the way back to New York from the coast. It was his maiden voyage and he enjoyed every minute of it.

ALLEN WILL BE MAINE GUEST

Putting aside, temporarily, his own State's Tercentenary, Gov. Allen, on Aug. 11, will join other New England governors and officials and take part in Maine's Tercentenary celebration.

They will be guests of Gov. William Gardiner of Augusta.

They will be guests of Gov. William Tudor Gardiner at Augusta and Skowhegan, following a procession from Kittery through York and Portland.

All along the route, a series of pageants will depict Maine's early history, from its first settlement by the traders in 1604, or 16 years before the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth.

Govs.' Case of Rhode Island, Tobey of New Hampshire, Weeks of Vermont and Trumbull of Connecticut have also been invited by Governor Gardiner to participate in the celebration.

At 10 a. m. the visitors will assemble at Badgers Island in the Piscataqua at Kittery, scene of the building of John Paul Jones' Ranger, whence they will proceed under state police escort to Kittery Common to receive Governor Gardiner's welcome to Maine.

'EDISON BOY' IS BACK ON JOB

BACK ON JOB EARLY

But while young freckle-faced Williams, who in addition to his hard-earned title, "America's brightest boy," may well be called America's typical boy, seemed to enjoy hugely the comparative quiet of his surroundings, the officials and employes of the bank beamed on him in delight as they watched him running his errands as if nothing had happened and the plaudits of a nation had failed to ruffle his dignified and quiet modesty. He was in such a hurry to return home that he literally fled the homage of New York.

Williams went to work at 8:30, just four hours after he had returned to his East Providence home from New York. While he admitted that he was "dead tired," and badly needed some rest, he declared in a matter of fact tone, that he "got off only four days and thought he ought to come in to work today." As he talked to a reporter, the buzzing of bells interrupted constantly and kept him on the run.

WILL ATTEND TECH

Arthur admitted he had no great liking for the title, "America's brightest boy."

"I don't like it, and I don't think it means much," he said, smiling shyly. "But I hope to make good and live up to Mr. Edison's trust in me."

Told that his friends in East Providence are planning a celebration for him "if he doesn't object," Arthur replied:

"I certainly wouldn't object, though I'm not so wild about it."

Arthur persisted in his refusal to disclose his answer to the famous "desert" question or any other query in the brain twisting examination on scientific and ethical subjects.

"I've been advised not to reveal that answer or any other," he said. "Anyway, it wasn't the answer that counted so much as the reasoning applied to the answer in that question."

He said he was now "pretty sure" he would go to M. I. T., and major in physics and mathematics.

10 Weeks' Old Baby Girl Going "Alone" Across Atlantic

Believed to be the youngest traveler ever to cross the Atlantic unaccompanied by relatives on a Cunard liner is Ellis Margaret Mitchell, 10 weeks old, daughter of Donald Mitchell of 46 Freeman st., Quincy, will leave Boston tomorrow on the California for Glasgow.

The baby's mother died recently and she is being sent to her aunt and uncle in Saltscoats, Scotland, by her father, who will take her to the boat and place her in charge of a stewardess for the voyage.

SEEK GAMBLER IN LOTTERY

A prominent Charlestown gambler is expected to be arrested today following the raid in the West End yesterday which wrecked the headquarters of the biggest lottery in New England.

He is said to be the actual ringleader.

Five men, arraigned in Municipal court today before Judge Parmenter, were held for hearing Aug. 6 after they pleaded not guilty. They were seized in the raid.

George Pickett, Norfolk st., Dorchester, charged with promoting a lottery, was held in $1000 while the others charged with being present were held in $300 each. A 16-year-old boy was turned over to the Juvenile Court.

The printing equipment, presses, numbering machines and the 3,000,000 lottery tickets seized are at the Joy st. station and comprise the largest seizure ever made by police in a lottery raid.

Will Press Demand of Butler Probe

Declaring he has not yet bared "half the facts," Conrad W. Crooker leaves for Washington tomorrow night, hopeful of convincing the Senate investigation committee that an early probe is necessary of the campaign expenditures of William M. Butler, "dry" candidate for the G. O. P. senatorial nomination.

As general counsel for the Liberal Civic League of Boston, Crooker will go before the full committee Monday forenoon on invitation of Sen. Gerald P. Nye, the chairman.

EYE ON SEVERAL STATES

Hearing of alleged lavish expenditures, Sen. Nye has declared his committee will closely watch the primaries in several states, including Massachusetts and Tennessee, as well as Illinois, Nebraska and Pennsylvania, which have already been under scrutiny.

Crooker said today:

"My chief aim is to convince the Senate committee that an investigation prior to the primaries is the only thing that will really benefit the citizens of Massachusetts.

"An inquiry after the primaries may be the usual thing, but that is of hardly more than academic interest to the voters. The committee recently went to Nebraska in the Norris case, proving it has the power to investigate in advance of the primaries.

DECRIES SLUSH FUN

"The citizens of Massachusetts would not like to see a candidate nominated and elected with the help of a colossal outlay of money. Even if he were then discredited, the governor would name his successor for two years. The people want to choose their own senator."

Senator Nye has made it plain in the past that the committee would go into a state before the primary vote only in extraordinary circumstances.

Girls Quizzed in Stabbing at Party

3 GIRLS HELD IN SLASHING

Joseph T. Burke, 27, of Elgin st., West Roxbury, was seriously stabbed and slashed on the throat and face early today as a sequel to an all night beach party at a summer cottage at Oak Island, Revere.

Burke's assailant escaped, but Revere police are holding three girls who were witnesses of the battle and the slashing.

The wounded man was taken to Massachusetts General Hospital suffering from stab wounds which required 30 stitches. His name was placed on the danger list.

The three girls gave their names as Marion Ryan, 30, who rented the cottage for the summer; Marion Whalen, 25, of First st., Medford, and May Sullivan, 24, of Albion st., Somerville.

WON'T NAME SLASHER

Burke steadfastly refused to talk, but from a taxi driver, Neal McCarthy of Ferry st., Medford, police obtained a story of part of what occurred.

McCarthy said he picked up three men and three girls in Boston after midnight and started with them for Oak Island as directed.

At City Sq., Charlestown one of the men left the party, the others continuing to the cottage.

On arrival, McCarthy said, he was told to wait, and he sat in his cab listening to sounds of merriment from the cottage.

Then, according to the taxi driver, the two men became involved in a fight.

Women screamed, the men cursed, and there was the sound of furniture being overturned and broken.

SEES MAN HACKED

In a short time the fighting men surged out through the door, still battling.

Then, as McCarthy watched, Burke's antagonist drew a knife and slashed Burke again and again.

McCarthy raced for the police, who found Burke lying on the ground.

He was hurried to the hospital and a search made for his assailant. Police then began to question the girls to learn the cause of the row and the identity of the missing man.

The missing man, coatless, hatless and thought to be shoeless, was described as five feet six inches tall, of 150 pounds, about 35, with dark hair and dark complexion.

Convicts Recaptured

Salisbury, N. C., Aug. 2—Four of the ten men who sawed their way out of the Rowan County Jail here last night were recaptured early this morning.

ZUTA, GANG AID, SHOT TO DEATH

Chicago, Aug. 2 (AP)—Detectives today believed the man slain by gangsters near Delafield, Wis., last night was "undoubtedly Jack Zuta."

Zuta, reputed business manager of the North Side Moran and Aiello factions, has not been seen, detectives said, since an attempt was made to assassinate him July 1 as he was being escorted through the loop by Detective George Barker.

The gangster had been held for questioning into the slaying of Alfred "Jake" Lingle, Tribune reporter. The attempt on Zuta's life was made at State and Jackson sts., when hundreds of persons saw another automobile pull alongside Barkers' car and its occupants began firing.

A street car motorman was killed.

Detective Barker returned the fire but Zuta fled.

The Delafield slaying preceded by a few hours a statement in today's Tribune that Alfonso "Scarface Al" Capone returned in a plane to Chicago Monday from Miami, Fla.

The detective bureau said it had no knowledge of Capone's return, but declared if in Chicago he would be arrested "on sight."

STATE NARCOTIC SURVEY TO BE LAUNCHED

Commission Created by Legislature Starts Wednesday to Find Curb for Addiction

Inquiry by a special commission on drug addiction into the use in Massachusetts of habit-forming drugs went forward today with preparation of questionnaires to be mailed to institutions, physicians and clerks of court.

The commission was created by the last Legislautre.

Adoption of such measures as will most effectively protect the people of this state from the consequences of drug addiction is the purpose of the commission, which is scheduled to make its report to the next General Court.

It is also planned to obtain the services of a field investigator of the United States Public Health Service to work with a physician of the Massachusetts Health Service in a thorough survey of the narcotic situation.

In preparing its report the commission will seek the aid of the Massachusetts Medical Society, pharmaceutical associations and othe rorganizations having knowledge of narcotic conditions.

An executive meeting of the commission will be held Wednesday at the State House, when plans for the survey will be concluded.

Woman Hit by Car Dies at Hospital

Miss Elizabeth F. Barry, 50, of 366 Beacon st., who was run over by a Boston Elevated car in the Arlington st. subway yesterday, died at the Haymarket Sq. Relief hospital last night.

Miss Barry was running to board an out-bound Watertown car when in some manner she slipped from the platform and fell beneath the wheels of the car. Police and Elevated employes raised the car and removed her from the tracks.

Onset Women Elect Club Officers on Monday

By NANCY BREWSTER

Other clubs hold annual meetings in the early spring, but not so the Onset Woman's Club which, next Monday, has on schedule an afternoon and an evening session which includes voting for officers for next season.

Starting at 3 p. m., the clubwomen will gather at Pine Tree Inn, Point Independence, Onset, to transact club business, to vote between 6 and 7 p. m., to dine at 7:15 and to attend a program which is to begin at 8:15.

Giving promise of being the finest annual meeting in the history of the club, according to Mrs. F. S. Ottke, correspondent, the Onset Woman's Club will enjoy the distinction of having Mrs. Carl L. Schrader, newly elected president of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, present.

SPECIAL GUESTS

Other special guests of the day will include Mrs. Buck, State president of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Heman Harding, newly elected fourth vice-president of the Massachusetts State Federation; Mrs. Ralph H. Snow, first district director; Mrs. Bael Barstow, official federation song leader; Dr. Anna C. Palmer, retired State federation public health chairman; Mrs. Frank Bess, president of the Wareham Monday Club; Mrs. Edward M. Cox, president, Milton Woman's Club, and Mrs. Crocket of Sagamore.

The club is proud of its president, Mrs. Carl W. Illig, Jr., who, besides heading the Onset Woman's Club, will lead Bay State clubwomen for the next three years along public health lines.

Mrs. Charles Cummings and Miss Pearl MacDonald have arranged a musical program for the evening, a program that will give evidence of tercentenary atmosphere, as will the costumes of the four Puritan maids who are to act as pages. They are Dorothy Worrall, Edith Smith, Amelia Heald, Abetta Kashimura.

COMMITTEE NAMES

The club's committee for the annual session includes Mrs. Harry Osborne Joy, Mrs. E. D. Eldredge, Mrs. Eliza Redding, Mrs. William Goodwin, Mrs. Irving Hammond, Mrs. Alton Worrall, Mrs. John Gilli, Mrs. Bessie Poole Woods, Miss Edith Johnson, Miss Elsie Pearl, Mrs. George Worrall, Mrs. Susan Dixon, Mrs. Edson Bearse.

Hub Hadassah Unit Will Sponsor Dance for Zionist Relief

A group of Greater Boston collegiates have volunteered to vend flowers next Tuesday at the annual summer dance of the Boston Hadassah Unit that the rehabilitation work of Palestine by Zionist women of America may continue its progress.

Headed by Miss Lillian Libman of Roxbury, a Wellesley collegiate, the committee also includes Ruth Edinberg, Brookline, of Smith College, assistant chairman; Evelyn Gerstein, Brookline; Bernice Lipman, Roxbury; Eunice Ludwig, Brookline; Bernice Meyer, Brookline; Bernice Eisenberg, Brookline; Sylvia Housman, Brookline; and Ruby Bretler, Brookline.

These young girls, with flower baskets, will promenade the ballroom of Pemberton Inn to swell the coffers of the unit. Two thousand Jewish women endorse this summer project annually that together with the 30,000 other Hadassah women of the country, a contribution of half a million dollars may be made to Palestinian medical and social welfare activities.

Mrs. Lewis Goldberg of Brookline is president of the Hub unit.

Deb Set Out To Cheer Oarsmen

National Regatta on Charles River Basin Attracts Leaders Today

THE DEBUTANTE SET turns out in force today for the final races in the national regatta of amateur oarsmen in Charles river basin. Several Harvard favorites are stroking for the Union Boat Club and rooting for them provides quite the most thrilling diversion of the week. From the flag-draped verandahs of the clubhouse the fair gallery will watch Forrester Clark, Laurence Curtis, 2d, William Saltonstall, Russell Codman, Jr., Lothrop Withington and Waldo H. Brown sculling for the prizes to be distributed by Mayor Curley. Informality is the rule at the clubhouse, where many visiting yachtsmen are being entertained.

WHEN CLUB MEMBERS kept open house for the visitors at the Union Boat Club last evening a brilliant galaxy of society folk from the North Shore assembled for the buffet supper. Mr. and Mrs. John Batchelder, Mr. and Mrs. J. Amory Jeffries, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Parkman, Jr., joined with other members of the committee in creating a delightful atmosphere of hospitality, befitting the occasion of the first national rowing regatta since 1913. Mrs. Parkman was in green chiffon with a black and white hat and Mrs. Jeffries wore a becoming flowered crepe frock. Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson joined the party for a short time and Mrs. John Codman also looked in to welcome the guests before the fireworks display began. Mrs. Walter I. Badger was up from West Chop in a smart orchid frock sharing duties with Mr. Badger, who is on the committee.

Regatta Guests to Be Feted Tonight at Dinner Parties

AMONG THE FESTIVITIES in connection with the regatta is a dinner party to be given this evening by Frederick Cameron Church, and one at which Eben S. Draper will be host to a group of visitors from other cities. Philadelphia is largely represented in out of town guests this year. The Paladin is doing honors for society at the regatta. She is being used as headquarters for the honor guests, which today includes Mrs. James J. Storrow. John Batchelder is in charge of boats.

FRIENDS AND MEMBERS of the Thayer family are in New York today for the fashionable wedding at which Miss Marian Nichols becomes the bride of William Payson Viles in St. John's Church, Fisher's Island. The bride, daughter of Mrs. William H. Nichols, Jr., is a sister-in-law of Mrs. Francis Tilden Nichols, the former Louise Thayer of Boston, and attended her wedding in Emmanuel Church a year ago last spring as maid of honor.

TODAY IS THE WEDDING day of Miss Julie Ripley, daughter of Mrs. Baillie Ripley of New York and Litchfield, Ct., who becomes the bride of John Newton Forman in St. Michael's Church in Litchfield. Her sister, Miss Constance Ripley, is her maid of honor. The bridesmaids include Miss Charlotte Moseley, Mrs. Henry P. Kidder and Mrs. Edward Warren of Boston; Miss Danah Bartlett and Miss Isabel Woodruff of Litchfield; and Miss Rosamond Borland of New York. Josephine Kidder of Boston is flower girl. The bride is a member of the Vincent Club and attended Winsor School in Boston.

New Junior League Building Will Be Ready in 2 Weeks

THE HANDSOME NEW Junior League building will be finished in two weeks—glorious news for the girls who worked so hard last season to sell the bonds for this magnificent enterprise. Rising 10 stories from a handsome black marble door on Arlington st., the new quarters of the League are a monument to the foresight of the officers who influenced its architecture. The assembly hall with balcony is on the left and offices on the right as one enters from the Marlborough st. side, and facing the Public Garden is the loveliest lounging room imaginable. Two fireplaces, faced with black marble, and folding doors that permit the two large rooms to be thrown into one, are the outstanding features of this sun-bathed corner location on the second floor. Behind it lies equally inviting dining rooms with large mirrors and jade and crystal fixtures.

THE NEW QUARTERS REPRESENT the last word in comfort and beauty, from maids' room to modernistic dressing rooms, linen and telephone closets and a completely equipped modern kitchen. In the room set aside for board meetings the salient feature is a pink marble and nickel steel oval fireplace shaped like a shell. The walls are being finished in burlap. One of the finest bits of art in the building is the wrought iron winding staircase rail and the arched ceiling above it. Junior League members will now be looking forward to announcement of a housewarming party in the new building.

Children's Frocks Follow Fashions

By ANN ARDEN

AN OLD theory used to exist among mothers that it made a child vain to tell her how lovely she looked. This idea, along with a lot of other dodos, has been laid away, thank goodness. Modern mothers realize that a child's interest in herself is essential to good development. A bit of vanity when properly encouraged may make a neat little girl out of an untidy one.

IN CLOTHES, especially, a child's pride and vanity should be stimulated at an early age. Mothers who wail that their daughters have no regard for their clothes have only themselves to blame. Every small girl is sufficiently feminine to take tremendous pride in her looks. If she does not evidence this pride naturally, it must be carefully, patiently nurtured.

THE INHERENT childish love of dressing-up is a quality which a mother can use to the utmost. A child that is heedless of neatness or stubborn about the care of her clothes may be appealed to through this means. The daily routine of dressing can assume all the elements of dressing-up in mother's clothes when her own small things are exact duplicates.

SUCH CHARMING grown-up accessories now come in youthful versions. Silk undies for best copy mother's chemises and slips. Toilet articles are miniatures of sophisticated items. And as for frocks and accessories—there are gay polka dotted necklaces, brightly colored galalith bracelets to adorn small unsleeved arms in a most sophisticated manner, hankies with one's own name embroidered on, slip-on gloves, dashing silk scarfs. And even little handbags with zipper fastenings!

WHAT CHILD wouldn't develop a fashion sense with such incentives?

THIS SEASON, more so than in any other, fabrics play an important part for dresses, not only for the woman but for the younger miss as well. The popularity of sports fabrics such as pique, shantung and broadcloth is strongly felt in children's clothes.

THE SPORTS suit pictured for the ten-year-old is in coral pink shantung, coin spotted in white. The dress is sleeveless, with a white shantung top. The widely-pleated skirt, neck-band, bow, and jacket are of the dotted silk. A coral pink beret tops this exceedingly smart and practical costume.

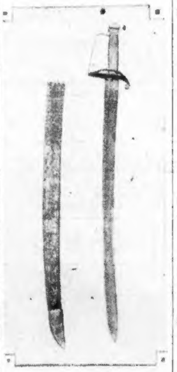
No. 161



"GOD BLESS THE PROVINCE OF NEW YORK". That's the inscription on the sword blade. It is the property of D. H. Bennis, 121 Haverhill st. One of his ancestors held a captain's commission under the king, at at time New York was a British province. It was presented to this officer by a relative in York, England, who had the sword made to order, when the commission holder embarked for America. The British made sword was carried in American ranks during the Revolution and later by Capt. David Bennis, while captain of the Vermont militia. The sword came to Capt. Bennis from Capt. John Bennis.

THE HOME OF JOHN QUINCY ADAMS

Beside its parent dwelling, stands the home of John and Abigail Adams, where John Quincy was born July 11, 1767. These two houses were built by Penniman in 1716 and 1681. Deacon Penniman was one of Braintree's founders, of which this section was the north precinct, finally becoming Quincy.

John Quincy, with his mother and father, dwelt here during the Revolution. John's middle name was that of his mother's grandfather, Parson John Quincy, from whom the city was named. Edmund Quincy, his father, was amongst the original settlers of Braintree.

ENTERED HARVARD

In 1786, John Quincy entered Harvard, graduating in 1789. He studied law at Newburyport under the tutelage of Chief Justice Parsons about 1794. In 1796 he was sent to Portugal to represent the United States at the Court. Then he proceeded to Berlin, returning to Boston in 1801.

He became United States Senator in 1803. In 1809 under President Madison he went to Russia. After President Monroe's term expired, he was elected sixth President of the United States. He returned to Quincy in 1829, where he died in 1848.

The Adamses have always been foremost in American statesmanship, the Hon. Charles Francis Adams, a descendant, being Secretary of the Navy, under President Hoover.

PROMINENT FAMILY

Another family of great distinction in early Pilgrim life is represented by the young lady in the foreground.

She is Miss Sally Bradford, whose father was Mayor of Quincy, whose progenitor was Governor John Bradford of Mayflower fame. His history, today, is our authentic record of those struggling times in old Plymouth, the beginning of an American nation. She is descended, also, from John and Priscilla, the first American lovers, famous for their congeniality. She is wearing an old-time gown which belonged to her ancestress.

The two houses are unique. They have walls of brick inside the wooden exterior, one being kiln burnt and the other just clay. The clapboards were fastened to the studding with nails of wrought iron. They are an interesting example of the simplicity of life in the nation's beginning.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

I think the eagle is the most glorious emblem America could possibly have.

It reflects the grandeur, dignity and power of our beloved nation.

I do not think there is the remotest chance of Americans becoming a cruel people—so bugbears of that nature do not frighten me!

If our Senators had suddenly beheld the vision of an eagle—proud, triumphant, majestic—soaring aloft with divine speed—thus depicting the marvelous rise of their country from obscurity to fame—they might have hesitated about ratifying the London naval treaty which your paper stood so bravely against.

I am thrilled to my very heart whenever I behold our flag—waving in the breeze—and above it, guarding it with serene watchfulness—the King of Birds—the eagle.

Babies Already Marked When They're Born

Editor Boston American:

Replying to the article in yesterday's paper "Favoring Marking Babies" and signed by "A Clergyman," would say if we poor mortals can improve upon God we must be going some.

When born we come into this world all marked on the hands and feet by different patterns or lines—corrugated in order to stand the rough usage that life must bear—and in the hands there are nine prints, namely—Arches Tented, Arches Ulner and Radial Loops—Composites, Whorls, Central, Lateral, Twin Loops and Accidentals, but in order to work out the formula it is only for those that thoroughly understand this wonderful science—and there are very few in this section of the country—there is considerable besides just taking off the prints.

When this science becomes better known and understood and adopted by the hospitals no more mix-ups can possibly occur such as recently happened in Chicago. When the public learns that there is much more to this science—and not only confined to the criminal classes—in the West it is used by express, banks, insurance and many other companies as a protection the objections will be overcome.

"Democrats" Are Not Entitled to Name

Editor Boston American:

I would like to know where these Democratic candidates for governor, this fall, capture the term—Democrat. Students of government will tell you that a Democrat means a local patriot. The only democracy in the world composed of Democrats, is the free cities on the Rhineland—Germany. These "so-called" Democrats are merely politicians—looking for power and place.

Wife Thinks New Style Husbands Fine

Editor Boston American:

An item in your paper compares the modern husband with the husband of 50 years ago. All modern husbands are not the same. I've only been married one year, but we are still in love with each other. The new type of husband is perfect. Mine is anyhow. Whatever I put before him, he is always satisfied.

And about picking up after him. He mustn't have much respect for his wife if he throws everything on the floor. I've seen many types of the modern husband, and they do all they can to help their wives. Mrs. T. Y. L. should look around, not just judge from her son-in-law. I know many wives could compare their new type of husbands with Mrs. T. Y. L.

MRS. J. C. W.

Sees the Need of More Co-education

Editor Boston American:

Let us have more co-education in our colleges. I was delighted to see a letter in your paper advocating it for the proposed State University in Massachusetts. Boston University has settled co-education. For most boys and girls it is an advantage for the two sexes to be brought up together.

Girls have proved that they have brains. Don't bring them up as if a woman was a cross between an angel and an idiot. Co-education shows what a woman can do. Young men have greater, and deeper respect for the accomplishments of women in co-educational institutions.

Men absolutely need the civilizing influences which women are particularly fitted to offer. The fruits of co-education will be happier marriages. Men have a better chance to choose a wife wisely when they know what she has done in college, sharing her opportunities and abilities at work and in play.

In short, co-education offers many advantages to the sexes to understand each other.

Pays Tribute to Religious Editor

Editor Boston American:

There died this past week a religious editor at the age of 59. He was formerly editor of a daily paper at Zanesville, O., and then managing editor of the Daily Courier of that city. He afterwards transferred his talents to "The Interior," a religious weekly, and later on to "The Continent."

Nolan Rice Best was well known to literary men and women of Boston as a fearless editor of religious weeklies.

It is in this respect that I seek the privilege of making his fame known. I cannot bear to have an editor of this type of mind forgotten. Those who knew him will never forget him. He was so quiet and unassuming and had always something to say.

He could not be bought or influenced when he saw issues in their true light. Such men live long in one's memory. Religious editors are often a target for theological cranks. He knew how to handle them. That is one reason why I cannot forget him.

LASSMAN VINDICATED, FAMILY DROPS DISPUTE WITH ZARAKOV

HIS MOTHER GLAD TRUTH IS KNOWN

Maine Prosecutor Finds Facts Were Distorted to Prevent Publicity

Weeping softly, the mother of Al Lassman declared today she would let the dispute over her son's death drop, satisfied that "the smoke screen thrown out by Zarakov" had been dissipated and her boy established as a hero before the public.

But Mildred Lassman, sister of the former New York U. football star, bitterly upbraided Isadore Zarakoff, former Harvard football and baseball star, before asserting that she, too, was satisfied.

Their decision to take no further action followed earlier statements in which they both charged that Zarakov was brutally unfair in camouflaging the story of Lassman's death by drowning at Zarakov's boys' camp at Harrison, Me.

NO PROSECUTION

Zarakov admitted Lassman had given his life after saving two boys at the camp, but said he covered up the facts out of consideration for the mothers of the boys.

The official investigation launched in Maine ended with a finding that there was no ground for prosecution, as nobody had been under oath and the facts were distorted to prevent "undesirable publicity" for the camp.

"The only consideration Zarakov had was for the welfare of his camp," said Mildred Lassman today. "His smoke screen was pretty weak where he said he acted as he did out of regard for two ill mothers of the boys.

"Isn't it strange that a man would think of the mothers of persons alive and well, and entirely ignore the mother whose boy was lost?

STORY IS OUT NOW

"He never made any attempt to get in touch with us. It is surprising also that so many other prominent athletes, noted for their sportsmanship on the gridiron, did not come forward to tell the real facts.

"If Zarakov had only come to us privately and told us the true circumstances of the affair, we would have been satisfied. If he had asked to have the true facts kept confidential, I would have been glad to do it for the sake of those other mothers.

"However, the true story of my brother's tragic death has now been told to the world. The stigma of suicide, implied by stories handed out by Zarakov—although he denies any such intention—have been erased from the people's minds.

"My mother and I are happy the true situation is now known and there is no need of carrying the matter any further."

"The matter's a closed book now," said Mrs. Lassman. "Of course, I had never believed my son, Al, would take his own life, but I was never satisfied that the true facts of his death had been made public.

"Somehow I felt that my son was being done an injustice and the truth would eventually come out. Despite the obstacle of silence which had been placed in the path of all efforts to determine the true circumstances, the investigators of New York University have now proven the true situation as it existed when Al died."

3 ALIENS HELD IN DRUG PLOT

St. Albans, Vt., Aug. 2 (AP)—Three aliens, arrested by federal narcotic agents Thursday in a raid on a High Gate Springs gasoline filling station, were held in bonds of $4000 each after arraignment today before United States Commissioner C. D. Watson.

They were charged with conspiracy to transport drugs into the United States and waived examination.

The trio, who also face action by immigration officials on charges of illegal entry into this country, are Marc Noiseux, St. Johns, Que., hotel keeper, and Joseph Moileur and Melle B. Borduas of Montreal.

Navy Balloons Down in Ludlow and Maine

Springfield, Aug. 2 (AP)—After a flight of a little more than 12 hours from Lakehurst, N. J., four young lieutenants in the balloon division of the naval aviation service brought their balloon to earth in Ludlow, near here, at 6:35 a. m. today. They packed the gas bag and shipped it back to Lakehurst and came here, where they took a train for the same point.

Biddeford, Me., Aug. 2 (AP)—A balloon which left the naval air station at Lakehurst, N. J., Friday evening landed a mile from here today when Commander Clay, in charge of the bag, found it was drifting toward the ocean.

Beauty, Animate and Still, Opened Winthrop's Week of Fetes

CUP DEFENDERS OFF FOR TEST

New London, Ct., Aug. 2 (INS)—Led by four huge, white-winged cup defenders—Weetamoe, Enterprise, Whirlwind and Yankee—the New York Yacht Club's annual cruise got under way here in weather that promised a fine race to Newport.

The distance is approximately 35 nautical miles.

With a southwest breeze blowing the yachts should be able to reach from the starting line off Sarah's ledge to the finish, which will be between the committee boat Nourmahal, owned by Vincent Astor, and the famous Brenton's reef lightship.

This is the first leg of a cruise that will take the New York Yacht Club squadron to Newport, to Mattapoisett, to Vineyard Haven and then back to Newport again.

Bank Is Named in Padlock Petition

Naming the Penny Savings Bank, which holds a mortgage on the property, as a joint defendant, Police Commissioner Hultman today filed a bill in equity asking that premises owned and occupied by James H. Hession in South Huntington ave. be padlocked for liquor law violations.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Leo Schwartz filed the bill in behalf of the commissioner and Judge Lummus issued an order of notice returnable August 18.

3 Eat Fish Bitten by Dog; May Go Mad

Jacksonville, Fla., Aug. 2 (AP)—Three Jacksonville residents were taking Pasteur treatments today because they ate fish that had been bitten by a mad dog. A man and his wife, who owned the dog, went fishing. As fast as they pulled in a fish the dog grabbed it. They thought he was just being playful. After they had cooked and eaten the fish they noticed the dog acting strangely. The dog was killed and found to have been afflicted with rabies.

Winthrop Opens Week of Celebrations

Wearing her "party dress," Winthrop today began an eight-day celebration of the Massachusetts Bay Colony Tercentenary.

A luncheon to several score distinguished guests, dedication of a tablet in memory of the town's earliest members in the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company and a military, civic and fraternal parade of several thousand marchers opened a program that will not be brought to a conclusion until next Saturday night.

Public buildings and homes were gaily bedecked in bunting and flags flew in all sections of the community as the festival started.

State and town dignitaries attended the luncheon at Elks Hall, which launched the festivities.

DEDICATE TABLET

At the conclusion of the luncheon the dedication of the tablet at the town hall took place. Those honored in the Ancient and Honorables were among the earliest settlers of that district, then known as Pullen Poynte.

From the reviewing stand in front of town hall, the guests were taken in a fleet of nearly 100 automobiles over the route of the parade with the various points of historical and modern interest being pointed out.

The parade, starting at 2:30, included in its line of march representatives of all fraternal and civic organizations in the city and all the military, except the Richard Metcalf post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, which withdrew, following a dispute over position.

DISABLED VETS THERE

While they did not march, the V. F. W. post entertained 25 disabled veterans from the Bedford hospital, outside the post headquarters on Winthrop Shore drive.

Frederick M. Clark was chief marshal of the parade, with the following on his staff: Arthur E. Lyng, John M. Colburn, Percy L. Sterling, Daniel T. Callahan, Thomas W. Spear, Albert S. Smith, Joseph F. Abely and James J. Sheerin.

The marchers were in three divisions, the division marshals being Theodore C. Naedele, with John W. Hogan as aides; Justin A. Duncan, with Charles A. Magman as aide; and Frederic J. Muldoon with three aides, Fred W. Ramsey, James H. Walker and Henry W. Wilson.

MILITARY IN FORCE

The Navy Yard band, one company of the regular army, one of the navy and two of the marines, the First Corps Cadet Band, the Grand Army, Spanish War Veterans, Winthrop American Legion members and band and the Winthrop Machine Gun Company were in the first division.

In the second division were the Ancient & Honorable Artillery Company and band, Fusiliers Veterans Association, Salem Light Infantry Veterans Association, Lexington Minute Men, Aleppo Temple patrol mounted patrol and band and a Boston Tea Party group, Winthrop Council, Knights of Columbus and the Elks.

Forty seven floats and decorated automobiles made up the third division as follows:

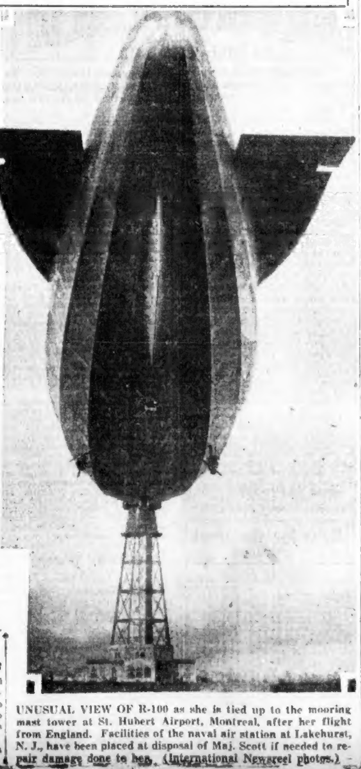
U. S. Admiral Bids Welcome to Men Who Flew R-100

MAJ. G. H. SCOTT ADMR. W. A. MOFFETT

REPRESENTING THE UNITED STATES, in Montreal, Canada, Admiral William A. Moffat, chief of the Aeronautics Bureau of the United States Navy, formally welcomed and congratulated Maj. G. H. Scott, commander of the R-100, upon the airship's flight from England to Canada.



UNUSUAL VIEW OF R-100 as she is tied up to the mooring mast tower at St. Hubert Airport, Montreal, after her flight from England. Facilities of the naval air station at Lakehurst, N. J., have been placed at disposal of Maj. Scott if needed to repair damage done to her. (International Newsreel photos.)

Gets 10 Days for Biting Officer

Haverhill, Aug. 2—Lawrence Bernier, 60, who bit the thumb of Officer Albert Lucier when the latter tried to arrest him for drunkenness, was given a 10-day jail sentence by Judge John J. Winn in district court today. The drunkenness charge was filed.

Flier Dies in Fire as Glider Burns

Los Angeles, Aug. 2 (AP)—Earl Lyon Redondo Beach, Cal., 27-year-old glider pilot was burned to death yesterday when his ship snagged on a power line and was set afire.

The craft was about 30 feet in the air when it struck the line.

Boy Killed at Still

Hattiesburg, Miss., Aug. 2—Early Gray, 19, was shot to death yesterday by a Covington County officer as he approached a liquor distillery near his home in the vicinity of Seminary, Miss.

REPAIRS WELL UNDER WAY ON BRITISH R-100

May Avoid Coming to Lakehurst, N. J., as Suggested by Secretary Adams

St. Hubert Airport, Quebec, Aug. 2 (AP)—The work of repairing the damaged fin of the British dirigible R-100, from which the fabric was torn loose in her voyage from Cardington, England, to St. Hubert, was well under way today.

As the repairs proceeded it seemed certain that they would be completed here without recourse to facilities at Lakehurst, N. J., which were offered the R-100 by Charles Francis Adams, secretary of the U. S. Navy.

A new panel had been measured and was ready for lacing into place. After it is placed the really dangerous part of the work will begin, that of "doping" the new fabric.

Unable to reach the fin by ladders, as would be possible in a hangar, two men will be swung from the top of the dirigible in bo's'ns chairs, one on either side. The two chairs will be pulled together, and from this improvised stage, 200 feet above the ground, the two men will glue in and paint the patch.

Official receptions in honor of officers and crew and flights to Canadian cities will begin next week, if repairs are completed.

CALL WOMEN IN STOCK PROBE

investigating complaints against the West India Fruit Co., 1 State st., Boston, the sales of whose stock was banned two days ago by the Department of Public Utilities.

The Boston Better Business Bureau has received many complaints about the West India Fruit Co. and devoted considerable time to investigating the corporation.

It is a Massachusetts corporation organized March 15, 1923, with a capitalization of $350,000, 2000 shares of preferred stock of $50 par value and 10,000 shares of common of $25 par value.

The officers are: Horace W. Taylor, Boston, president; John C. Emmons, West Kennebunk, Me., treasurer, and John C. Small, secretary. They comprise the board of directors. Walter S. Thompson, former city solicitor of Everett, is corporation counsel and active in its affairs.

Thompson was identified with the promotion of the Beuna Vista Fruit Company, of Cuba. He was also interested in the promotion of the Colorades Sugar Company with properties adjoining the West India Fruit Company's.

BUILT SUGAR MILL

The company is understood to have been promoted through the sale of a bond issue, the proceeds of which were used to erect a sugar mill on the property. When the mill was partly completed the Colorades Sugar Co. experienced difficulty and a petition in bankruptcy was filed against it.

The West India Fruit Co., upon acquiring the Buena Vista Fruit Co., started raising fruit and sugar cane on its plantations, totalling 1,700,000 acres. This business did not prove profitable and the corporation experimented with the growing of "sea island" cotton.

It is claimed that one-fourth of the properties are now given over to cultivation of cotton product.

The financing of the project was through sales of $550,000 8 per cent bonds, sold in $250 denomination, each bond secured by an acre of the property, valued by the corporation in an unplanted state from $100 to $150, and $250 when planted.

Interest payments on the bonds were made regularly up to January, 1928, when payments were defaulted.

President Taylor has been identified with the International Gold Mining Company, and is at present in the real estate business in Boston.

SALE STOPPED

Small, secretary of the organization, and Thompson are officers of Inter-Urban Estates, Inc., a Massachusetts company organized in 1924 to take over the assets of the Inter City Trust. The securities of the Inter City Trust were sold in this section by the Crager system and heavy losses were suffered by investors.

The sale of this stock was stopped by the Department of Public Utilities of Massachusetts in 1922 and the Inter City Trust was petitioned into bankruptcy. Small was executive secretary and he later became treasurer of a committee of the Inter City Trust Stockholders' Protective Association. Thompson was appointed receiver.

The selling agent of the West India Fruit bonds was W. F. Geller & Co., of Boston.

In July, 1926, the brokerage registration of William F. Geller was revoked by the Department of Public Utilities together with the salesman's registration of Samuel Meyers. Several other salesmen's registrations were also involved.

HUB NOT ON AIR DERBY SCHEDULE

Brainard Field at Hartford, Ct., to Be Starting Point of One of Seven Events

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

One of the seven air derbys to be flown prior to the national air races at Chicago, beginning August 23, will start at Brainard Field, Hartford, Ct.

It will be known as the Men's Atlantic Air Derby for planes of 100 horsepower, and the planes will leave Hartford two days before the start of the meet at the Windy City.

As this is the only derby to start in New England, most of the prominent fliers of this section will be on hand for the gun. While entries of New England planes have not as yet been announced, it is considered very probable that Lowell R. Bayles of Springfield 'll be at the controls of the Gee Bee Sportser, which he flew in the All-American air derby just ended.

Boston, with its ever enlarging airport, has not been included in the itinerary of the Chicago race, for reasons unknown. This is the third time that some event in aviation in the past year has found the Hub sitting on the outside.

A strenuous kick is in sight from the operators and others at the Boston Airport. A prominent flyer expressed the opinion that not enough push is being given the Hub's flying field by persons who should be solidly behind it.

Springfield and Hub Rejoice in Bayless Flight

In Boston and Springfield today there was rejoicing in the showing of the Gee Bee Sportster flown to second place in the All-American Air Derby at Detroit by Lowell Bayles, former Boston flier.

The plane, only New England entry in the derby, is the product of Granville Brothers Aircraft Co., Springfield, and was designed and built in a day less than a month, starting June 5. Z. D. Granville, who formerly conducted a plane repair shop at Boston airport, was the building. Bayles, now owner of a flying service at Springfield, formerly flew at Boston with the Curtiss-Wright service.

Bee Gee Sportster, a single place, low winged monoplane, powered with a 100-h. p. Cirrus engine, is a descendant of the Gee Bee two place plane first built by Granville at Boston airport.

It was test-hopped by Bayles July 4 and he is the only man to have flown it.

SEEKS DATA ON USE OF RUM

Washington, Aug. 2 (AP)—Learning the actual facts of prohibition holds an important place in the program of the reorganized enforcement bureau as drawn up by its chief, Amos W. W. Woodcock.

Woodcock has his own agency, created for the purpose of digging down to original sources of information, and has, he says, no intention of accepting the propaganda-tinged statistics of organizations sponsoring or opposing the dry laws.

Within the bureau is a research division, the primary function of which is to obtain trustworthy data on the per capita consumption of intoxicating liquor throughout the nation.

From it will come regular reports on liquor consumption and this, Woodcock says, will show the success or failure of his campaign against illicit alcohol.

Sixteen Killed in Collapse of Cave

Melilia, Spanish Morocco, Aug. 2 (AP)—Sixteen natives, including 15 women, were killed today by the collapse of a cave in the town of Benibuidar, region of Tensaman.

Twenty natives were in the cave extracting clay for use in washing clothes when the accident occurred.

Are You a Victim?

If you have been victimized by stock swindlers, the Boston Evening American, co-operating with Government, State and County officials, will be glad to advise you what is best to be done. MR. BOSTON

by JACK CONWAY

Mr. Boston turned his attention to the national rowing and sculling championships on the Charles.

"I have noticed a great deal of interest in the races on the Charles," declared the veteran. "It indicates that rowing and sculling are once more coming in for their own.

"Forty years ago rowing and sculling were more popular than baseball. The sure thing boys then got in their work, put several big events 'in the bag' and ruined public confidence in the sport.

"Amateur clubs, colleges and the prep schools have helped rowing and sculling stage a comeback. The boys have gone in to win and have left trick bottoms, defective oars and such things for the past generation.

"Rowing requires great strength and skill. It furnishes its share of thrills when conducted under the proper auspices. The crowds attending events on the Charles prove the popularity of this pastime.

Jake Zeramby Returns to Ring in Fall

"Jake Zeramby informs me he will be back in the ring in September. The Lynn lightweight has had the casts removed from his injured hands and will soon be in there battling with Andy Callahan, Sammy Fuller and other lightweight contenders.

"Zeramby fought three fights with broken hands. He refused to complain to even Al Lacey, his manager, about his condition as he did not wish to be termed a squawker.

"Jake showed a world of natural class licking Routis and should go a long ways along the fistic trail.

Dave Shade Still Has His Victory Habits

"Dave Shade, who quarrels with Joe Anderson in a 10-round bout at Braves Field on next Monday night, still has his winning habits. Despite the rush of years, Shade is still rated as one of the leading middleweights in the world. He would have the best chance of any of the 160-pounders to tip Mickey Walker from his throne.

"Shade has put up some of his greatest battles in Boston rings and will go to the post a favorite when he collides with Anderson.

Jack Sharkey Says "I'm Going Fishing"

"Jack Sharkey, American heavyweight champion, called me on the telephone to inform me he was on his way to Epping, N. H., on a fishing trip. Sharkey hinted he might do some training while in New Hampshire, so that he will be ready for a September bout if one is arranged by Johnny Buckley.

"William F. Carey, president of the New York Garden, will be in Boston Monday and will go into a huddle with the rotund Mister Buckley. Plans for further Sharkey fights will be discussed.

"It is almost a certainty that Sharkey will be asked to agree to another meeting with Young Stribling, either in New York or Miami, Fla. Stribling's knockout of Otto Von Porat and Phil Scott entitles him to another crack at Sharkey."

WOOD WINS AT SEABRIGHT

Seabright, N. J., Aug. 2—Sidney B. Wood, Jr., 18-year-old New York player, won the men's singles championship in the Seabright invitation tennis tournament by defeating Ellsworth Vines, Jr., Pasadena, Cal., in the finals, 6—2, 8—2, 6—0.

Wood, one time national junior champion, is the youngest winner ever to have his name engraved on the historic Seabright bowl which includes the names of such stars as William T. Tilden and Vincent Richards.

The California team of Mrs. Lawrence A. Harper, Los Angeles, and Miss Edith Cross, San Francisco, won the bowl for women's doubles, defeating the Palfrey sisters—Sarah and Mianne—of Boston, 6—4, 6—2.

Wood's win over the sensational Vines came as a surprise inasmuch as he had defeated earlier Frank Shields, R. Norris Williams and Francis T. Hunter.

Mrs. Harper and Miss Cross had a rather easy time of it in defeating the Palfrey sisters. Mrs. Harper played steadily while Miss Cross, who was eliminated from the singles yesterday, played a brilliant game.

Mrs. Harper and Phil Neer of Portland, Ore., won their way to the final round of mixed doubles from Josephine Cruickshank of Santa Ana, Cal., and Edward W. Feibleman, New York, 3—6, 6—3, 8—6. They were joined in the championship round later by Miss Cross and J. Gilbert Hall of South Orange, N. J., who defeated Virginia L. Hilleary, Philadelphia, and Clifford Sutter, New Orleans, 5—7, 6—3, 9—7.

Finals in women's singles, men's doubles and mixed doubles will be played today. Miss Cruickshank will face Mrs. Harper in the women's singles and Richard N. Williams and Hall battle Wood and Frank Shields.

36 YACHTS IN 225-MILE RACE

New York, Aug. 2—The annual Bayside to Block Island auxiliary handicap yacht race started at Bayside yesterday and the fleet of 36 craft, which will race around Block Island and back to the Bayside Yacht Club, a distance of approximately 225 nautical miles, is not expected to slip into the home port until late today or early tomorrow morning.

The flotilla exceeded by eight the starting fleet of a year ago. The contingent was made up of varying sizes and types of boats. There were nine schooners, 15 yawls, three ketches and nine sloops.

So adverse were the sailing conditions when the start was made that every craft was forced to fall back on its precious supply of gasoline and when the committee boat parted company with the fleet 12 miles out on Long Island sound, the crews were still relying on their engines to help the boats along to more open spaces further down the sound, where it was expected that a brisk southwest wind would enable the skippers to depend entirely on their sails and seamanship.

CHAPMAN AND KEENAN PICKED

Bike fans are banking heavily on their two favorites, George Chapman, Newark veteran and seven times American champion, and Frankie Keenan, idol of Revere, to outclass the field in the 40 mile motor pace race at the Revere cycle track tonight.

Chappie and Keenan face Franco Georgetti, present titlist, Franz Duelberg, German, and Victor Hopkins, plow boy from Iowa, who was champion a few years back.

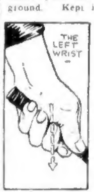
Nat Butler has lined up a novel semifinal event, in a special tandem race that will be run best two one mile heats in three.

A trio of teams are entered and include Genaro Procaccino and Anthony Patalono, Archie Villa and Frank Frazzini and Leo Maggoli and Ralph Spiers.

Other contests are listed for both amateur and pros.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
"Golf's Greatest Teacher"



In the address your left wrist, if it is depressed somewhat, makes your left palm face the ground. Kept in this position with regard to the club you will find the left palm faces away from you at the top of your back swing, while at the finish of your stroke this same palm will face directly upward. Previously I have mentioned how your arms straighten out, into the ball, as the club swings through, but this does not mean that your wrists straighten out toward the ball, with the arms. The wrists would straighten out into the direction line, but this would be, if at all, after the ball has been dispatched. Instead of your wrists straightening out, after the clubhead had passed through the ball, more likely your right arm would do that. A more exact definition of the action through the ball would be to say that your left arm straightens out, or down, into the ball, while your wrists make your hands slap the club forward, into the direction line, with your left wrist retaining its depressed relation to the shaft right through the ball. Try that.

What it is that makes a long iron shot long is told in clear, terse, concise manner in Mr. Horton's new monograph on long iron shots, without which one's golf game forever calls for extra strokes. This helpful material is free. Obtain it by addressing Mr. Horton in care this newspaper and enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

CROSSLEY DEFEATS OGG

By BILL GRIMES

Playing a sound brand of golf Wilfred Crossley, Norfolk, captured his second juvenile title when he defeated Wilfred Ogg, Worcester, 2 and 1, in the finals of the 16th Massachusetts junior championship this morning at the Belmont Spring Country Club.

Crossley was the first New England Interscholastic champion. His victory today establishes him as the outstanding juvenile in Massachusetts.

Crossley opened his drive to the championship with a 72 in the qualifying round, which was four strokes better than that of Jimmy Gannon, the runner-up.

Wilfred Ogg put up a fine fight throughout, but his failure to drop holable putts on four greens, coming in, cost him whatever chance he had of taking the title back to Worcester.

Ogg missed a comparatively short putt to lose the 12th hole and was unable to capitalize advantages at the 13th and 14th. However, his most costly slip was at the 16th, where he put a beautiful iron shot to within about five feet of the cup only to miss and pass up his last opening.

Crossley was 38 to the turn and needed four for a 75 when the match ended on the 17th green.

Ogg required 40 strokes to negotiate the outward round and was one over fours for the eight holes coming in. After they had halved the first two holes with fours, Ogg was on the back edge of the third green, with Crossley about 15 feet from the cup. Ogg chipped dead and won the hole when Crossley, after leaving himself an eight-footer, missed his second putt.

Ogg Gets Long Drive at Fourth

Ogg hit a long drive down to the fourth well out in front of his opponent whose ball was on a hanging lie from where he played a fine spoon shot to within 50 yards of the green. Ogg hooked his second and was still short with his third, but he got a half when Crossley, after chipping one, missed his putt.

Off the fifth tee they both had fine drives and Ogg's second shot ran to the back edge of the green while Crossley ran over. Crossley chipped back, after which Ogg approached inside but, with Crossley down with a four, Ogg missed his putt and the match was all square.

Crossley went to one up by winning the sixth after he had faded his tee shot into the trap and his opponent had hit a terrific drive down the middle of the fairway. Crossley came out of the trap well and then Ogg topped his second shot and was just short with his third. Crossley followed with a nice shot to the green and won the hole with a five when Ogg missed another putt of holable distance.

Crossley was about eight feet from the cup at the seventh with his second, with Ogg on the back edge of the green. Ogg chipped back and ran by and, as Crossley missed his putt, they halved the hole with fives.

They were both to the left of the eighth green with two, Ogg having pushed his tee shot, the ball running over the hill and across the ninth green. They made fine recoveries, however, and were down with one putt for fours.

Crossley Just Short of Green

Crossley was just short of the ninth green, but again Ogg pulled his iron shot, running over into the area by the 10th tee. His approach just made the green and he lost the hole when he failed to get down with one putt, as Crossley's chip shot left him only a three-footer for a win.

Ogg was on the 10th in two, but Crossley's second, after hitting the down slope in front of the green, ran over. He made a beautiful recovery shot only to miss his putt and lose the hole to a four.

Ogg hooked out of bounds going to the 11th, but, after putting his third shot to the right of the green, he chipped to within inches of the cup, but to no avail, as Crossley, after getting home with his second, was down in two putts for a win.

Crossley was short of the 12th green and to the left and Ogg's spoon shot ran to the back edge. Ogg was short with his approach, as was Crossley, but the latter dropped an eight-footer for a three, after which Ogg missed his and dropped to three down.

After they had halved the 13th with regulation par fives, Ogg played a long iron to the 14th green, which was almost hole high and about 10 feet from the

PHILLY RIVALS FOR BATTING HONORS

FRANK "LEFTY" O'DOUL, Philly left fielder, National League batting champion last year, has a fight on his hands to repeat this season. His most dangerous rival is his team mate, Chuck Klein. O'Doul is now hitting for .401.

CHUCK KLEIN, who patrols right field for the Phillies, has a narrow lead over O'Doul in the race for National League honors. Klein is hitting at a .412 clip at present. Both hope to boost their averages in the series with the Braves.

AROUND THE CIRCUIT

by BILL CONNELL

Carl Hubbell and large Fred Fitzsimmons, two of John McGraw's pitchers on whom he depended a lot at the start of this season, seem to have returned to their real form for the first time in the current campaign.

They have pitched fine ball in their last few starts, and should be able to turn in their share of wins from now on.

The return to form of this pair may mean a great deal to the Giants right now. Elliott, Luque, Vance and Phelps of the Robins' strong mound staff are all on the injured list.

Minus the services of their best pitchers, with the Cubs threatening and the Giants ready to hit a winning stride, the outlook of the Robins is bad at the moment. Once the Robins drop below the Cubs, they might have a difficult time keeping ahead of the Giants or regaining the lead again, especially as Rogers Hornsby is liable to step back into the lineup of the Chicago team any day.

Several days ago the Robins seemed secure at the top of the circuit. Then came a few injuries and the possibilities of the race are changed overnight.

Larry Sutton, veteran baseball scout of the Robins, has just celebrated his 72nd birthday. He has been connected with baseball in jobs which ranged from that of program boy to president of the Newark club of the International League.

Among the players discovered by Sutton are: Dazzy Vance, Del Bissonette, Howard Ehmke, Charley Hargreaves, Red Smith, Casey Stengel and Leon Cadore.

Business has been good for most of the big league teams this year, despite the failure of a flock of minor organizations. There are no figures given out by the magnates, but it is estimated that the Braves, Red Sox, Cubs, Robins, Giants, Yankees, Senators and Athletics will make money.

Sunday ball should at least take the Red Sox out of the red. The Braves have been drawing well during the week, as well as Sundays, and are liable to profit.

The Cards and Browns, Pirates, Phillies and White Sox have attracted poor crowds at home and can hardly make any money this year. The Reds have been drawing better with Dan Howley of Weymouth at the helm, as he gives the fans a good run for their money.

The Tigers and Indians are doubtful quantities but they will probably break even for the year.

Bill Dickey, young catcher of the Yanks, is giving Mickey Cochrane of the A's a lot of competition in the scramble for the hitting laurels in the league. Dickey is close to the Mack's star all the time.

The Yankee backstop is only in big league ball for a couple of years yet he can challenge one of the best of all the catchers. In another year, the tide may turn in favor of Dickey and Cochrane is likely to have to fight to hold his place as the king of the American League catchers.

CARNERA CAN STAY TILL 1931

Washington, Aug. 2 (INS)—Primo Carnera, the giant Italian pugilist who has been flooring a long list of battlers in various sections of the country for the last six months or so, today was granted an extension of his stay in this country.

The immigration bureau's board of review of the Labor Department, which yesterday heard Carnera's plea that he be given time additional to his visitor's permit, now expired, decided he can remain in the Uited States and continue his prize-fighting engagements until December 31, this year.

The original permit, given to all visiting artists, specifically stated that he must return to Italy at the expiration of six months. This period expired a few weeks ago and Carnera was notified that he must return to his native country.

A's May Play Sunday Ball in Camden, N. J.

Philadelphia, Aug. 2—The management of the world's champion Philadelphia Athletics is considering a proposition to play Sunday baseball in Camden, N. J. Sunday games are prohibited in this city.

This plan was revealed by Charles S. Gartling, counsel for the baseball club, upon his return from Atlantic City, where he discussed the question with John D. Shibe, vice president of the Athletics.

British Tennis Stars Sail for New York

Southampton, England, Aug. 2 (AP)—Five British tennis players sailed on the Mauretania today to participate in the American championships.

The party consisted of Betty Nuthall, her brother, Jimmy, and three men designated as official representatives of the British Lawn Tennis Association—F. J. Perry, H. G. N. Lee and J. S. Olliff. L. A. Godfree, captain and manager of the delegation, will sail later.

GOV. ALLEN ATTENDS OPENING OF NATIONAL REGATTA ON CHARLES

HAVE TAKEN 4 OF 6 TITLE EVENTS

By GEORGE GRIMM.

Philadelphia oarsmen are favored to capture the lion's share of honors in the 58th annual regatta under the auspices of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen, which will be concluded today on the Charles river.

The Philadelphia oarsmen won four out of six title events on the opening day, took three second places and four third places. In the racing today the Quaker City contingent is strongly represented and promises to repeat its victories of the opening day.

This colorful water carnival is one of the many sporting events in the celebration of Boston's 300th birthday. Governor Frank G. Allen and his aides watched the opening day's races from a special launch.

Emmanuel J. McGreal, stroke, and W. E. Garrett Gilmore, bow, competing for the Bachelor's Barge Club of Philadelphia, won the feature race of the day, the senior double sculls, by a length and a half from the Undine Barge Club pair who finished second.

Boston's representatives, the Cassecy brothers, Gerry and Tony, were lost in the wake and finished last. They were representing the Union Boat Club.

The New York Athletic Club sweepswingers won the final event of the day, the intermediate eight-oared shells, by two lengths over the South Side Boat Club from Quincy, Ill. West Lynn Boat Club of West Lynn, Mass., was third.

W. A. O'Connor, bow; P. N. Troshkin, 2; F. W. Mall, 3; F. L. Lawrence, 4; R. C. Short, 5; W. M. Elliott, 6; J. H. Parker, 7; R. G. Holman, 8, and J. G. Domenach, coxswain, were in the boat that carried a victory for the N. Y. A. C.

Tom Clark, one of the famous rowing twins from Philadelphia, won the senior 145-pound single sculls from Leslie Guy Haines of the Union Boat Club by two and one-half lengths. Clark stepped out into the lead and wasn't headed.

Two Disqualified in Singles Sculls Event

William G. Miller of the Bachelor's Barge Club, Philadelphia, and Jerry Shea, St. Alphonsus Boat Club, Boston, finished one, two, in the association single sculls event, but both were disqualified by the officials. Miller went on the wrong side of the finish boat, while Jerry Shea went under the wrong arch.

Consequently Leo B. Menne of the Nassau Boat Club, New York, third place winner, was awarded the first place, with A. B. Vogt, Penn A. C., second, and A. O. Wirth of the Viking Rowing Club, New York, third. Jack Crooks didn't start.

Miss Delna Carlstrom of the Worcester Boat Club, well known swimmer, won the first event of the day, an extra, the one-quarter mile single sculls for ladies. Miss Carlstrom won by four lengths from Miss Marshall Tate of the Shawmut Boat Club, South Boston, and thereby took the trophy that would probably be highly cherished by any young lady the nation over, the Rudy Vallee Cup.

Miss Singer's 172 Wins Maine Title

Waterville, Me., Aug. 2—Displaying the same smooth form as in the opening day, Miss Catherine Singer of Poland Spring won the Maine medal championship for the second time here yesterday, by shooting an 87 for a total of 172 for the 36 holes.

While Miss Singer played steady golf she was not as brilliant as on Thursday, although she beat out her nearest rival, Miss Dorothy Richards of Bangor by eight strokes. Her driving was the feature of her play.

Wareham Defeats Chatham by 2 to 0

Wareham, Aug. 2—Krepps' brilliant pitching enabled Wareham to set down the Chatham league leaders by a 2-to-0 score. Krepps kept his hits scattered and Wareham's batting in the pinches put the game on ice.

Joseph Zaloudek, Omaha, Neb., clerk, won $24,000 on the English Derby, and had never seen a horse race or bet on one before.

Boy "Houdini" in Revere Swim Meet

Ted Proctor, six-year-old swimmer, will give an exhibition next Wednesday night at the Nautical Pool at Revere, as part of the Boston Swimming Association meet.

The youngster swims with his hands and feet, tied and does other difficult stunts in the water. His appearance will be one of the features of the meet.

BRITISH PONIES SAIL FOR U. S.

London, Aug. 2 (AP)—Britain's stud of polo ponies which will participate in the matches for the Westchester cup in September, sailed from Tilbury this morning on the liner Minnetonka.

Forty-one of the mounts were bought for the team and 13 are owned by players or were lent for the international challenge matches.

Capt. Maurice Kingscote, the official horsemaster appointed by the Hurlingham Club last summer, said before he sailed with the ponies that they probably were the best lot of mounts ever gotten together. He said that Great Britain had a good chance to regain the Westchester cup.

All the horses were in excellent condition. For the trans-Atlantic trip each has a separate stabling and will have as much care and attention as the richest occupant of the royal suites in Atlantic liners.

Gerald Balding, who played consistently well at No. 2 in all trial matches sailed for America at the same time on the Mauretania. The six other British international players—Tremayne, Lacey, Pat Roark, Aidan Roark, George and Guiness—will sail next Saturday.

SUES LEAGUE FOR $10,000

Los Angeles, Aug. 2 (AP)—"Buzz" Arlett, Oakland outfielder, has expressed his determination to collect if possible $10,000 to assuage the pain suffered from the wallop of a mask-swinging umpire.

Arlett last night announced he had instructed his attorney to bring suit against the Coast League for that sum.

During an argument over a decision in a recent game, Umpire Chet Chadbourne struck the outfielder over the head with a mask. The decision of President Harry Williams, upholding Chadbourne, Arlett claims, broke up a deal whereby the player would have been sent to the Brooklyn club of the National League.

The damage will be sought, the player said, because of failure of the deal.

Dorchester Beats Roslindale, 11 to 2

GAMES TODAY

Malden at St. John (two games).
Dorchester at Portland.

Dorchester swamped Roslindale, 11 to 2, in the only game played in the Boston Twilight league last night, at Town field, Dorchester.

Dorchester bombarded Hugh McNulty for 15 hits, including a home run and eight doubles, Punk McDonald leading the attack with two doubles and a single. Norman Sims held Roslindale to five hits.

Boston & Albany Loses

Immaculate Conception C. C. of Cambridge routed Boston & Albany baseball team, 9 to 0, at Smith field, Brighton, last night. Lawson held the visitors to three scattered hits and Burbul knocked out a home run with two men on in the sixth.

New Haven Seeks Receivership

New Haven, Ct., Aug. 2 (AP)—An application for receivership will be filed by the board of directors of the New Haven Baseball Exhibition Co., owners of the recently disbanded Eastern League team.

At a meeting last night attended by President George M. Weiss it was explained that the financial affairs of the company were so badly involved that only a receiver could untangle them.

Lack of attendance at games was given as the reason for withdrawing the Profs from the circuit two weeks ago.

Hakoah Soccer Team Can Re-enter U. S.

Fall River, Aug. 2—The Hakoah Football Club of New York, now on a South American trip, will be allowed to re-enter this country through the efforts of Congressman Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of this district. An attempt had been made to prevent the Hakoah players from coming back here on the ground that there are enough players here without importing others.

SOMERVILLE TO PLAY MT. HOPE

The Somerville City Club's rush to the front in the Hub Twi League second half race is expected to put on speed this afternoon when Somerville entertains the Mt. Hope team.

Mt. Hope also aspires to cop the second half bunting and has been making it disagreeable for the opposition all along the line. This clash between the City Club and Mt. Hope will start at 3 o'clock at Lincoln Park.

Joe King, former Lynn N. E. League twirler will be on the mound and Ray Ahern, former Springfield catcher in the Eastern League, will do the backstopping.

All eight teams are in action tomorrow with Newton attempting to cut down Allston in a clash at Upper Falls, Newton with Mt. Hope taking on the rival Hyde Parkers at Healy Field, Roslindale, Revere and the St. Augustines of South Boston will play at Curtis Park, and Somerville plays at home again in Lincoln Park against Jamaica Plain.

Tolley and Tailer Win at Newport

Tommie Tailer, State amateur champion, became a semifinalist by defeating P. S. S. Randolph, New York, 8 and 6. Tailer will oppose Richard Chapman, Greenwich, Ct., Eastern intercollegiate champion, who defeated Harry Bingham, New York, 5 and 4.

Falmouth Winner Over Harwich, 5-3

Falmouth, Aug. 2—Ferguson's two-base hit, bringing in Clancy and scoring the winning run for Falmouth, was the feature of the victory over Harwich, 5 to 3.

Falmouth led to the ninth, when O'Connell scored on Schriver's walk and Cahoon's sacrifice. Clancy kept the visitors down to four hits.

Notes of the Sandlots

The William J. Madden Club will play the City Club of Everett at the Connelly playground, Marcella st., tomorrow afternoon, the game starting at three o'clock.

Flavin will pitch for the Maddens with Corrigan behind the bat. One of the best of the Roxbury nine is Bill Boehner, former B. C. H. and present Boston College boy, who plays a slashing game at first base and is a high-averaging hitter.

The Cantab Cubs will entertain the Mayor Cassasa Club nine of Revere at the Russell Hoyt Field tomorrow afternoon. Monday night the Cubs meet the Cambridge Catholic Club in the second of a three-game series for the city title.

Maloney or Kargain will pitch against the Revere nine while Ben Anderson will be saved for Monday night's game with the Catholic Club. Westberg will do the catching in both contests.

"Punk" McDonald of Dorchester Twi team and the Lynn Cornets will pitch for the Dover City Club of Dover, N. H., when they play the Grenada Shoe nine of Haverhill, one of the stronger semipro nines, tomorrow afternoon at Dover.

Providence baseball fans get a big attraction tomorrow when the House of David and Philadelphia Colored Giants baseball teams meet in a doubleheader at Kingsley Park. This is one of the finest semipro bills of the season and fans will come from all sections to witness the twin bill.

Upper Falls Loses to Jamaica, 8 to 5

Jamaica Plain Board of Trade defeated Newton Upper Falls, 8 to 5, the Hopedales of Allston trounced the St. Augustines of South Boston, and Revere and Mt. Hope battled to a 2-2 tie in the Hub Twilight League last night.

Finals in Wyntenuck Tournament Today

Great Barrington, Aug. 2 — The third day of the Wyntenuck golf tournament brought the finals in all divisions, except the first 16, which will be a 36-hole contest today. W. Prince Smith and Kimball Salisbury of the Pittsfield Club will contest for the cup.

The feature match between Kimball Salisbury and Edward Cobden of Apawannis Club, Rye, N. Y., ended in Cobden's defeat on the final green. Dan England of Pittsfield, the medalist, won the final in the beaten eight first division.

General Electric Defeats St. Pius

General Electric baseball team defeated St. Pius, 4 to 2, at Memorial park to maintain its perch on the top roost of the Lynn Knights of Columbus Twilight League last night.

The other league leaders held their positions. Markson Brothers profited by errors and shut out Lynn Gas & Electric, 7 to 0, at Curtin park. Standards defeated Joyce Brothers, 7 to 3, with a sixth-inning rally that netted as many runs, at Barry park.

Hyannis Defeats Orleans on Cape, 7-5

Orleans, Aug. 2—Hyannis defeated Orleans, 7 to 5, in a Cape Cod league game here.

Whaley led the offense with four hits. Creedon, Quinlan and Moncewicz were close behind with three apiece, while Pilski had two out of two times at bat.

JAQUES CUP MEDALISTS DEFEATED

Billy Chick and Walter Carl, the Country Club duo, who won the medal honors in the annual Jaques Memorial four ball, best ball tournament on the Brookline links, were eliminated in the second session of match play by Doten of Wellesley and his mate, Partridge of Crow Point.

Merwin and Baldwin Beat Lynch and Hutton

The medalists failed to flash the brilliance of the day previous when they led the field with a 69 in the qualifying round. Chick seemed to display his customary type of steady game, but on the holes where he needed help from his clubmate, the latter seemed to choke up.

The defeat of the popular Carl and Chick team was more or less of an upset as it had been figured after the qualifying round that they would go all the way through to the semi-finals at least.

Chick and Carl came through the morning match in fine style, defeating Rowen and Hartigan of Hatherly with comparative ease by the score of 5 and 4.

Chet Rich and Francis Hersey of Wellesley, winners of the Jaques trophy last year, managed to survive both of the sessions in yesterday's play. Last year's champs put out Bill Faversham and Mike Cody of Concord in the morning round in a very handy fashion, play concluding at the 11th hole when the winners were six up on the representatives of the historically famous town.

They were pitted against a pair of Walters from Waltham, Faivey and Barrows, and came out on top with the score reading 3 and 2.

Clark Hodder, the former Harvard hockey and links star, and Emery Stratton, of Brae Burn, exhibited some fancy shooting in both rounds of play, eliminating Coker and Rockwell of Monoosnock, 4 and 3, and taking the measure of Win Hersey of Wellesley and Cobb of Hatherly in the afternoon session with five up and three to go.

The Concord boys, John Merwin, former Harvard star, and Jimmy Baldwin, of Yale, the snappy combination that took medal honors at Winchester, eliminated a dangerous set in the second round when they pitched smiling Joe Lynch and Bob Hutton out of the field to the tune of two and one. In the opening round of match play they took Mason of the Country Club and his mate Pierson of Montclair, N. J., by a single stroke. It was the second close shave that the Merwin-Baldwin team has had in the tournament as they were tied for a qualifying place in the medal play and were forced to fight it out in a death hole with five other teams for five qualifying places.

During the afternoon matches were held among the beaten eights of the morning round.

Champion Loses Fifteenth Hole

A trapped second shot cost the new champion the 15th hole, for Ogg, after being on the edge of the green in two, hit the back of the cup with his chip shot for an easy four, while Crossley, after getting out of the trap nicely, missed his putt.

Ogg played his best shot of the day to th e16th green, where he put a mashie five feet to the left of the cup. Crossley's iron was strong and went to the back edge of the green, but he laid it dead for a three and got his half when Ogg's putt slipped by the cup.

They were both on the 17th, with two, Ogg about a foot away. He made a fine try to get down with one putt, but again his ball slipped by the cup and, when Crossley got down with two putts, the match was all over and a new champion, Wilfred Crossley, was in possession of the new title which has been in custody of Bill Donnelly for the past year.

LONDON PRIZE RING RULES ALLOWED BARE KNUCKLE FIGHTING; BITING BARRED

By JACK CONWAY

John L. Sullivan fought some of his greatest ring battles under the famous London Prize Ring Rules.

These rules governed the conduct of boxing until the Marquis of Queensberry rules were adopted.

Those were the days of bare knuckle fights. Stripped to the waist, their feet protected by spiked shoes which gripped the hard turf, Sullivan and other ring heroes of his day fought gallantly until one of the principals was crushed in defeat.

Jack Conway

Rounds did not end until there was a knockdown. A 30-second rest period was then allowed.

Under London Prize Ring Rules you could lift your opponent over your shoulder and hurl him to the turf.

Even those easy-going rules had their restrictions. One was not allowed to inflict injury by gouging, tearing the flesh with the fingers or nails or by biting.

When the Marquis of Queensberry rules went into effect, Sullivan was a leader in adopting them. John L. had tired of getting into legal complications following his bare-knuckle battles.

I have secured a copy of the London Prize Ring rules. They clear up many disputes between boxing fans as to just how the game was formerly governed. Here is an exact copy of the rules:

LONDON RING RULES

1—That the ring shall be made on turf and shall be four-and-twenty feet square formed of eight stakes and ropes, the latter extending in double lines, the uppermost line being four feet from the ground, and the lower two feet from the ground. That in the center of the ring a mark be formed to be termed a scratch.

2—That each man shall be attended by two seconds and a bottle-holder. That the combatants, on shaking hands, shall retire until the seconds of each have tossed for choice of position, which adjusted, the winner shall choose his corner according to the state of wind or sun, and conduct his man thereto, the losing taking the opposite diagonal corner.

3—That each man shall be provided with a handkerchief of a color suitable to his own fancy, and that the seconds shall entwine these handkerchiefs at the upper end of one of the center stakes. That these handkerchiefs shall be called "colors" and that the winner of the battle at its conclusion shall be entitled to their possession as the trophy of victory.

4—The two umpires shall be chosen by the seconds or backers to watch the progress of the battle and take exception to any breach of the rules hereafter stated. That a referee shall be chosen by the umpires, unless otherwise agreed on, to whom all disputes shall be referred; and that the decision of this referee, shall be final and strictly binding on all parties whether as to the matter in dispute or the issue of the battle. That the referee shall be provided with a watch for the purpose of calling time; the call of that referee only to be attended to and no other person whatever shall interfere in calling time. That the referee shall withhold all opinion till appealed to by the umpires, and that the umpires strictly abide by his decision without dispute.

SPIKES IN SHOES

5—That, on the men being stripped, it shall be the duty of the seconds to examine their equipment, and if any objection arises as to insertion of improper substances therein they shall appeal to their umpires who, with the concurrence of the referee, shall direct what alteration shall be made.

6—That the spikes in the fighting boots shall be confined to three in number, which shall not exceed three-eights on an inch from the sole of the boot, and shall not be less than one-eight on an inch broad at the point; two to be placed in the broadest part of the sole and one in the heel; and that in the event of a man's wearing any other spiked, either in the toes or elsewhere he shall be compelled to either remove them or provide other boots properly spiked, the penalty for refusing to be a loss of the stakes.

7—That both men being ready, each shall be conducted to that side of the scratch next his corner previously chosen; and the seconds on the one side and the men on the other having shaken hands, the former shall immediately leave the ring, and there remain till the round is finished, on no pretense whatever approaching their principals during the round without permission from the referee. Then penalty to be the loss of the battle to the offending parties.

8—That at the conclusion of the round, when one or both of the men shall be down, the seconds shall step into the ring and carry or conduct their principal to his corner, there offering him the necessary assistance, and that no person whatever be permitted to interfere in this duty.

9—That on the expiration of 30 seconds, the referee shall call "time," upon which each man shall rise from the knee of his second and walk to his own side of the scratch unaided, the seconds immediately leaving the ring. The penalty for either of them remaining eight seconds after the call of "time" to be the loss of the battle to his principal; and that either man failing to be at the scratch within eight seconds shall be deemed to have lost the battle.

10—That on no consideration whatever shall any person except the seconds or the referee be permitted to enter the ring during the battle, nor till it shall have been concluded; and that in the event of such unfair practice, or the ropes or stakes being disturbed or removed, it shall be in the power of the referee to award the victory to that man who, in his honest opinion, shall have the best of the contest.

DUTIES OF SECONDS

11—That the seconds shall not interfere, advise, or direct the adversary of their principal, and shall refrain from all offensive and irritating expressions, in all respects conducting themselves with order and decorum, and confine themselves to the diligent and careful discharge of their duties to their principals.

12—That, in picking up their man, should the seconds wilfully injure the antagonist of their principal, the latter shall be deemed to have forfeited the battle on the decision of the referee.

13—That it shall be a fair "stand-up fight" and if either man shall wilfully throw himself down without receiving a blow WHETHER BLOWS SHALL HAVE PREVIOUSLY BEEN EXCHANGED OR NOT, he shall be deemed to have lost the battle; but that this rule shall not apply to a man who in a close slips down from the grasp of his opponent to avoid punishment from obvious accident or weakness.

14—That butting with the head shall be deemed foul, and the party resorting to this practice shall be deemed to have lost the battle.

15—That a blow struck when a man is thrown or down shall be deemed foul; providing always that, when in such position, the man so down shall not himself strike or attempt to strike.

16—That a blow struck below the waistband shall be deemed foul, and that in a close, seizing an antagonist below the waist, by the thigh or otherwise, shall be deemed foul.

17—That all attempts to inflict injury by gouging or tearing the flesh with the fingers or nails, and biting, shall be deemed foul.

18—That kicking or deliberately falling on an antagonist with the knees or otherwise when down, shall be deemed foul.

19—That all bets shall be paid as the battle money, after the fight is awarded.

21—That due notice shall be given the stakeholder of the day and place where the money is to be given up, and that he be exonerated from all responsibility upon obeying the direction of the referee; that all parties be strictly bound by these rules, and that in future all articles of agreement for a contest be entered into with a strict and willing adherence to the letter and the spirit of these rules.

Notamenace First in Duxbury Sail

Duxbury, Aug. 2—Notamenace, owned by H. and G. Coffin, sailed home a winner in the first leg of the junior race held here. Twelve boats started the race, which was a run to Powder Point in a light easterly wind. Barbara Glidden's Gosling crossed the finish line first but was disqualified for forcing Charles Eaton's Scooter to alter her course to avoid fouling the Goblin.

B. B. Moguls Should Cater to Kids, Not Fair Sex

By DAMON RUNYON.

New York, Aug. 2 (INS)—I note in the public prints that all is not well with our former national obsession, to wit, baseball. I sense a feeling of alarm over its future. A whither-are-we-drifting feeling. The same sort of feeling that has prevailed at intervals about baseball since the first player opened his mouth to emit a squawk at the umpires.

They are introducing ladies' day on a considerable scale throughout the baseball land, even in the big leagues, in the hope of drawing the attendance of the gals.

I may be wrong, but it seems to me the fair sex is less essential to the pastime than the small boys, and the baseballers would be wiser if they went after the adolescent trade rather than the adults.

You must bend your baseball twig early to incline the bough to the game. I mean to say you make a client by catching him very young, and educating him to baseball fanaticism because if you wait until he is older he may realize that he is wasting a lot of valuable time in a baseball orchard.

When they put the big league bleachers beyond the price of the kids, they started in to lose their clients. They shut off the source of supply.

I thought an editorial writer recently sized up the situation pretty well when he suggested that one thing the matter with baseball is the fact that it hasn't materially changed in over 40 years, and that no institution will stand that long without change in this country, and retain its hold on the public.

But I am not inclined to view the baseball situation with the same alarm as some other viewers. No matter how small the present day crowds in the big yards, they are not half as small as the crowds of years back.

It is only natural that the game suffers a general slump in interest now and then. But there is a new generation of fans coming on practically every year, and the pendulum always swings back.

They are trying night baseball by way of standing off the competition of the midget golf courses, and the movies, and what not. Perhaps I should say they are trying it again. Y'ars and y'ars and y'ars ago they tried night baseball in several different spots, just as they tried night hoss racing and night football, but artificial illumination wasn't as far advanced as in these nights, so the experiment wasn't a howling success.

Yet I see no reason why night baseball shouldn't succeed now. Those of us who do not care for midget golf, or the movies, have got to have something to take the place of the night clubs. Yes, I know you are going to suggest sleep, but what if a man is troubled with insomnia?

Football Is Big Game Today

Football is today the big game of the country. It achieved its popularity when the rule makers made the changes that brought in the forward pass, and the other features of the open game. Numbering the players was another long step forward in the affection of the proletariat.

Today the ladies and gents can watch a football game understandingly where it used to be a great mystery, even to the players. The football season is brief, which is another attractive feature, and it is one game that is 100 per cent on-the-level, and 100 per cent above suspicion in the minds of the observers.

Doyle and Santo in Lynn Ring Bout

An attractive fighting card is listed at the General Electric Field, Lynn, Monday night. Matchmaker Lou Penney has arranged a lightweight match between Mossy Doyle of Ireland and Patsey Santo, popular Revere lightweight, to be the headliner of 10 rounds. The two boys are evenly matched and should provide North Shore fans with a slashing contest.

Surette and Linaire in Somerville Show

From all indications, the light-heavyweight division of the amateur boxing tournament under the auspices of the City Employes' A. A., on Tuesday evening, at Dilboy Field, West Somerville, will contain eight of the best boys in Greater Boston.

The outstanding entrants appear to be Henry Surette, former Leominster high school star, and Chester Linaire of West Medford. However, these lads will receive plenty of competition from the following: Donald Perry, Newburyport; Eddie O'Hara, Roxbury; Frank Wilson, Everett; Bobbie Wright, Quincy, and Alfred Goguen, Fitchburg.

NBC PLANS INTERNATIONAL BROADCASTS

WEEI and WBZA Hear Many English Programs This Month

At least seven programs consisting of dance music, orchestral concerts, special groups and a military review have been included in the series of short-wave relays, which NBC will attempt to pick up from England during the month of August.

The first broadcast was scheduled to open today over the WJZ chain, including WBZA, but atmospheric conditions have caused a postponement. However, an orchestral concert from Manchester, Eng., has been scheduled for the period, 5:00 to 5:30 p. m., August 4. The next day an NBC-WEAF network will hear the picturesque spectacle of the Tidworth Tattoo, a military ceremony from 6:00 to 6:30 p. m. The subsequent four relays in the August schedule will be in the nature of a series over a WJZ network.

All of the programs which have been arranged by the NBC in conjunction with the British Broadcasting Corporation will be heard during the hours of late afternoon, as engineers find interference at a minimum during this period.

Arlington Tax Rate Increases 40 Cents

The tax rate for Arlington this year has just been determined by the board of assessors at $30.40 on each $1000, it was announced today. This is an increase of 40 cents over last year's rate. Because of heavy town expenditures a higher rate had been anticipated by the town's finance committee, but a healthy gain in the town's assessed valuation nearly offset the large town grant and other expenses.

The town now has a total assessed valuation of $60,917,100, which is an increase of $2,389,650 over last year.

Concerning Radio

Edited by BILL WHIPPLE

Not the least of the interesting broadcasts which are coming over the air this summer, are the detective melodramas broadcast each Monday night by the National Broadcasting Co., and coming through locally over WBZ-WBZA. The New York city police department, representing a standing army of 19,000 men, is the chief contributor of plots and material for this crime prevention propaganda.

Arthur B. Reeve, noted writer of detective fiction, and Finis Farr, NBC continuity writer, are co-authors of these dramas. Before beginning the series these two writers took an intensive course of training at police headquarters under the tutelege of the department's most astute and experienced detectives. And now that the program is in full swing the authors and the actors keep in contact with headquarters, frequently attend the morning's lineups there, and a member of the department is making a search through the police archives for more material.

The Crime Prevention series was conceived, not as a radio entertainment, but to show how crime is prevented and to acquaint the layman with police methods of defending society against the machinations of tricksters, racketeers and other criminals.

A broadcast of this kind—it really is educational—is a splendid thing and undoubtedly will be valuable to many who are listening to it. And it is highly entertaining. More than we can possibly foresee is radio to become a most important factor in not only a better understanding between different nations, but in spreadig knowledge and instructive propaganda among our own people.

It is very evident that the Columbia System is not going to allow its artists and announcers suffer with the heat this summer. And you, gentle reader, can't imagine how hot those studios can be. Of necessity, the studios, large or small, must be closed tight to prevent outside sounds from interfering with the broadcasts, and when there is even a little humidity and no draft of any kind to fan one, it is awful.

Up on the roof, where Columbia holds forth, they have installed a cooling and ventilating plant which covers 2500 square feet, while the ice plant and the remainder of the air devices fill a large area in the sub-basement. And so complicated and large is this system that it takes three men constantly on duty to operate the plant.

This radio broadcasting business certainly has come a long ways in the past couple of years.

If the following letter, received in our mail today, comes to the attention of any big-hearted program director, will he be kind enough to look around his studio and see if he can find a place for this young lady. We suggest, though, that she wait until television becomes practicable.

Dear Mr. Whipple: I wonder if you can help me. I am very anxious to get into the broadcasting business, but do not know anyone whom I may get to assist me. I am a young lady, 20 years old, have large expressive brown eyes, good color and skin and natural wavy hair. Unfortunately I cannot sing, but I play the drums beautifully. Will you be good enough to see if you can help me.

Thanks a Lot.

BEAUTY AND THE BEAT

George MacKinnon, creator of the Wisdom Box, makes a temporary shift tomorrow night when he slides from humor to drama over WLOE at 6:30. He presents the second of a series of adaptations from Faith Baldwin's novel, "Alimony." MacKinnon will be assisted by Alyce Siemens, well known to air listeners for her tour and travel talks over WHDH. Musical offerings are by Charlie Barrett and his Manchester, N. H., orchestra.

A strictly modern orchestra, playing strictly ancient tunes is the combination over WBZA tonight at 7:30. The Fuller program presents the fanciful favorites of 1910, such as "Oh, You Beautiful Doll," "Play That Barbershop Chord," and "What's the Matter with Father?" and then will gradually lead up to more recent times when they play "Who," "Rain," "Mean to Me," "Pagan Love Song" and "Weary River."

For the first time in four years, that master of melody, Jack Denny, will be heard by local listeners. Over the CBS chain, heard locally through WNAC, Denny and his Mount Royal Orchestra will play 45 minutes of dance music from Montreal, beginning at 7:15. Denny, one of the outstanding orchestra leaders of today, first reached fame over the radio for years ago, when with Ted Husing as his official commentator, he broadcast the Dance Marathon programs.

Get out the family album, look back more years than you care to admit, and then recall the days you used to blend your voice to the cabinet organ in singing "Ben Bolt," "When You and I Were Young Maggie," "Listen to the Mocking Bird" and even "Auld Lang Syne." And then, if you still have courage, turn to

WHEN NIGHTS WERE "BOLT"
SWEET ALICE

WEEI tonight, at 9:30, and hear Arthur Pryor and his band play these selections on the General Electric program. Floyd Gibbons, completely recovered from his attack of laryngitis, returns to the air with renewed vigor and previous speed in his talk which supplements the musical program.

Now that the furore and the effervescence have disappeared and the Show Boat birthday is a thing of the past, Hank Simmons digs into the files of 25 years ago and produces a thing called "Back Among the Old Folks." This is a four-act rural comedy by Charles P. Rice, which deals with a sneering villain, and innocent but wronged hero, and a village queen, who waits for her lover until his blemished name is cleared of a black charge of robbery. "Don't sell the homestead," and "As ye sow, so shall ye reap" are typical lines of the play.

RADIO Personalities

Henry Ford made his much ballyhooed speech the other day and it took him exactly 24 words to do it. . . After conducting his orchestra, Billy Artz of the Henry George hour finds it necessary to relax. . . Show Boat's who's who—Harry Browne played Rev. Morrel in Shaw's "Candida," Jane McGraw made her stage debut at the age of 2; Elsie May Gordon was a Chautauqua belle, Brad Sutton was a stage ventriloquist; Lawrence Grattan wrote the gossipy sexy Harry Swan played 13 characters in one radio show, and Happy Jack Lewis is another who became an actor at the age of 2. . . Muriel Pollack, one of the lady bugs receives an average of ten proposals a week from radio listeners. . . Phil Cook not only enacts about a dozen voices over WBZA nightly but writes every line of his skits, composes all the music to his songs and writes the words. He plays the ukulele, guitar and violin, and can get up a portrait for a magazine cover in 24 hours' notice. . . Ray Knight's favorite wise crack is, "I'm too busy to be ambitious." . . Countess Olga Albani hopes to go to Cuba to visit her folks there. . . Norman Brokenshire is spending his vacation in New York's air cooled theaters.

Betsy Talks of Landing 'Her Man'

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Judith Archer is a country school teacher, 22, and good looking. She wants to be a college professor, while her mother would like her to go in the movies. But Judy lived a double life. She becomes interested in the story of a jewel robbery in London. She goes to New York and calls on Cap'n Charley Marceau. He suggests Judy and her mother take a trip with him. Judy returns home and on a spring evening takes a walk with Roy Varman, principal of her school. He kisses her—her first kiss. It enrages Judy, but also opens a new line of thought. She takes passage on Capt. Charley's ship for her mother and herself and draws all her money from the bank. Judy finds herself looking for the radio operator with the sea-green eyes—but he does not remember her.

CHAPTER 10

Betsy Rowe's stateroom was the tiniest on all the ship. And the darkest. It was tucked away at the corner of an inner tier of cabins, and the steward used it as a catch-all for his brooms and dust mops most voyages, since even the most thrifty of vacationists usually refused it.

But the room suited Betsy.

"Got it for a song," she told July. "What do I care where I sleep? A live girl's never in her cabin unless she's asleep. Besides, I had other uses for my nickles and dimes. Sit down, Ju—over there on the bed—till I show you."

There was nowhere to sit but on the bed. Clothes were scattered everywhere; the wash basin and the one chair was piled with powder boxes, rouge boxes, perfume bottles, brushes, combs — everything.

Try Things On
In Tiny Stateroom

Betsy began to try things on. She would scoop up a lovely fragile gown from the floor, slide it over her head, go undulating like a mannikin in the narrow space beside the bed.

"Like it, Ju? Cost a pretty penny, I'm telling you. This ought to knock 'em for a row of painted totem poles!"

Frills thin, whispy drapings; delicate silks. Pert little impractical sports things designed for anything but sports. Shoes which might have stepped from magazine ads. Frenchy, slanted hats.

Judy thrilled a little, envied a little.

"Nothing suitable for a sea trip, Betsy. What in the world will you do if it storms?"

Betsy perched on the edge of the berth and swung long, unstockinged legs in high-heeled green slippers and puffed smoke rings at the skylight.

"If it storms I'll be cuddled in some warm corner wrapping myself around a high ball, dearie. Who cares for 'suitable' clothes? No girl ever caught a handsome man with 'suitable' clothes."

"Is that what you came for? To catch a man? I expect you're just being smarty."

How Men Propose

"You burn me up, Ju. A husband—the right one. I mean—man with looks and coin and all the trimmings—is what all of us want, isn't it? Why not be honest! No sense to the mid-Victorian stuff. The coy and blushing maiden is out, old dear. She's as out as hoop skirts and men getting on their knees to propose."

How do men propose there days?"

"Oh, they have their perferences. Some grab you by the neck while you're dancing and holler above the saxophones: 'What d'y' say, baby? Shall we jazz the Lohengrin?'"

"Well, I think girls are the losers. Better drop it all—love and marriage—the whole business—than be treated like part of the evening entertainment. You're wrong, Betsy; every girl isn't stalking a husband. There are some left who don't go around using sex for a snare,

8 Gangsters Are Held for 40 Holdups

TERRORIZED MANY SMALL MERCHANTS

One Confesses Extortion as Well as Robberies; Find a Machine Gun

Arraignment in Roxbury court today of Frank O'Leary of South Boston, revealed a police round-up of eight men said to have participated in 40 holdups and several extortions, in Boston.

According to police a sub-calibre machine gun and a revolver were found in the cellar of the house where one of the men lived.

In court O'Leary pleaded not guilty to armed robbery of Meyer Wasserman, durggist, at 211 Harold st., on May 14, waived examination and was held in $25,000 for the grand jury.

The other seven were looked over for identification by shopkeepers who have been held up in the last year.

The seven were to remain at the Dudley st. station over the week-end and will be arraigned in Roxbury court Monday.

TWO OTHERS HUNTED

According to police, O'Leary has named 13 holdups, one of the victims being a brother of a member of the robber band. Of the seven men held, all but one are said to have admitted participation in holdups.

Two other men, one of them believed to have been the driver of stolen cars used by the bandits, are being sought.

O'Leary is said to have confessed not only to holdups, but also to extorting money from victims by threatening to again rob them.

He was arrested July 31 in a Dudley st. drug store which he had twice held up and which he had visited, police say, to obtain money to prevent another robbery.

IN STOLEN AUTO.

O'Leary said that autos used by the gang were either borrowed or hired, but police believe they were stolen for each job, and abandoned.

O'Leary, telling of 13 hold-ups, said one was that of a dice game at the Army Base nearly a year ago, and others at a tailor shop in Ceylon st., Roxbury; a bakery wagon in Albany st., near Union Park st.; a shoe store in Washington st., Roxbury, a hat store next door, and other stores.

East Boston Store Nets Robbers $25

The cash register in a chain store at Brooks and Falcon sts., East Boston, was robbed of $25 early today, by two men seen escaping in an automobile.

Mrs. Gladys Midget, who lives next door, told Manager C. De Veuve she heard a noise and saw the men run to an automobile parked across the street.

Girls Rush Into Swim

MERMAIDS FROM all points of New England are entering the Boston Evening American's 17th amateur swimming races for women and girls which take place in the Charles river basin on August 23. The New England A. A. A. U. one mile championship for women is one of the feature events on the program. Each entrant is limited to three events and three prizes will be given in each event.

Plans are being made for the annual garden party in aid of the Vacation House for Sickly Children, conducted at Sunset Point, Nantasket, by the Catholic Charitable Bureau. This year the affair will be held on August 16.

SUICIDE NOTE IS SEEN AS HOAX

Convinced that the "suicide" note of Frederick Dell, 45, Quincy salesman, was a hoax, Beverly police today announced they would question Mrs. Dell for possible reasons why her husband wanted to be listed a suicide.

The announcement came following the finding of Dell's auto on Woodbury's Beach with a note indicating suicide attached to the steering wheel.

A brief case and bathing suit were found close by, but police were concerned with the whereabouts of an overnight case Dell is known to have packed before leaving on a road trip.

Mrs. Dell, in her first questioning by police, said she knew of no woman motive in the sudden disappearance of her husband.

Police said she scouted the thought of suicide.

LIGHTER SUNK BY FREIGHTER

A navy lighter was sunk and the cruiser Trenton, berthed at the navy yard, was heeled over today when the freighter Anniston City, bound up the harbor, swerved from her course to avoid two other craft.

Swinging in to the navy yard the freighter reversed her engines and dropped her anchors in a desperate attempt to stop, but had too much headway and struck the lighter, which was tied up to the Trenton.

The cruiser, being overhauled at Pier 6, was heeled over to starboard, but according to naval officials was not damaged. There was no one on the lighter.

The Anniston City, owned by the U. S. Steel Products Co., had been given a right rudder to avoid being struck by a patrol boat backing out of the East Boston base, and a destroyer backing out of the yard.

The freighter's pilot took the alternative and headed in between the Trenton and Overton, but was unable to stop in time. A naval court will invcatigate.

MILE TITLE SWIM BIG EVENT ON PROGRAM

100 Girls Expected to Vie for Honors of Meet on Charles River Basin

Interest in the announcement that the 17th Boston Evening American amateur swimming races for women and girls will take place August 23 in Charles river basin, is growing steadily.

The revival of these races, which will include the New England A. A. A. U., one mile championship for women, is the American's contribution to the tercentenary celebration.

Nearly 100 mermaids are expected to enter the various contests which have been featured in past years by such champions as Gertrude Ederle, Olive Holland and Delna Carlstrom. As news of the meet, which is sanctioned by the New England A. A. A. U., is received by girl swimmers, applications are expected to pour in.

FIRST ENTRANTS

Among the first entries were those of Margaret Lynch, 17, of 10 Russell st., Cambridge; Mildred Toomey, 16, of 30 Carney st., Charlestown; Lillian Davis, 14, of 11 Burget ave., Medford, and Betty Chapman, 14, of 12 Chauncy st., Watertown.

Others are: Margaret Davis, 8, Irene Davis, 12, sisters of Lillian, and Gussie Schnabel, 16. Irene Davis was second at the Mystic Lake, Medford, meet July 27, when Lillian won the 880 title. Gussie Schnabel lives at 149 Otis st., Newtonville, and is junior mile New England champion.

LIST OF EVENTS

The events are N. E. A. A. A. U. mile championship; 880 yards free style, open; 220 yards backstroke, open; 220 yards breaststroke, open; 100 yards free style, open; 50 yards free style, open; 50 yards free style for girls under 14 years of age; 100 yards free style, novice, for girls who never won a prize in free style events, and fancy diving.

The meet will start at 2 p. m. Saturday, August 23, and entries close August 16 at 3 p. m. with H. Bradlee Fenno of the Boston Swimming Association, 60 State st., room 727, Boston; telephone, Hubbard 5427. There is no entrance fee.

BLANK PRINTED

To make sure that every prospective entrant obtains an entry form, an entry blank is printed in this edition of the Boston Evening American.

Every entrant must be a registered amateur, and registration numbers must be obtained from J. Frank Facey, 36 Prospect st., Cambridge. Each entrant is limited to three events, with three prizes for each event. For the mile swim medals will be awarded to girls finishing in places from fourth to eighth.

The public is cordially invited to attend the meet without charge, and to view the contests from the beautiful Charles River Esplanade. As usual, thrilling contests are expected in all events, and it may be that records will be broken.

Any girl who is a registered amateur and who considers herself good enough for fast company, is welcome to enter for any of the events without cost. Get your entries in early and watch the Boston Evening American for further news of the big meet.

JULY GRIM REAPER OF THEATERS

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

WITH the closing tonight of "Tattle Tales," the new dramatic season quietly disposes of its preliminary gestures. The arrival of "Tattle Tales" and "The Long Road" in sizzling July may be set aside as just another joust with tercentenary temptation, premised upon the hope that visitors from afar would give their days to Witch's Hill and other points north and south, and save their evenings for indoor recreations along the Rialto.

Nicholas Young

IN ANY EVENT, it was another noble experiment though not exactly profitable. Any contest with Boston's rising temperatures is bound to leave a few seats. "The Long Road" which might have caught the public ear in October, proved an easy victim of hot days and hotter nights. Herman Gantvoort, its sponsor, quickly sensed that the problem drama was no match for the beaches and other outdoor pastimes in July. He moved out of the Plymouth promptly at the first sign of rising mercury. "Tattle Tales" lingered, testing the fates with innovations previously unknown in legitimate houses. But not even a soft-drink bar and dancing privileges in the capacious lounge at the Wilbur could be counted as irresistible inducements to the sweltering playgoer.

IN ANOTHER WEEK, however, the town will settle down to real business in the matter of the spoken word—of lyrics and legs and lingerie. For then, you might like to know, a new edition of the "Little Show"—the second edition—will move upon the Wilbur stage and present its wares, of which there is both variety and novelty. Memories of the "Little Show" of last season, in which Messrs. Brady and Wiman struck an entirely new note in musical entertainment, yields encouragement and promise for their second hazard with the whimsical customer at the gate.

FROM the Copley Theater comes the news that Mr. E. E. Clive, now sailing the high seas, will return tomorrow from a play hunting expedition through the British Isles. This is one of Mr. Clive's regular mid-summer exercises. As he never has been known to return empty handed, it is fair to expect that the Copley's shelves will be stocked with new merchandise. The opening date has been set at Saturday, August 23, but Mr. Clive will not announce the attraction until his arrival.

JOSEPH M. GAITES, observer extraordinary for the Shuberts, dropped into the Wilbur last night to measure up "Tattle Tales" and test its possibilities as an entertainment for Broadway. The keen eye of Gaites is laid upon nearly all independent musical attractions before accepted in Shubert theaters in Manhattan. It appears likely that this revue, with a few changes, will now make its next stop in New York.

UP IN LAKEWOOD, MAINE, where the drama runs in summertime with all the fervor of Broadway in mid-season, a new play called "Western Union," by Frances Goodrich and Albert Hackett is scheduled for its first performance on Monday, August 25. Donald Meek, last seen here in "Broken Dishes," will have the principal role.

Smiles From Stage and Screen Are Tiptop Tonic for Those Midsummer Blues

SALLY BLANE

GINGER ROGERS

MISS ROGERS shows lots of pep in "The Sap from Syracuse," at the Metropolitan.

JOE LEWIS AND AL TRAHAN

MR. LEWIS AND MR. TRAHAN are rehearsing their business for their stunts in "The Second Little Show," which will have its premiere at the Wilbur, August 11, with a galaxy of stars.

BILLIE DOVE

MISS DOVE is resplendent in "Sweethearts and Wives," Keith-Albee's feature picture.

ANN HARDING

PAULINE STARKE

MISS STARKE furnishes sex appeal for "What Men Want," Park's feature picture.

JAZZY LIVING ON SCREEN

"What Men Want" is the enticing title of the feature film on the Park screen, beginning yesterday. This is another story by Warner Fabian, and is along the lines of his "Flaming Youth." In some ways it is jazzier and more daring. The story depicts the swift pace set by a young society crowd and shows their intimate revels in their apartments. The drama lies in the conflict of two sisters for the love of the same man, one of them a woman of the world, the other a young sub-debutante just out of boarding school.

Pauline Starke is Lee, the sophisticated sister. Ben Lyon plays opposite her. Barbara Kent is the younger sister. Robert Ellis is a polished clubman, Hallam Cooley has a comedy part, and Carmelita Geraghty is the leader of the night lifers.

The other feature of this Park bill is Hoot Gibson in "Trigger Tricks," all-talking western picture.

Bowdoin Sq. Bill

The Bowdoin Sq., beginning Monday, will show "The Big House." This is a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film in which prison life is depicted on a big scale with a spectacular scene in which 3000 desperate convicts fight for freedom. The stars are Wallace Beery, Chester Morris and Leila Hyams. Another picture of worth will be "Strictly Modern." Another hit will be the comedy, "Hot Dog," and several vaudeville acts in person will hold forth.

OFFSPRING IS JUST AS BIG AS MAMA

The "Second Little Show" comes to Boston for its first public performance on August 11 at the Wilbur. Like its predecessor, it will be deliberately a little show, like the Charlot productions, or the Chauve-Souris. It takes a chance on that vaunted American sense of humor, and is avowedly for the better-than-egg men. Messrs. Brady, Wiman and Weatherly, the producers argue that it is not only good art but good business to build a revue not so much for the great army of revue-goers as for the great army of playgoers.

"The Little Shows," as some say, are class. They are as intimate as a garter. Sketches, skits, and blackouts for the Second Little Show are provided, with the above ideas in mind, by such artists as Marc Connelly, Morrie Ryskind, Bob Sherwood, Newman Levy, Corey Ford and Howard Dietz. They will be performed and sung by such stars as Al Trahan, Ruth Tester, Joe Lewis, Ned Wever, Helen Gray, Davey Jones, Gloria Grafton, Joey Ray, Kathryn Hamill, Tashamira and others.

HUB TO HAVE FIRST CHOICE

Many tributes have been paid to "Death Takes a Holiday, which will inaugurate the first subscription season of the Professional Players of Boston at the Plymouth, on Oct. 6. "Death Takes a Holiday" was honored by being the first play to be endorsed by "Playchoice," a new play selection group, the theater committee of which included John Corbin, Jane Cowl, Clayton Hamilton, Donald Freeman and John Jay Cunningham, Jr.

In advising the play's producer, Lee Shubert, of the selection, John Krimsky, president of "Playchoice," wrote:

"'Playchoice' congratulates itself as well as you on the selection, by its dramatic committee, of 'Death Takes A Holiday', as the play of the month to be offered to its members.

"Here is a play superbly staged, acted, and most skilfully produced. Here is a theme that sounds the depths of human emotion and passion. 'Death' masked as Life with Love as the prize. It is reminiscent of the grandeur of ancient legends. A world-old tale in modern garb.

"We feel that 'Death Takes A Holiday' will mark a milestone in the memory of all theatergoers."

Mrs. Chevalier in Film

THE GREAT GRETA WOOED BY NEWCOMER IN FILM

Greta Garbo has her eighth sweetheart—in the films. His personality has been something of a mystery to the fans; they know his name, but had few facts about him at hand. Now it can all be told. His name, of course, is Gavin Gordon, and he is a capable actor, as his work in "Romance," opposite Miss Garbo, proves. This is the feature picture at Loew's Orpheum next week.

Gavin Gordon

Since his appearance on the screen Mr. Gordon has been a center of interest for the fans, especially the flappers. He came, unannounced. The first story about him is this: He was on the stage, and then he got a picture role. It was his for a short time, and it looked then as if he would lose the big opportunity. He was in Hollywood with a company of stock players when he was invited to make a test at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios. By chance, the test was run in a projection room in which Miss Garbo and Clarence Brown, her director, were seated. They were struck by his personality at once and sent word to the casting office to sign him for the role of the young clergyman in "Romance."

After working with Miss Garbo for three days, Mr. Gordon received a broken collar-bone in an automobile accident while on his way to the studio. For a time it looked as though he would have to be replaced, but his gameness and Miss Garbo's willingness to wait saved the coveted role for him.

Gordon is the eighth leading man to appear in pictures with Miss Garbo. He was born at Chicora, Miss., and has been on the stage for the past eight years, beginning in amateur theatricals and attaining success in such productions as "Paris," "Romeo and Juliet," "Celebrity" and "Tampico."

TYPIST JUST RIGHT TYPE

Her success as an actress is not Ann Harding's proudest boast. She has frequently said that she is quite pleased with the fact that she could earn her living by doing stenographic work if she ever decided to quit the screen.

Miss Harding, as a very young girl, rebelled against the rather circumscribed life of an army officer's daughter. When she, her mother and her sister went to New York on a visit, she obtained a job as a typist in the offices of an insurance company.

The rest of Miss Harding's career is generally known. She functioned as "reader" for Famous Players-Lasky. Then she joined the Provincetown Players. When she was selected for a leading role she resigned her commercial position, and has since progressed steadily as star of stage and screen. Miss Harding is seen in the featured role of Philip Barry's drama, "Holiday," dialogue picture on the Scollay screen next week.

Old Howard Opens Its Season in Two Weeks

The Old Howard will open its season on Monday, August 18, with "Speed Girls," with Fred Binder and Mike Sacks in charge of the fun. Mr. Sacks is a Boston boy and Mr. Binder has a host of friends in this city.

STAGE FOILS SILK TRAIL

Ronald Colman, starring in his third talking-picture, "Raffles," at Loew's State next week, has been through various stages of being an engineer, a lawyer, a merchant and a legitimate actor before he finally struck film stardom.

Born in Richmond, Surrey, England, he was educated to be an engineer, decided he didn't like it and took up law. The family was on the verge of sending him to India to manage the family silk business when he suddenly began to try his luck as an actor, with moderate success.

When the great war broke out, he enlisted in the famous London Scottish and served two years before being sent home. When well again, he went back to the stage. He was spotted by Henry King and signed for the male lead in "The White Sister."

A half-ton of explosives kept in a truck, consisting of dynamite, smoke bombs and machine gun bullets, exploded from undetermined reasons, destroying the truck and injuring William Redmond, son of Harry Redmond, explosive expert of the film company.

Young Redmond was rushed to the first aid station at First National's Burbank studio, 40 miles away from the location, and then taken to the Dickey and Cass clinic for further treatment in Los Angeles.

The accident occurred just as the star, Richard Barthelmess, was arriving on the location, which was a replica of a British air-drome near the front lines of the World War.

POWELL AIDS DIRECTORS

Professional jealousy, so much a part of many stage and screen stars, is wholly lacking in William Powell.

Powell could be credited as co-director of each of his pictures for Paramount since he, as much as the director assigned, feels responsible for the success of the film.

During the rehearsal before production of each picture, Powell makes it a point to hold impromptu, off-stage rehearsals with every player with whom he has a scene or a bit of action.

In doing this he does not presume to usurp the duties of the director. Prior to the start of each picture, Powell invariably spends days with the man who will guide the making of the story and from him gets all angles of plot development, characterization, treatment of scenes, etc.

HIT SCORED BY GOLF BALLS

Jack Oakie sleeps on his face now! This intimate secret of the irrepressible wise-cracking screen star came to light during the making "The Sap From Syracuse," now at the Metropolitan.

While on location at the South View Golf course on Long Island, Oakie was required to allow himself to be hit by a golf ball. Director A. Edward Sutherland took over the job of tossing balls at Oakie from offstage. The scene was repeated several times, and Sutherland, who at one time was an amateur baseball pitcher, became a trifle too interested in distributing the balls where they would do the most good. So Jack's back is still very sore.

FOOTLIGHTS PASS BABY TO FILMS

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

DIFFERENTLY GARBED, and yet, essentially the same old friend, "Little Accident" has come to town again. It made thousands laugh during its long run at the Plymouth last season. It was a stage success, with bells on. Now it traipses in, a thing of lights and shadows, with the throated screen to give it articulate breath of life. If the photoplay has the gusto of the footlight original, it should prove a knockout for laughter.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.

THERE WAS A SURPRISE for us back of the announcement that "Little Accident" was in town as a movie. Looking up the cast, we had in mind the expectation of last spring that the stage company would remain intact for work before the microphone and cameras. But we find other names, familiar ones, but not those seen in the flesh-and-blood production. Young Doug Fairbanks has the role of Norman Overbeck, which Thomas Mitchell, co-author with Floyd Dell of the play, did so well for us. Winsome Anita Page (how did Anita every stray from the M-G-M lot?) is Isabel Drury, the mother; Sally Blane is Madge. Others in the movie are the always efficient ZaSu Pitts, Roscoe Karns, Slim Summerville and Albert Gran. The last-named will be remembered for his excellence in Winnie Lightner's triumph, "The Gold Diggers of Broadway."

THE PLOT, YOU will recall, is one in which a mere babe pulls the strings. The hand that rocked in the cradle ruled this mirthquake. Norman Overbeck is about to wed; suddenly he gets a summons to a maternity hospital. He confides to a friend that a year before he had married Isabel in Boston, but that she had had the rites annulled. Norman upsets the home circle by answering this summons; it was a telegram from Chicago. The trip over, he is informed he is the father of a three weeks old boy; that Isabel was soon to give the infant away for adoption. This stirs the spirit of paternity in Norman's breast; he wants what he wants when he wants it, and he is determined to bring up that baby himself.

NORMAN DECAMPS with the child. He gets into various entanglements as the kidnaper of his own son. At last his friends discover his whereabouts. In comes Isabel. They fuss and fume as of old. How the happy ending is wrought, made good theater fare.

IT WILL BE INTERESTING to compare the photoplay with the stage comedy. So you should go to Keith's to see how our old friend of the footlights is getting along in its new dress.

FILM ROLE FOR MISS BROOKS

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Copyright [illegible]

Louella O. Parsons

I found Louise perched in a chair in the waiting room at Columbia. She had just come on from New York with Jack Cohn, one of the officers of the Columbia Corp. and Dugal Stewart who has been signed to direct plays.

Columbia's plan for the former Follies' favorite is to feature her in a Western opposite Buck Jones with Art Ressen directing.

Both Cohns, Harry and Jack were working out the plans yesterday.

Young Douglas Fairbanks was disappointed when he was told that he was too young to play the male lead in "The Battle of Diplomat." He had his heart set on that part. Although he is aged of 22 he still looks like a boy. In a few years he won't mind being told that he is too young but now even though he has been married a year to Joan Crawford he does not look like a man of the world. Doug, Jr. gets a good part over at the Fox Studio so you see life has its brighter side. The role that Ralph Morgan created on the stage in "Lightnin'," the juvenile lead, and really one of the best parts in the picture falls to Doug's lot. It's the best male role next to that of Will Rogers himself.

You have little idea how much trouble this hot weather it is for actresses to get their costumes. June Collyer, who is playing the lead in "Extravagance," a Tiffany picture, has to wear very modish, small frocks. She put on four or five lacy frocks the other afternoon none of which pleased the powers that be or June herself. We hope she found a dress for to us she looked lovely in any one of them. Owen Moore and Lloyd Hughes have been chosen to play opposite her in this modern story of dress and what have you which was specially written for Tiffany by A. P. Younger.

Frisco, chief comedy stutterer of Hollywood and elsewhere has mastered the talkies. When Frisco first started making pictures, when he learned lines he forgot how to stutter and when he stuttered he forgot his lines. For a time it looked as if he would be a total loss. After much hard work he finally succeeded in doing so well that First National again signed him to make a series of two reelers which have been started by Bryan Foy. That must be a relief to Frisco, who lamented to everyone who would listen that he wasn't worth the money he was being paid.

We hear so much about these girls who look just like Mary Pickford that we always greet such a remark with an indifferent shrug of the shoulders. Yet one is forced to take a second look at Anita Louise, the 15-year-old girl who was recently signed by Tiffany. Phil Goldstone has been moving heaven and earth to try to buy "Daddy Long Legs," Mary Pickford's great success. Anita Louise photographs 17 with certain spiritual quality that is delightful. Her first picture for Tiffany is "The Third Alarm," but this is only a starter, for Tiffany plans some specials for this potential Mary Pickford.

A few things of interest picked up in my travels are the signing of Ralf Harolde to play a part in the Amos 'n' Andy picture, "Check and Double Check." Harolde played the villain in "Dixiana" and gave probably the best performance in the picture next to that of the star, Bebe Daniels. R K O has made great plans for him and rightly for he is one of the most promising newcomers to the screen. The second generation will be represented at the Fox studio in "Renegade." Noah Beery Jr. and Fred Kohler Jr., sons of the two famous bad men of the screen, are playing in "Renegade," a story of the Foreign Legion. It will be worth while watching what the two sons will do.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Charlie Chaplin and Mrs. Jesse Lasky in a pale blue gown doing a tango on the veranda of the Jules Glaenzers home. Jesse Lasky not to be outdone by his attractive wife also tangoing with Mrs. Glaenzer. The Glaenzers starting something new with colored jubilee singers who sang spirituals on the lawn. All the guests grouped around the singers in chairs placed on the grass. Amos 'n' Andy and their wives meeting the film colony at Glaenzers. Colleen Moore escorted by a good looking blond lad. Olsen and Johnson getting a big hand at the Olsen night club. Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey putting on some of their choicest comedy stuff in honor of "Dixiana" night. The star of "Dixiana" and all of the cast taking a bow. That's all today.

Triumphant

GRETA GARBO

ARAB TENT IS HER BOUDOIR

Belle Bennett never keeps a motion picture company waiting long while changing her costume. It is only a matter of minutes from the time she walks to her dressing room until she returns dressed for the next scene. She carries her own dressing room with her and always has it placed within a few paces of the set upon which she is working.

In appearance it resembles an Arabian tent, brightly colored with vivid stripes, and it can be quickly staked to a sound stage floor or while she is on location to the ground.

Miss Bennett, who plays the starring role in "Recaptured Love," now at the Modern, believes in comfort and the interior of her movable dressing room is elaborately furnished.

Cotton Pickers at the Met for One Day

McKinney's Cotton Pickers' Orchestra, famed throughout the Middle West as the leading musical organization of its type, comes to the Metropolitan tomorrow for one day only. The band uses many novel effects of instrumentation and some of the players are also splendid vocalists.

Copley Manager Due in Boston Tomorrow

Manager E. E. Clive of the Copley returns on the Scythia tomorrow preparatory to opening a new season at the Back Bay playhouse. During the past few weeks in London, Mr. Clive has secured for production various hits of the season, notably several hilarious farce comedies.

BILLING AND COOING LIKE REEL DOVE

Now the cat's out o' the bag. She was born Lillian Bohney, but a camera man named her Dove. When she was a schoolgirl, the photographer, captured by her beauty, asked if she would pose for him. She did. He mistook her first name. She said Lillian; he thought she said Billie. And he followed it up with: "Anyway you look like a little dove." Thus was Billie Dove christened years before the name became famous in Hollywood and out of it.

Her parents were of Swiss descent and were non-professionals. They lived in an apartment. Billie, who is star of "Sweethearts and Wives" at the Keith Albee, posed for artists and commercial photographers. Also took a secretarial course.

A Follies stage manager saw her picture on a box of merchandise, traced her to her home and offered her a chance to go on the stage. Billie was 15 then and she was an accomplished dancer. She appeared in "The Midnight Frolics" and sat in a hoop while a man sang to her.

Then came a screen test and Billie Dove played in "Polly of the Follies" with Constance Talmadge. Then in comedies with Johnny Hines. Next in "At the Stage Door" and "Beyond the Rainbow." The late Marcus Loew saw the latter picture and signed Billie to a contract and sent her to California. She worked at the old Metro Studio.

Billie rode her bicycle over for her pay check on Saturdays. It was a very modest check. She didn't do so well and was released from her contract. Free lancing days followed. Horse operas with Tom Mix. Later came the first all color picture "The Wanderer of the Wasteland," which caused Doug Fairbanks to sign her for his color film "The Black Pirate." Since then she has been climbing.

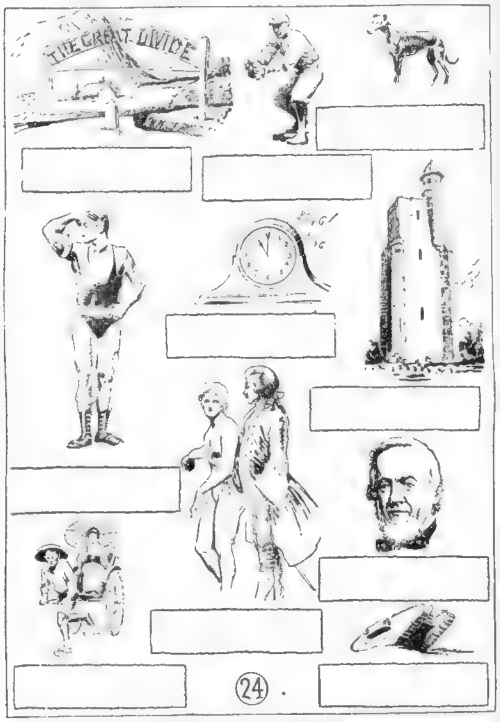
"Believe It Or Not" By Ripley



FOLLOW THESE RULES

1 Everyone is eligible to participate in the Word Hunt except employees of the Boston Evening American, the Boston Sunday Advertiser and members of their families.

2 Every day from July [illegible] to August 8 ten Ripley "Believe It or Not" pictures without descriptions will be printed. The descriptions for each picture will be published in the Classified Ad Columns.

3 The "Word Hunt" consists in finding the descriptions in the Classified Ads, clipping them out and placing each under the picture to which it refers. The words making up each description will appear in a single ad [illegible] one place.

4 Hold all the pictures until you have thirty complete sets of ten each [illegible]. Put your name and address on the complete set. Then send them in to Ripley's Word Hunt Editor, Box 185, Boston, Mass.

5 All entries must be postmarked not later than midnight Friday, August 15. No entries will be returned to sender.

6 Two thousand five hundred dollars in cash prizes in accordance with the complete prize list published herewith will be paid to the persons sending in the most nearly correct and neatest complete set of pictures at the close of the "Word Hunt."

7 A committee of judges will be appointed by the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser to determine the successful contestants. All entrants agree to accept the decisions of these judges as final.

8 It is not necessary to purchase the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser to compete. This newspaper may be examined at its office or at the public libraries free of charge, and if you wish you may copy or trace the pictures from the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser and then assemble the sets from the copies you have made.

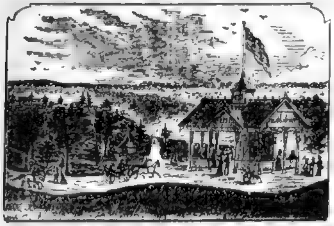
FRISBY STATEMENT ROCKS NATION



Frisby's proposed [illegible] ng camp for dishonest policemen to be located in Abyssinia.

Washington Monument,
Washington, D. C.

Friends and Fellow [illegible]ens:

For some time now I have been thinking about the temptations of a policeman's life. But I am a man of action, as every man, woman and child in America shall [illegible] pretty know.

These poor fellows, who are merely human after all, must be saved from the corrupting effect of bribe taking. And I am prepared, let the chips fall where they may, to sacrifice a good deal of my valuable time. To be brief, my plan is to accompany all policemen in person, so that when they are offered a bribe I may take charge of the situation myself.

The money thus gathered will then be deposited to my credit in some reliable bank, and when it has reached a sizeable sum will be used for a worthy purpose which I will doubt think of in the meantime.

Very truly yours,
Horace B. (Congressman) Frisby

This is the anniversary of the entrance into what later was called the Hudson river of Hendrick Hudson Aug. 2, 1610. The Dutch navigator thought he had found in the Pacific Ocean a passage to the East.

Raquel Lunches With Man Who Saved Her Life; Likes His Eyes

CHAPTER 37

"There's one thing about you, dearie," Greta said, crinkling the corners of her blue eyes. "One never lacks for excitement when barging in your company."

It was the morning following Raquel's escape from drowning, and the two exponents of the art of Alphonse were breakfasting late in their suite overlooking the Normandie garden.

"I don't believe I was too far out," Raquel insisted.

"What difference does that make," Greta demanded, "as long as you picked yourself such a handsome life-saver?"

Raquel smiled—enigmatically.

"He ruined a perfectly good bathing suit, though. Tore the back right out of it. Had to wrap you up in his beach robe to keep you from looking like a Follies gal—bare back, and very little front at that."

"I must return the robe," said Raquel.

"Uh-huh. And you can thank him at luncheon. We're lunching with him, you know. I accepted for you."

"But, Greta——"

"Don't 'but' me. I tell you he's a wow. You can't wear the tall hat with a bimbo who's dragged you out of the ocean."

"I suppose not. And I must thank him—even if he did rescue me needlessly. I was all right until he clutched me, in the back."

Spoil Romance

Greta Scolds Raquel

Greta noticed that, even for a reigning beauty, Raquel spent an unusually long time over her toilette.

"Which would you advise, Greta," she asked, hesitating over a mound of pleated silk and frail chiffon, "the bois de rose, or this gray?"

"The gray. It'll make you look pale and interesting. And that chiffon coat with the gray fox collar. It'll give just the right touch of paleness to your face."

"What did you say his name?" Raquel knew, but she wished to hear the name again.

"Gerald Parker. Nice moniker, what? They call him Jerry, for short."

"Who's they?" quickly.

"Oh, the mob around here. My boy friend is a pal of his—the one from the Long Island set who staked me at the Casino. He's coming to luncheon with us. His name is Bryce Watrous. Can you bear it?"

"Greta—" reprovingly.

"Hey! Do you think I'm going to be a glass of cold water at a party? I gotta have a man, don't I?"

The two men were waiting for them when they went down for luncheon.

"He's bored," was the thought that flashed through Raquel's mind when she was introduced, with Greta's usual informality, to Gerald Parker. "I'm glad he's fair. I like fair men. They seem easier to read. He's courteous, but his mind is elsewhere. He doesn't even see me."

The thought nettled her. She was accustomed to instant surrender.

Raquel realized with a start that she was using little subterfuges to prolong the luncheon.

His Eyes

They Were Gray Gray

"It's Gerald Parker's eyes," she told herself. "I've never seen such a gray gray. Like a dark mountainside with a gray mist over it. He's really only moderately good-looking, except for his eyes. And moderately young, I should say."

"You are stopping in Deauville some time?" he asked her with his lips. His eyes let her know the answer was a matter of indifference to him.

"Yes," she said. "And you?"

"I don't know. One has to stop some place. I was thinking of pulling out shortly."

She almost said: "Please don't." She caught herself just in time.

Watrous suggested going on to the polo game. The Argentines were playing the Blues, and the game promised well.

"You are Spanish?" Parker asked Raquel.

"No," she said and felt her cheeks must be glowing for no reason that she could discover. "I am American. But there is quite a bit of Spanish in my past."

The 'dobe hut on the desert.

Bryce Watrous thought they ought to make a day of it. Dinner after the polo game and later dancing and a turn at the tables in the Casino. Raquel was sure that Gerald Parker's assent was more polite than eager.

"Sorry," she said, and was impatient that his lack of interest piqued her. "Some other time, perhaps."

"Then we'll make it tomorrow night if you're not engaged," said Watrous. "I'll do a little intensive playing tonight and see if I can't win back what Greta lost."

"If Miss Rojos will do us the honor?" Parker seconded. Her first refusal had sharpened his ardor.

A perversity in Raquel urged her to decline. She could not. With Gerald Parker's misty gray eyes asking her to say "yes."

So it was arranged that they would meet on the morrow.

"What the hallelujah did you toss ice water on that invite for?" Greta wanted to know as soon as she was alone with Raquel.

"I thought your friend Mr. Parker was a bit bored," Raquel answered.

"What did you want him to do—throw down his coat and let you walk on it?"

"No, but he seems like a man who has been pretty much spoiled by having his own way—with women."

Don't Like Women

"My mother's apron string! He don't give a kopeck about women."

Raquel had a queer feeling around her heart.

"How do you know?" she asked.

"I know the breed. As for being spoiled, I shouldn't be surprised. He's disgustingly rich. Wouldn't you know it—and that you'd pick him out for your lifesaver?"

A message awaited them. Alphonse would not be down until a week later. He was on the track of a Corot, a real Corot. He would know in a week if it were genuine.

Why was it that now she was glad that arrival had been postponed?

The Circle

Life is a circle,
  A shining ring
Of changeful seasons
  From spring to spring.

Summer and winter,
  Zephyr and gale,
Sunlight and shadow,
  These tell the tale.

From youth's sweet rapture,
  A fleeting thing,
Men's steps fare forward
  Around the ring.

All those before us
  Went as we go,
All who will follow
  This way must know.

First childhood's hours;
  Years fly, life's wane
Soon ends the circle . . .
  Childhood again!

Yet this God grants us:
  To make life's ring
A shining circle
  A golden thing!

Heart and Home

—By BEATRICE FAIRFAX—

She Learned to Care

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been going with a fellow for five months. He told me he loved me and hinted about marriage. At that time I did not love him, but just cared a little. One day we had an argument. Three weeks passed and I didn't hear from him. I called him up and apologized and asked him to forget it and to continue calling. He said he was still angry and would call me as soon as he got over it. Two months passed and I haven't heard from him. Shall I wait until he calls me, as he said he would? Could it be that he does not care any more? His birthday is next month, shall I send him a card?

S. O. S.

Dear S. O. S.: It seems to me that you are still in doubt about the state of your affections, and it is fairly obvious that your feelings are mostly those of irritation at having him slip away so easily. I should proceed to treat him as if nothing had happened, be cordial and friendly when you meet and suggest that he call some time. Wouldn't a man who could hold a grudge so long be rather troublesome as a steady diet?

Wants to Go With Boys

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl who will be 15 in two months. I look much older. My mother does not allow me to go with boys although she knows I can take care of myself. Young men of 19 and 20 have often asked me out, but I have to refuse the invitation on account of my mother. All my girl friends are my age and they are allowed out. I cannot seem to convince my mother that times have changed since she was a girl. Won't you please try and convince her that she is just a little old fashioned.

JERRY.

Dear Jerry: I think your mother is very sensible. Seventeen or eighteen is really ample time for you to go anywhere with boys. Of course, if the boys are known to your mother and one of them should ask her if he might take you to a picnic or a "movie" and she approved it would be nice and give you an opportunity of becoming acquainted with desirable young men. However, late parties and dances should be taboo for you for some time.

Can She Trust Him?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I read your advice in the paper every night and hope that you will help me. There is a young man who wishes to go out with me and I feel that I cannot trust him, because he told me that he has been out with my sister and I am afraid he will tell his friends that I have been out with him, too.

ALISIA.

Dear Alisia: Now, why should it be such a secret? If he is the sort of boy you would be ashamed to go out with, don't go, of course. If he is given to bragging in unmannerly fashion about his "dates" don't go, but surely you don't expect to go anywhere with anyone and have it kept a dark mystery. [illegible] as long as you behave [illegible] and give him nothing to say against you there is nothing to worry about.

Golf Versus Love

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl of 19 and have a fellow. I have been going with him for a year and a half. He acts like a gentleman, is very polite in speaking and meeting any of my friends. He is very fond of golf. I am sorry to say I cannot play golf myself. He has asked me out to play many times and I have refused him. He wonders why I don't go with him. Will you please advise me what to do.

B. S.

Dear B. S.—I don't believe that deep interest in golf is sufficient reason for breaking friendship with a man who otherwise is satisfactory. If you love him enough you will try very hard to learn the game and play around with him. However, there are born "dubs" at golf, and if you just don't like the game, can't you find some other common point of interest? Golfers and non-golfers frequently solve the problem nicely and marry and live happily ever after.

She Loves Him Dearly

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am 19 and am in love with a fellow of 20. He has never told me he loved me. Whenever I see him all he says is "hello." He goes home each week-end, so do you suppose he has a girl that he loves better than me? I have never said anything to hurt his feelings because I love him dearly and he knows it.

BROKEN HEARTED.

Dear Broken Hearted: I'm not going to suppose anything about the young man. All I can say is that when a man is strongly interested in a girl he makes it the one purpose of his life to let her know about it. I think you may safely assume that his interest has dwindled and lose no time in annexing other friends.

Miss Fairfax will be pleased to answer readers' questions regarding love problems which may be troubling them. Write on one side of the paper only.

Pointers on Etiquette

Designating That the Party Is Informal

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you kindly inform me whether or not it is proper to write "Formal" or "Informal Dancing Party" on the invitations to a dancing party which is to be given at a country club? I believe that some of my guests will not be able to come in formal attire, and I would like to have them come.

A. P.

If you do not wish to have your party a formal one do not send cards, for cards begin by having a somewhat formal connotation. But, instead, write your invitation in the form of a note and then you can say, easily and naturally, in the note, that you are going to have an informal party.

Paying One's Own Carfare

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

The other day I was going down town during my lunch hour and my employer's son, who works at the office, also was going. Was it right for me to expect him to pay my carfare?

No, it was not correct for you to "expect" that he should pay your fare. Indeed it would have been the best form if you would have taken for granted that you were to pay your own fare. Unless a girl has been invited by a gentleman to accompany him to a certain place or to a certain entertainment, she should take it for granted that she pays her own fare.

A Gift of Friendliness and Welcome

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When the family of the groom to be for the first time visit the bride to be and her family, do they have to take a gift?

M. T.

No. The only gift they bring is the gift of friendliness and welcome into their family.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette by readers.)

Use of Baking Powder

By MARTHA LEE

Organizer and Conductor of New England's Largest Home-Makers' Club of Over 37,000

Martha Lee

IT'S A FAR CRY from the crude tooth sharpening loaves of bread which the ancient Egyptian housewife served up to her lord and master to the delicate, flaky breads and biscuits the 20th century cook knows how to produce and if a new husband now and again privately feels that the bride's biscuits might well have been used as foundation stones in the tombs of the Pharaohs a ray of hope may yet appear to comfort her, for perhaps much of her trouble lies in the baking powder.

The art of bread making has existed for some 4000 years (leavened [illegible] bread was found among the Egyptians as long ago as that), but the ancients had no such aid to perfect cooking as we have today in the superlative essence of light breads, namely, the baking powder.

Generally speaking doughs can be classified according to the consistency of the mixtures, that is, 1. Pour Batter, 2. Drop Batter, 3. Soft Dough; 4. Stiff Dough. Under the first-class come griddle cakes, waffles and popovers, under the second, butter cakes and muffins, under the third, biscuits, dumplings and shortcakes; under the fourth, doughnuts, cookies and pie crust.

Doughs also vary in the method of mixing. In making baking powder biscuits and pastry, the dry ingredients are sifted together first, the shortening cut in lightly, and the liquid added last, carefully so as to get just the right amount. In making butter cakes, the rule is to cream the butter or substitute with the sugar, add beaten eggs, then liquid and dry ingredients alternately. In sponge cakes and meringues the eggs are beaten first and the dry ingredients folded into them. There is a reason for each method, for the combining of flour and baking powder with moisture releases certain gases and [illegible] development of [illegible] gases be retained until the proper moment.

Practically all biscuit, pastry and light bread [illegible] the same basic ingredients, that is flour, baking powder, shortening and liquid. Salt is generally added for seasoning. The flour used varies as the purpose of the dough to be made varies.

The baking powder must of course, be one that experience has taught you excels in purity and uniformity of results. There are many good baking powders on the market, and a little wise shopping and experimenting will soon teach you the ones you can depend on. Or I'll whisper my favorite.

And thus endeth the lesson. For some grand and glorious recipes of muffins, waffles, hot breads, etc., etc., address yours truly at 5 Winthrop sq., care of Boston Evening American, as usual.

Faithfully you

Martha Lee

The Beauty Box -:- By Helen Follett

THE LIFE of wearing apparel depends upon what kind of care it receives. Stockings should be washed after a single wearing. Wool stockings should be put on stocking stretchers. Shoes that are kept on shoe trees don't get a down-in-the-heel look. Coats keep their shape better when they repose on hangers. Hats should sit on little racks; gloves pulled out flat and laid away in a sachet-filled box.

Business gals mustn't be tempted with too many ruffles and fluff [illegible] big bows don't like [illegible] too much [illegible] femininity has her nose to the grindstone or close to the typewriter keys. A woman worker must not only be capable and competent, but she should dress the part. After all, the smart, plain little frock is the most becoming. Portland, Ore., Energetic and Ambitious City

Visitor Finds It Has Other Claims to Distinction Besides Beauty

—By B. C. Forbes—

IN THE WEST, Aug. 2—The East knows Portland (Oregon) as the city of roses. It has other claims to distinction besides its bewitching beauty.

B. C. Forbes

Portland resembles a British city. It breathes the dignity of age, solidity, wealth, orderliness, stability. There is nothing suggestive of the boom town. It's people impress you as living rationally. Its newspapers are high grade. It has palatial banks of a magnitude exceeding the largest in cities twice its size. There is a leisure class possessing culture.

But don't conclude that Portland today is backward, slow, unprogressive, that its love of beauty and refinement and the graces of life is handicapping its forward march. It is very much alive, very alert, very energetic, very ambitious under the leadership of Mayor Baker, whose popularity has maintained him undisturbed in office for about a couple of decades.

From an "Onward Portland" little folder are culled these "Assured Portland Developments"; they are proof that here is another western city that has not taken fright and gone into a blue funk just because an overdone speculative boom has ended and the national business pace has slowed down temporarily to enable the country to recover its breath.

Five boats to be added to States Steamship Line, cost $20,000,000, giving improved passenger and mail service to the Orient.

Lloyd Hotel, costing $3,000,000. A quarter-million on-to-Oregon, Inc., civic advertising campaign, national in scope. Commonwealth building, costing $2,500,000. St. John's bridge, highest long-span bridge in America over navigable water, costing $4,250,000. Tualatin tunnel, estimated to cost between $3,500,000 and $5,000,000, new waterfront market to cost between $300,000 and $1,000,000. Meier & Frank 14-story building covering entire block, $2,000,000. New Port of Portland aviation field administration building. Mt. Hood tram and New Cloud Cap Inn, $3,000,000 to $4,000,000. Oregon State highway program for 1930, $13,500,000. New federal building, over $2,000,000. Sanctuary of the Sorrowful Mother $7,000,000 to be invested. New East Side sports arena, $400,000, and, finally, this item: "Columbia River development; eventually this will reach near three hundred million."

Is it at all astonishing, in view of all these evidences, initiative, confidence and foresight, that Portland can make the claim:

"Portland has made the greatest proportional numerical growth on the Pacific Coast among cities of the first class, Los Angeles alone excepted. Official census shows the population of the metropolitan area to be 137,316. Portland is in keen competition with all cities of America as the wealthiest per capita city in the U. S. A.

P. S.—The sensational overthrow of the Mackenzie King ministry in Canada, accused of having been overfriendly with the United States, and the election of the Bennett anti-American party presages a tariff battle-royal. As told in earlier columns, hostility towards Washington is alarmingly bitter. The voting demonstrates all too convincingly that our northern neighbors mean to resort to extreme measures to keep out U. S. goods and to levy the heaviest possible imposts on Canadian products needed by us.

Our promised "limited tariff revision" is having unlimited regrettable results. Will President please get his tariff commission busy?

SUMMER STOCK BRANCHES ARE FAIRLY BUSY

By FRANK H. MELOON

Stock exchange houses maintaining branches at Cape Cod, Maine and other New England summer resorts report these branches are fairly busy. The announcement bears out the statement frequently heard in Wall and State Streets that it is hard to keep away from the ticker, once you have traded there. It might be explained that the stock exchanges houses, both at their summer branches and at their regular offices, are considerably less busy than they were a year ago, but this is only what has been generally expected. A pick-up in activity next month is confidently expected.

As previously stated in this column, the new speedy tickers are expected to go into commission at their best pace in September. No hitch in their installation, now complete in New England, has so far appeared.

* * *

Workers will be pleased to have emphasis laid on the view of Eugene E. Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel, with a subsidiary at Quincy. Mr. Grace states:

Eugene E. Grace

"There has been no reduction in wages and none is contemplated. I believe it would be false economy to reduce wages under present conditions. Workers are contributing enough on part-time employment. We are distributing our work among all the men and they are making a real sacrifice."

* * *

The big investment trusts are measuring up to reasonable expectations. The New York "investigation" has revealed nothing especially alarming for the group as a whole. A Wall Street writer says Wall Street is inclined to believe that, so far at least as Assistant Attorney-General Watson Washburn's analysis and investigation of investment trusts are concerned, this type of financial enterprise has received fairly clean bill of health. Only three companies, and these small ones, have been enjoined from doing business. Only 10 admitted making transactions on short side of market. Less than one-third of them reported they had borrowed money, and these loans were reduced materially in first quarter this year.

One note of cheer in the report of Frederic Curtiss of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston is in regard to the sales of automobiles. Mr. Curtiss finds sales of new cars for the period January through June, 1930, exceeded that of any corresponding period except in 1929.

Since Thomas F. Woodlock is not to continue as a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission, for which he was outstandingly fitted, it is a pleasure to learn he is to become contributing editor of the Wall St. Journal. Mr. Woodlock will write a daily signed column in the Wall St. Journal, and his viewpoint will also find frequent editorial expression. Among the first of Mr. Woodlock's contributions will probably be his impressions of the work of the Interstate Commerce Commission, its problems, its difficulties, and the defects in the law. It is a happy circumstance that brings Mr. Woodlock to the Wall St. Journal, for it was with this newspaper that he started when he first came to the United States from England in 1892.

In 1895 he published his first book, "The Anatomy of a Railroad Report." This was followed in 1899 by another book, "Ton-Mile Cost." After the death of Charles H. Dow in 1903 Mr. Woodlock acted as editor of The Wall Street Journal a post to which he was formally appointed in February, 1905.

Later Mr. Woodlock joined the New York Stock Exchange firm of S. N. Warren & Co., where he continued until 1918. He then became associated with the American International Corp. as assistant to the senior vice-president. He became secretary of American International Corp., in which post he continued until 1923, when he resigned to resume the writing of special articles. These signed articles appeared daily in the New York Herald and later in The Sun.

In January, 1925, he was appointed by President Coolidge to the Interstate Commerce Commission, on which body he has served with notable distinction.

Today's News in Wall Street

American Tobacco Co. is enjoying real prosperity. This explains in part the noteworthy climb of the shares this week. Some striking evidence of the prosperity being currently enjoyed by the tobacco industry, and American Tobacco specifically, is offered by the recent announcement that the shares of the latter company will be split two-for-one, following which action dividends will be inaugurated at the annual rate of $5 a share, or the equivalent of $10 on the present stock.

Prior to the split-up, stockholders will receive an extra dividend of $4, bringing total disbursements for the full year on the present common and class "B" shares up to $12.50 a share. This is nearly twice the amount disbursed in 1928 and about 40 per cent in excess of 1929 payments.

It has been officially stated that profits of the company in the first five months of 1930 were more than 100 per cent larger than in the corresponding period of 1929 and it is a foregone conclusion that results for the full year will be more favorable than at any time since the dissolution of the old company in 1911, says the Magazine of Wall St. This impressive showing at a time when general industry is experiencing the throes of depression is an unqualified tribute to the aggressiveness of the company's management.

RADIO WILL NOT SHOW "RED INK"

Radio exhibited resistance to selling, reflecting knowledge that its half-year statement will not show "red sink," as the market has expected. The report will probably be issued next Friday.

AMERICAN METALS FAVORED STOCK

Buying of American Metals is for the account of very competent metal authorities, who actually commenced accumulating the stock as high as 50. Dividend reduction is in line with the extreme conservatism of the management, but at 30 the stock yields 5 per cent.

UNITED BISCUIT DIVIDED INCREASE

One of the few high-grade stocks available for ten-times per-share earnings, United Biscuit is a favored stock in expectation its dividend will be enlarged. Yield from the present $1.60 rate is but 3.37 per cent, but an increase to $2 is fully warranted by the promise earnings this year will approximate $5 a share.

CONSOLIDATED GAS RATIO 22-TO-1

Assuming even retention of the $4.75 per-share earning power disclosed for 1929, Consolidated Gas sells at a price to twenty-two times its profits.

Renewed buying of Baltimore & Ohio has been induced by the stock's approach to par, at which level the yield is 7 per cent.

STEEL COMMON RELATIVELY QUIET

More speculative grade of stocks recently have been market leaders. Steel common has been shoved to the background after its use as market leader up to issuance of the half-year statement. Industrial list, however, depends upon Steel as a leader to inspire traders.

FURTHER ELECTRIC RATE CUTS PLANNED

LIQUIDATION in public utility stocks is based on the understanding that the reduction in electric current announced by the Public Service Commissions in New York, Boston and Pennsylvania is a forerunner of a general reduction in public utility rates. It is understood that the next step in this program will involve reduction in rates on the part of a number of up-state utilities controlled by Niagara Hudson Power.

In some quarters it is argued that these reductions will be offset to some extent by increased operating economies effected through the greater use of hydro-electric power, but it is admitted that the lower rates will be substantially reflected in earnings until electric current sales increase materially.

OPPOSING GROUPS IN FOREIGN POWER

OPPOSING groups operating in American and Foreign Power seem to be making little progress in either direction. The bull group headed by W. C. Durant is trying hard to attract a following on the long side, but, on the other hand, the recently formed bear clique continues to offer Foreign Power whenever it rallies. In the meantime, it will be interesting to observe the attitude of Electric Bond and Share, which naturally dominates the market destinies of its subsidiaries. In this respect, it is stated that leading factors in Bond and Share are not sympathetic to bullish activities in their subsidiaries at the present time.

CASE THRESHING IS WELL BOUGHT

Action of Case Threshing this week confirms reports that the stock is being persistently accumulated by banking interests closely allied with the management of the company. Although earnings of the company have been rather disappointing in the last several months, it is understood that the company recently has received several important orders. Furthermore, it is evident that an important short interest has been accumulated recently on rumors that the company's business would be adversely affected by the cancellation of Russian orders. It may be stated, however, that these reports are unfounded.

UNITED CORPORATION ACCUMULATION

ALTHOUGH sponsors of United Corporation are postponing their market plants due to the readjustment in electric current rates, important accumulation continues evident in the stock. As a matter of fact, this accumulation has been apparent for several weeks, but as yet has not been reflected in the market action of the stock. Nevertheless, those close to the company feel that United Corporation will reflect the growth of its properties to a greater extent in the near future. It is also understood that the company will increase the annual dividend rate from 50 cents a share to 75 cents a share early next year.

SPECULATIVE INTEREST IN MARKET LACKING

The stock exchange yesterday witnessed the dullest trading session since November, 1926. Only 1,090,200 shares changed ownership throughout the five-hour market. The quietness was positive evidence of the lack of speculative interest which has been the outstanding feature of all recent sessions. Price-wise the market denoted little tendency either way, as a matter of fact averages of leading industrials and rails fluctuated within a range of little over a point.

VANADIUM DRIVE ON BEARS PLANNED

Sponsors of Vanadium are said to be planning a drive against the recently accumulated short interest in that stock.

NEW ISSUE FOR BORDEN IS LIKELY

PRESENT SENTIMENT IS MORE CHEERFUL

Sentiment has been cheered somewhat by the ability of the market to stage a recovery, even though moderate, from the levels just above the lows of ten days ago. If the market can pass through the 240-level in the industrial averages on volume it would be construed a favorable sign and bring new buying into stocks, according to many observers.

HERSHEY CHOCOLATE EARNINGS ESTIMATES

Estimates persist that Hershey Chocolate will show earnings this year of between $9 and $10 a common share. They are based on the fact that the company has worked off all its high cost inventories and is now benefitting from the current low market quotations for raw materials required. That should be reflected in the earnings of the second half-year.

Less is heard regarding the possibilities of an increase in the Hershey dividend. However, some market interests contend that if earnings come up to present predictions change in the distribution to common stockholders must be upward. At present $5 anually is being paid.

INVESTMENT BUYING IN BOND MARKET.

An investment demand has been coming into the bond market. It is probable that some of the money which was employed in the call loan market, but withdrawn in recent months because of the low interest rates, has been invested in bonds because of the greater yield obtainable from them for the time being at least.

HAS CHILDS CO. TURNED THE CORNER?

Many are asking whether the Childs Co. has turned the corner. This question is a logical one, and is the result of the good showing made for the first half-year, when net income amounted to $1.36 a share, against 67 cents a share in the corresponding period of 1929. Reports of quiet accumulation in Childs had been heard on several occasions the last few weeks.

BETHLEHEM'S QUARTER PROVES SATISFACTORY

Despite estimates in steel circles of $1.75 to $2 a share on Bethlehem common, many in the financial district sold the stock recently on the theory that the predictions were too high. In view of that the actual results of $1.86 a share in the second quarter were favorable.

Rumors also cast doubt upon the continuance of the current $6 a share annual dividend. Doubt never was expressed in reliable quarters that the distribution would be maintained. Bethlehem still harbors a good-sized short interest.

INCREASED DIVIDEND ON DRUG LIKELY

Regardless of stock market fluctuations, interests prominent in Drug, Inc., are confident that the stock's dividend will be increased to $4.50 or $5 a share from the present $4 rate before the end of the year. This fact has been responsible for bringing long-pull buying into the stock on a moderate scale during reactions.

Earnings of the company are said to be satisfactory and would make even a better showing but for the policy of the management to include revenues of properties taken over only from the date of acquisition. Drug took over Vick Chemical and Household products in recent months.

Drug, Inc., has been growing steadily as a manufacturing concern, whereas originally it was a merchandising organization. This growth has been substantial in recent years and in 1929, when the company earned $6.35 a share, it is said that about 80 per cent of the revenues were from manufacturing.

LIQUIDATION IN NEW YORK AIR BRAKE

Some liquidation has been coming into New York Air Brake from interests that maintain the company will not cover its dividend entirely from earnings for the current year. At times large blocks of the stock have been traded in. That is not considered normal. The issue has been holding well in the face of selling.

United Aircraft's Business Larger

United Aircraft & Transport Corp. official says unfinished business June 30 was ahead of beginning of the year, and indications point to improved earnings in both third and last quarters over the first and second.

CURB MARKET TRADING IS IRREGULAR

New York, Aug. 2—An irregular tone was evidenced at the close of today's abbreviated session in curb stocks. The market continued inactive, the tape not moving for minutes at a stretch in the slowest day of the year.

Duke Power took an upward spurt near the close to gain 9 points to its high of 174.

Other issues, including Electric Bond & Share, American Superpower, Associated Gas & Electric, and United Light & Power, were fractionally higher. American Light & Traction and Consolidated Gas of Baltimore were both unchanged, while American Foreign Power warrants, American Gas & Electric, Niagara Hudson and United Gas new were fractionally lower.

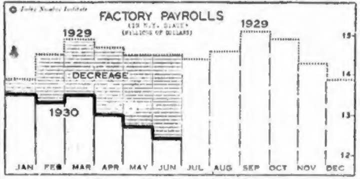
Oils were mostly higher, with Gulf leading at 124⅝, up ⅞. Cosden was at 44⅛, up ⅛; Ohio new at 32⅝, up ⅛; Standard of Indiana at 50⅝, up ⅛, and Vacuum up ⅛ at 85½.

Slump in Payroll Report



Factory Payrolls in N. Y. State

By HARLOW PETERS
(Irving Fisher Service)

The vicious circle of a business depression has been having its fling. Last year we saw an oversupply of goods being manufactured, and this supply has been only partly bitten into. With the advent of 1930 manufacturers reduced their output severely, and have been continuing this policy right through July.

The decrease in production has, in turn, brought about unemployment and reduction in wages, as the June payroll figures, recently released for New York State, clearly show. To continue the circle, we find that the consumer, because of less earnings, now has smaller purchasing power with which to deplete the surplus supply of goods.

To use a homely analogy: The dog is chasing his own tail. However, when the dog gets to the point where he bites the tail he always stops chasing in a circle, and the same thing holds true of business. When the consumer finds himself so low on goods that he must buy of necessity—even if he borrows in order to do so—the surplus is reduced gradually until the manufacturer must increase production again. BOSTON STOCK PRICES MIXED ON WEEK-END

Prices were mixed in week-end trading on the Boston Stock Exchange. Transactions moved at a snail's pace. Many traders had left last evening to extend the week-end holiday.

Boston Edison was once more dealt in in odd lots. There was a 3-point dip at the opening, later recovered in full.

Reduction in the rates charged the public has failed appreciably to affect the stock since announcement was made, and has failed entirely to dislodge any large holdings.

Railway & Light Securities sold up 2 at 71. American Telephone worked a point higher, while New England Telephone was off 1⅛ at 143⅛.

Eastern Gas & Fuel preferred was down 1½ at 91½.

Net profit of Walworth Co. for the June quarter this year of $149,537, or 40 cents a share on 333,260 common shares after preferred dividends, was about in line with earlier estimates. It compares with net of $340,757 in the preceding quarter, or $1.02 a share on 319,925 common shares and with $549,986, or $1.75 a share on 302,555 common shares in the second quarter last year. In the 1928 June quarter net was $99,163.

The six months' profit this year of $490,294, or $1.42 a share on the 326,594 average number of common shares outstanding during the period, compares with $951,032, or $3 a share on 302,555 junior shares, in the corresponding 1929 half year. In the same half of 1928, deficit, resulting from substantial loss in the first quarter, was $152,153.

75,000 SHARES OF OIL ADDED

Boston Stock Exchange, on recommendation of the committee on stock list and with the approval of the governing committee, has authorized for the list 75,000 additional shares, without nominal or par value, capital stock, Pantepec Oil Co. of Venezuela.

Of this amount, 17,250 shares are to be added to the list as of August 1, 1930, and the remaining shares as notice of issuance and payment in full is had.

The directors of the company at a special meeting voted to issue and sell 75,000 additional shares of stock of the company at not less than $2 per share cash, the proceeds of the sale to be used to provide for current expenses and maturing obligations.

Subscriptions at date of this application have been received for 57,500 shares, of which 17,250 shares are paid in full.

Kelvinator Profit Well Sustained

Profit for Kelvinator Corp. has been well sustained. Reported earnings for the three months ended June 30, the third quarter of the fiscal year, of $1,414,467 after tax reserves, or $1.19 per share, were but slightly under those of $1,441,803 or $1.22 per share in the corresponding period of the previous year. Until the past quarter, profits had been running very substantially ahead of last year.

By virtue of the greatly increased profits of the first half-year, nine months' earnings were $2,112,964 or $1.78 per share, compared with $1,301,657 or $1.10 per share last year, an improvement of 60 per cent.

American News Co. Net $2.06 a Share

American News Company, Inc., and subsidiaries report for the six months ended June 30 a consolidated net income of $425,443, after charges and depreciation and Federal taxes.

Directors of the company yesterday declared the regular bi-monthly dividend of 50 cents, payable September 15 to holders of record September 5.

Better Tone in Utilities Feature of Dull Market

New York, Aug. 2—Disgusted with the cranky stock market, traders all but ignored it today, and share prices reflected little but the closing out short contracts by bear traders anxious to be clear of commitments over Sunday.

A better tone in the Utility shares, which were under considerable bear pressure yesterday, was an encouragement to such speculators for the rise as bothered to look at the ticker tape. Leading shares, both in that group and in the industrials, worked a point or so higher.

REPORTS CONFLICT

Traders could not find a clue in the conflicting and uncertain weekend trade and business reports on which to base operations. Even the mercantile services were in disagreement. Dun's reported some improvement in retail distribution, but Bradstreet's said its reports indicated that both wholesale and retail trade were quieter.

News from the motor industry was a little more cheerful. Walter P. Chrysler issued a statement expressing the belief that the turn for the better had appeared.

On Monday, several plants, including those of Ford, which had been shut down for two or three weeks, are scheduled to resume operations. Estimates of steel mill activity for next week do not indicate any considerable acceleration, but at least there is no suggestion of further recession.

There is no money trend on Saturday to give an indication of credit trends, but the monthly survey of the New York Federal Reserve Bank made its appearance, and indicated continuance of satisfactory conditions in both credit and banking.

GAINS RECORDED

An investigation of 118 country banks in this district failed to bear out rumors that such banks have been carrying a serious volume of frozen loans. Of this number 92 had either no loans undercollateraled, or a negligible amount. Only nine had from 5 to 11 per cent of their loans lacking in adequate collateral.

Such shares as U. S. Steel, United Corporation, American Can, American Water Works, American Telephone, Electric Power & Light, North American, Radio, General Electric, Air Reduction and National Biscuit gained a point or so.

Consolidated Gas, a soft spot yesterday, rallied 2; Ingersoll Rand, Union Pacific and Auburn Auto mounted 3 to 5. On the other hand, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Sears Roebuck, American Tobacco, Houston Oil and Byers lost a point or two. Warner Bros. duplicated the year's low at 35½, then rallied a little.

The closing tone was firm.

CONVERTIBLES BUOYANT

Buoyancy of convertible issues influenced by the firmness of shares carried several popular bonds upward in the quiet trading today. Warner Brothers 6s rose nearly two points and General Theaters 6s gained nearly a point. Railroad convertibles joined the forward movement, with St. Paul adjustment 5s and Baltimore & Ohio 4½s profiting from the improved tone.

Best grade corporation issues were firm, with a few railroad and utility bonds advancing moderately. Traders apparently showed no disposition to bid up prices in the short session and most sales were at yesterday's closing figures. The volume of sales dropped off sharply.

Utility Issues were steady, with offerings particularly thin. Interest in foreign bonds ebbed. The greatest activity concentrated in German 5½s, which were accumulated at the closing price of the previous day. French bonds were dull and steady. Italian 7s were firm.

In financial circles it is expected that new financing for the Colombian government may be offered in the United States in the Fall, to consolidate the outstanding floating debt of the government.

Associated Press gave today's total sales as approximately 365,000 shares, the smallest Saturday turnover since May 8, 1926, when only 296,800 shares were traded. The previous Saturday minimum for this year was recorded June 28, when 586,590 shares were traded.

STOCKS REACH JANUARY MARK

New York, Aug. 2—The market value of 100 representative common stock issues at the end of July was $30,059,632,000 compared with $28,445,027,000 on June 30, an increase of $1,604,605,000, or 5.7 per cent for the month, according to Fraizer Jelke & Co.

The 100 stocks now are appraised at about the same amount as at the middle of January of this year, having depreciated 13.7 per cent below their March 31 high and advanced about 2 per cent over the December 31, 1929, level.

As compared with its bull market peak, the group is down about 30 per cent, while it is about 25.1 per cent higher than on November 13 of last year. A year ago, on July 31, 1929, the 100 stocks were selling at $39,325,578,000.

The largest rise sustained last month was in the motor group, which advanced 12.3 per cent, and the next largest gain was in the electrical manufacturing stocks which jumped 12 per cent.

Other gains were 6.2 per cent in the amusements, 6.1 per cent in the oils, 5.1 per cent in the utilities, 5 per cent in the retail shares, 4.9 per cent in the rails, 4.2 per cent in the miscellaneous industrials, 3.7 per cent in the steels, 3.2 per cent in the equipments, 2.4 per cent in the foods and 1 per cent in the chemicals.

The mines were the only group to decline, losing 1 per cent during the month.

AUSTRIANS ARE AIDED BY LOAN

Washington, Aug. 2—The most important recent development for Austria is the successful flotation of the first section of the $100,000,000 international loan, amounting to $62,000,000; the issue was oversubscribed in New York, London, Sweden and Switzerland, according to a radiogram received in the Department of Commerce from Commercial Attache Gardner Richardson, Vienna.

Subscriptions to the Austrian section of approximately $7,000,000 was three times the allotment.

The proceeds of the loan will enable the Austrian government to repay cash advances from the treasury and short term bank credits and to proceed with the placing of orders for railway equipment, installation of automatic telephones in Vienna and other public works.

Industries continue depressed, especially textiles, lumber, iron, machinery and electrical equipment. Production during June of iron and iron ore declined by about 25 per cent and that of steel ingots and rolled goods by approximately 35 per cent, but an improvement is expected as a result of the flotation of the international loan.

Unfilled orders in the cotton spinning mills at the end of May totaled 7,800,000 pounds, or 100,000,000 pounds less than at the end of the preceding month.

The Alpine Mining Company's unfilled orders at the end of June amounted to 43,000 tons, a decrease of 12,000 tons from the previous month. The company's production of pig iron in June totaled 27,000 tons and that of steel ingots 23,000 tons, as against 36,000 and 34,000 tons, respectively, in the preceding month.

Lignite production in May totaled 240,000 tons. Paper output increased from 17,600 tons in April to 18,100 tons in May, and that of cellulose from 17,900 to 19,300.

The official railway report for May showed a total freight traffic of 378,000,000 net freight-ton-kilometers, as compared with 351,000,000 in April.

Bush Terminal's Earnings Are Up

New York, Aug. 2—Bush Terminal Co., reports for six months ended June 30, 1930, net profit of $988,511 after interest, depreciation, taxes, etc., equivalent after allowing for Bush Terminal Buildings 7 per cent guaranteed preferred dividend and Bush Terminal Co., 7 per cent debenture dividends to $2.06 a share on 244,090 no-par shares of common stock. This compares with $931,264, or $1.90 a share on 233,471 common shares, in first half of 1929.

Net for quarter ended June 30, amounted to $464,626 after above charges, equal to [illegible] cents a share on 244,090 common shares against $523,885 or $1.[illegible] a share on 244,090 shares in preceding quarter and $488,474 or $1.06 a share on 233,471 shares in June quarter of previous year.

New Primer Tells What Investors Should Know

A booklet, which is best described as a "primer for inexperienced investors" is being given distribution by the National Better Business Bureau. It covers elementary points not generally understood by small investors. Features of the booklet include descriptions of ordinary swindling tactics with explanations of how to identify them and avoid their snares.

In preparing the booklet it has been the purpose of the National Better Business Bureau to make available to inexperienced investors some facts that will assist them to distinguish between reputable and shady investment offerings.

FACTS SIMPLY TOLD

Such elementary information as what a corporation is and what a share of stock actually represents is set forth in simple language. It is amazing how many people who make inquiry at the bureau have only the haziest idea on these two points.

Often, the information which small investors have about corporations and their financing has been obtained from high-pressure stock salesmen who have purposely distorted the facts.

Bits of sound advice are worked into the material in words that are intended to drive the messages home. The opening paragraph of one item reads:

"A good test to use on any security is to find out if you can borrow money on it from your bank. If the bank will not loan on the security, find out why. If your bank cannot afford to put its money in it, can you?"

FRAUD IS DISCUSSED

In discussing "Fraud" in another section, the booklet points out that fear of the penalties of law does not deter crooks from carrying on their schemes and says:

"The fact that a notorious stock swindler is today reposing in the penitentiary it little satisfaction to the thousands of inexperienced people whose savings he stole. . . . Inherent fraud is apparent to experienced people in many cases, but the collecting of evidence to prove fraud takes time and a thorough investigation. Meanwhile the swindling proceeds and, even if the offender is later brought into court and convicted, the savings he has stolen are not returned to his victims."

There are more than twenty subjects concisely treated and any inexperienced investor who reads it will have enough practical information to recognize the common practices of unscrupulous salesmen and defend himself against them.

Many savings banks and the personnel department of large industries will undoubtedly be glad to assist in broadening the distribution of the booklet.

Farmer's Dollar at 75 P. C. of Pre-War Buying Power

By Universal Service

Washington, Aug. 2—The purchasing power of the farmer's dollar has slumped to 75 per cent of its pre-war level, the Department of Agriculture announces.

With the recent recession of general commodity prices, the purchasing power of the farmer ordinarily would be increased. But at the same time prices for farm products have slumped even more rapidly, wheat and cotton selling last month below the pre-war level for the first time.

The fall of the farmer's dollar has been steady during the summer, having fallen to its present level from 83.7 per cent of pre-war level in May.

At the same time agricultural experts are looking for a marked improvement in this condition as a result of higher prices that are certain to follow in the path of the present drought—the worst in half a century.

Agricultural experts are unable to estimate the cost of the drought at this time because of the uncertain trend of price levels. On the basis of the value of last year's crops—$8,500,000,000—the cost of the drought might reach as high as $2,000,000,000, it was stated.

On the other hand, with increased prices certain to result, it is possible that farmers in the aggregate may reap just as large a return this year as last, it was pointed out.

Bankers to Redeem Buenos Aires Bonds

Hallgarten & Co. and Kissel, Kinnicutt & Co., fiscal agents for the 6 per cent refunding external sinking fund gold bonds of the Province of Buenos Rires (Argentine Republic), due March 1, 1961, announce that there have been called for redemption on September 1, 1930, out of moneys deposited with the fiscal agents of this loan, $235,000 principal amount of the bonds.

The bonds will be payable at the office of either of the fiscal agents, or in London, Amsterdam or Zurich at the offices of the designated agents on September 1, 1930. Interest will cease to accrue on the bonds on that date.

Furnace Co. Net Well Maintained

Detroit, Aug. 2—Net profit for the Holland Furnace Co. is being well maintained. Company reports for six months ended June 30 net profit of $538,664 after charges and federal taxes, equal, after dividend requirements on the 7 per cent preferred, to $1.13 a share on the 432,196 no-par shares of common, against $540,641, or $1.16 a share on 418,18 shares, in the first half of 1929.

Sales totalled $6,156,872, against $6,225,488.

F. E. Myers to Call 6% Preferred Stock

F. E. Myers & Brothers Company direcotrs have authorized the retirement on September 30 of 5000 shares o fthe 6 per cent preferred stock, according to an announcement from Cleveland.

The stock is to be taken up at $105 a share, on the basis of one-fourth of each stockholder's holdings, it was stated.

Pathe Exercises Purchase Option

New York, Aug. 2 (AP)—Pathe Exchange, Inc., has exercised its option to purchase for $500,000 49 per cent of the stock of the du Pont-Pathe Film Manufacturing Co.

New Anti-Freeze Views Conflict

New York, Aug. 2—Science is determining whether synthetic methanol, used as an anti-freeze, is dangerous to the public, according to Industrial and Engineering Chemistry, journal of the American Chemical Society.

Experts being in disagreement as to whether hazard exists, the Carbide & Carbon Chemicals Corp., Commercial Solvents Corp., and du Pont Ammonia Co. are financing an investigation under the supervision of Dr. R. R. Sayers of the U. S. Public Health Service. Tests are being carried out by Dr W. P. Yant of the Bureau of Mines.

"There is every reason to believe," it is added, "that we shall have available, as a basis for procedure, the results of this investigation before the time comes when automobiles will line up at service stations for the first addition of an anti-freeze to their radiator solutions."

Business Upturn Seen by Simon

New York, Aug. 2—Franklin Simon, president of Franklin Simon & Co., before sailing aboard the Bremen for a vacation in Europe, said he believed that:

"We were now at the beginning of an upturn in business and that a more optimistic frame of mind of the public has given impetus to the upturn. No boom can be expected in the fall, but the recovery will be gradual and will continue for the next six months and by the first of the year business will be again approaching more normal levels."

Vadsco in Red

New York, Aug. 2 (AP)—Vadsco Sales Corp. reported June quarter net loss of $239,288, against a profit of $114,706 in the preceding quarter.

Alexander Resigns

H. F. Alexander will resign as president but remain a director of Pacific Steamship Co.

UTILITY LOANS SWELL OUTPUT OF OFFERINGS

Public utility financing virtually dominated flotations of new bond issues during the current week. The aggregate of all offerings was $118,968,900 and all but approximately $21,000,000 was on behalf of power and light properties.

A week ago utility borrowing also contributed the bulk of the $73,737,000 new flotations. In this week last year total emissions of bonds were $33,187,500.

Only four utility undertakings were represented in the huge aggregate for this division. The major flotation was $50,000,000 General Gas & Electric notes, maturing in five years. An offering of that size for Pacific Gas & Electric and $18,834,500 Ohio Edison 5s completed the principal operations in the group, while a $10,000,000 loan for the Saxon Public Works furnished the single item in the foreign department.

The stability of the investment market in the face of continued heavy new offerings, is a cause for much jubilation among bankers and dealers. Considering the season of the year, not usually favorable for the bond market, the situation holds out much promise as far as the immediate future is concerned.

During the month of July bond prices advanced approximately a point in the face of a large outpouring of new securities. The total of these was in the neighborhood of $735,000,000 or on about the same scale as in June and $820,000,000 in July, 1929. Of the aggregate utility issues accounted for $228,000,000.

Altogether 11 issues were offered this week, divided as follows: Public utility, $97,974,500; railroad, $4,106,000; municipal, $6,888,400, and foreign $10,000,000.

Corn Again Hits Best Price Level

Chicago, Aug. 2—Reports of rain in Iowa, champion corn producing state, turned the corn market downward early today after prices had equaled the recent topmost levels. Subsequent advices said the Iowa moisture was only a slight sprinkle, and that widespread droughth persisted, but profit taking sales on the part recent buyers of corn continued, and new purchasing lacked volume for at least the time being.

Wheat trade paralleled the action of corn. Opening unchanged to ⅜c. higher, corn receded all around to well below yesterday's finish. Wheat started ⅛c. off to ⅜c. up, and subsequently underwent a general drop.

Advice Is Free

Before you buy or sell stock or bonds, you ought to secure unbiased expert advice. Send your investment inquiries with stamp to Frank H. Meloon, Financial Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston. All replies are made by mail direct.

A SPECULATION

B. W., Clinton—In what line of business is Brunswick Terminal engaged? What would be your idea of a purchase of the stock?

Ans.—Brunswick Terminal pays no dividend. To that extent it is a speculation, on which we could not advise. The company is a holding company for real estate in Georgia and is engaged in the development of mining properties. Net for 1929 was $2.40 a share, against $1.50 in 1928 and 29 cents in 1927. When you are ready to buy securities for income, let us hear from you.

DEFER ACTION

J. N., Malden—I have $1000 in a savings bank account. Would you aprove my plan to buy Commonwealth & Southern?

Ans.—No. There is no need to invest $1000. Give no further thought to the purchase of securities until you have $3000. Then, write to us for advice. Commonwealth & Southern is speculative, though it pays 60 cents a share annually. Earnings for 12 months ended June 30, 1930, equaled 69 cents a share.

FOUR PER CENT

C. Y., Boston—I want to thank you for past advice. A friend told me to buy United Gas Improvement. What do you think of it?

Ans.—United Gas Improvement has paid dividends in varying amounts from 1885. An initial quarterly payment of 25 cents a share distributed Dec. 1, 1929, on the present stock, issued in five-for-one split Aug. 27, 1929, was increased to 30 cents March 1 last, since maintained. Net for 1929 was $1.27 a share, contrasted with $1.16 in 1927. In the six months ended June 30 earnings equaled 82 cents a share, compared with 72 cents for similar period of 1929. The company has controlling or large minority interests in several leading Eastern public utilities. At recent levels the yield was slightly under 4 per cent. What amount, if any, may be distributed in extras is anyone's guess. How much cash have you?

CHURCHES

UNION CHURCH

The Rev. George Owen of the Hyde Park Congregational Church will preach to a congregation at Union Church, Columbus ave. and West Newton sts., tomorrow morning. Mr. Owen is announced as one of the leaders in religious education. His wife, Margaret Eggleston, is famed as one of New England's story tellers. In their church a successful vacation Bible school has been conducted for a number of years.

KING'S CHAPEL

In this historic church tomorrow at the 11 o'clock service, the Rev. Prof. Clayton R. Bowen, Th.D., of the Meadville Theological School, will preach. A musical program includes: Organ prelude; choral prelude, "A Rose Breaks Into Bloom"; anthems, "Hail, Holy Light," Kastalsky; "Lord, I Cry Unto Thee," Kalinikoff; recital, "Now Let Every Tongue Adore Thee," Bach; air for the G string, Bach; finale "Symphonic Romance," Widor.

ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL

The morning preacher tomorrow at the Cathedral Church of St. Paul will be one of the younger clergymen of the Greater Boston area, the Rev. Richard G. Preston, rector of Grace church, Newton. Ordained in 1923, he served first as rector of Christ church, Needham, and only this year was installed in his Newton parish.

The sunset porch services on Sunday evenings continue to arouse interest among the people passing by on Tremont st., and will be held tomorrow at 7 p. m., under the leadership of the Rev Dr. Phillips E. Osgood of Minneappolis, Minn. Opening with music by a trumpeter from the Boston Festival orchestra, the service will be carried on by the Cathedral choir of men and women, with familiar hymns in which those attending the service are expected to join heartily.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Love" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow.

The golden text is: "No man hath seen God at any time. If we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and his love is perfected in us" (I John 4:12).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Beloved, let us love one another; for love is of God; and every one that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God. He that loveth not knoweth not God; for God is love" (I John 4: 7, 8).

DUDLEY ST. CHURCH

At the Dudley St. Baptist Church, Roxbury, Rev. Milton G. Perry will preach at both services. He will take for his topic at the morning service, 10:30 a. m., "Christianity in the Balance." The junior chorus of 50 will render "Joy Bells" and Edith Nye Wilson, contralto, will sing "God Shall Wipe Away All Tears" and "Face to Face." The big "Sing" at the 7:30 pleasant Sunday evening service will be led by Ralph Tailby, baritone, who will also render "God Be Merciful to Me" and "Something for Thee." Mr. Perry will take for his topic, "Building a New Community."

SEE THE PREACHER IN ADVANCE

Park St. Church has a unique method for advertising supply ministers during the summer months. A card too large to fit in any pocket is placed in the pews with a request that it should be left where found. On this card are the pictures in clear halftone of each supplying minister with the date upon which he will preach and the city from which he comes. This is proving a very popular method of advertising. This is a picture age.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN

Notable preachers will be heard during August at the First Presbyterian Church, Columbus Ave., and Berkeley st. Tomorrow the Rev. John McComb B. D. of Baltimore will be the preacher both at the 10:30 service and at the 7:30 p. m.

COPLEY METHODIST

The Rev. T. Everett Fairchild, asistant to president Marsh of Boston University will preach tomorrow morning at the Copley Methodist Church. September 14 has been set for the opening of the regular season of 1930-31, and plans are being completed for a banner year.

ARLINGTON ST. CHURCH

The Rev. Thomas H. Billings, minister of the First Church in Salem, will be the preacher at the Arlington St. Unitarian church tomorrow morning. The regular season of this church will begin Sept. 21, when the Rev. Samuel A. Eliot will again be in his pulpit.

Vacation Bible Schools Close

Churches singly and in unison have been conducting Bible schools during the last six weeks. In this picture is to be seen Miss Laura E. Howe, educational director of the Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy, Mass., with several of her pupils in the vacation Bible school which closed yesterday after a successful four weeks' session. On the left is Miss Margaret Parsons and on the right Miss Edna McConagle. Both have found the school interesting and of real value.

Modern Youth in Oldest House

An old house, once known as the Cushing Inn in Hingham has been bought by Mr. and Mrs. Waitstill Sharp, who are now engaged in making it over to suit their needs. The date when this house was built is under dispute, but some sources of information place it at not later than 1690. but no authorities later than 1740. A cottage next to its, supposed to be quarters for slaves of those who built the larger house, is claimed to be the second oldest house now standing here in New England. In it are pegs in the wall, said to have been driven by Indian visitors who hung hammocks, refusing to sleep in white man's beds.

Mr. Sharp is director of religious education for the American Unitarian Association, but he is also an expert mechanic and house painter. He will give the old residence a badly needed coat of white paint.

Eiffel Tower Scene for Catholic Mass

For the first time a mass was recently held in the Eiffel tower, which is 1000 feet in the air. A table enveloped in white and weighted down with a black stone constituted the altar. It was abundantly decorated with roses.

Radio Hour for Catholic Broadcast

The Rev. Carol L. Bernhardt, S. J. of Weston College, will broadcast tomorrow from 1 to 2 over WNAC. He will take for his topic the third article of the creed. The question box will be conducted as usual by the Rev. Michael J. Ahern S. J.

Traffic Problems and St. Stephen's

A wonderful set of carillon bells, second largest in the world, hanging in the belfrey tower of the Episcopal Church, at Cohasset, is proving so attractive to South Shore residents that automobiles roll in to the little town from every point of the compass for the two concerts given each week—Thursdays and Sundays. Every street and all roadways surrounding the town common are lined with enthralled listeners who remain until the last bell has been sounded and its reverberations are carried far through the night air.

Arbella May Again Welcome Churches

If practicable, churches of Boston will combine to carry out a program on the Winthrop ship Arbella to be staged the last Sunday in August. So successful was the effort of last Sunday when the Massachusetts Federation of Churches, and the Greater Boston Federation of Churches united in conducting a service on the Arbella that those in charge are already planning another similar occasion with features unique and of special interest to the public.

Little Flower

The Thursday novena in honor of St. Theresa at St. Stephen's church, the shrine of the "Little Flower" in Boston, will be held Aug 7. The hours of the services are at 12:20 noon and 7:45 p. m. The preacher at the 7:45 p. m. service will be one of the priests of the parish.

NEW FEATURES ON CHEVROLET

Four hundred Chevrolet dealers and salesmen gathered at a breakfast held at the Hotel Statler were told that henceforth all passenger car models will have optional disc or wire wheel equipment at no increase in price.

The sturdy 40-spoke de luxe wire wheels have additional strength, provided by the use of short spokes and a larger hub cap concealing the attaching bolts and generally adding to the massive appearance of the wheel.

At the close of the meeting a parade of the Chevrolet cars, combining the new features, started from the Statler Hotel and paraded through metropolitan Boston and suburbs.

Lambeth Conference Sees Coming Unity

A seventh Lambeth Conference of Bishops in England has been held, with encouraging results according to reports. Archbishop Lang, who opened this conference, declared that there are definite signs of unity among Protestant churches. He is reported in the Churchman as saying, in part:

"Ten years ago (at the sixth Lambeth Conference) we put forth a great ideal," the head of the Church of England told the Conference. "It was not in vain. Our appeal had a wonderful response. It quickened desires already moving the hearts of Christian people in all parts of the world. It brought a new breath of hope and purpose. I venture to say that through its influence, and through the more recent World Conference on Faith and Order, there has been a drawing together of Christian communions, a consciousness of underlying unity of faith, a desire—nay, a constraining spirit—a fellowship unparalleled in the history of Christendom. For all this we thank God and take courage. Some, indeed, are disappointed that so few definite acts of union have as yet been attained. But assuredly those of us who were mainly responsible for the framing and issuing of our appeal never supposed that it would bear fruit in the acts of union within ten years or within one generation. No: not thus easily and speedily can the schisms of centuries be healed. Let patience have her perfect work.

"New difficulties and perplexities—industrial, social, political—beset almost every nation," the Archbishop further pointed out. "The need of a spiritual fellowship is more claimant than ever. The more urgent, therefore, is our duty to press forward the quest of the unity of Christ's church."

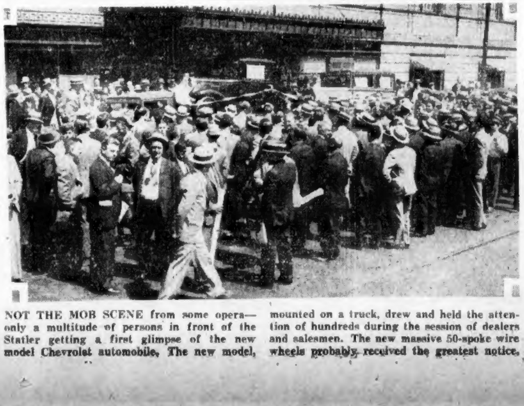
Interest in New 'Chevvy'? And How!



NOT THE MOB SCENE from some opera—only a multitude of persons in front of the Statler getting a first glimpse of the new model Chevrolet automobile. The new model, mounted on a truck, drew and held the attention of hundreds during the session of dealers and salesmen. The new massive 50-spoke wire wheels probably received the greatest notice.

PORT OF BOSTON IN REVIEW

By CARL MORRISON

Some question is being raised in various quarters as to the right of the Boston port authority to investigate the alleged mismanagement of the Army Base Terminal.

Mayor Curley, who ordered the investigation, believes that the authorization by the Massachusetts Legislature is sufficient, even to the extent of inquiring into any Shipping Board activities if such relate in any way to Boston.

Chapter 229 of the Acts of 1929 establishes a commission of five men, serving without salaries. Two are named by the governor and three by the mayor, thus giving all acts of this port authority the characterization of state and city backing.

Section 2 says in part:

"The board shall, from time to time, investigate any and all matters relating to the port of Boston, particularly with reference to the unification of overseas terminals, belt line connections, condition and location of piers and channels, switching, floatage, lighterage, rates, rules, regulations and practices, dockage, wharfage, waterfront labor conditions, grain elevator and warehouse facilities. With the assent and approval of the mayor, the board may initiate or participate in any rate hearings, or any hearings or investigations concerning the port of Boston, before any other body or official."

This sweeping power of the Port Authority is to be used for the first time. This Army Base situation is its first real test. The board is considered immune from any legal action by any groups affected. It is significant that before this investigation started the official approval of Samuel Silverman, the city's corporation counsel, was secured so that a proper course of action will be followed.

MAKES RAPID TIME

The Cunarder Scythia is due in from Liverpool, Queenstown and Galway at the East Boston dock between 3 and 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The steamer, which stopped off at Galway, was not expected until Monday, but put on a little more power.

TODAY'S WHO'S WHO

Bachrach photo
C. W. Card

Charlie is one of the best known men in the harbor, and he has built up an excellent marine business for his firm during his many years on the waterfront.

Card is one of the oldest marine salesmen in the harbor. This resident of Medford, who is a native of Wilton, Me., has been a marine engineer and master mechanic. He has the distinction of having helped build the first Stanley Steamer automobile.

The hobbies of this Propeller Club member include fishing and motoring.

IN THE DAY'S CATCH

Joe Di Blazi of Revere, while on the King Phillip landed a nine-pound skulpin which had swallowed not only the hook and part of the line, but also a big lead sinker weighing nearly a pound. Di Blazi also brought back two pollack, two flounders and two conger eels. The eels were on one line.

In the same fishing party was Jack Fleming of Everett, who caught two star fish which crawled over his hook. Miss Kate Quinn of Dorchester brought back a 16-pound catfish.

Pollock are reported to be running well just now. The first of this kind caught was by Pat Crehan of South Boston, who hooked two of the four pound variety.

The largest cod landed by any King Phillip party this year was by Henry Nutting, Boston & Maine engineer, who came home with one weighing 22 pounds.

BOSTONIANS AFLOAT

Bostonians on the America of the United States line, now en route to Plymouth, Cherbourg and Hamburg, are: Miss Bertha Bailey, Miss Helen Ripley, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Webster, Miss Marion R. Haskell, Miss Alice L. Potter, Mrs. Elizabeth Bullard, Miss Maude Lambert, Miss E. P. Bigelow, Miss Anna Parkhurst, H. B. Bigelow, Mrs. Emma S. Faulke, H. V. Faulke and Mrs. William Almy.

FLOATING GOLF

The eyes of the steamship world are centered on the flagship of the French line, the Ile de France, which goes to sea for the first time with a minature golf course on the sun-deck. This nine hole affair, measuring 40 by 50 feet, is of artificial grass and has small hazards. The large net fence prevents any hole-in-one—in the Atlantic.

SPEED RECORDS

A new speed record from New York to Bermuda has been set by the Munson liner Pan America, travelling in 36 hours and 57 minutes. This bettered a 37-hour record of another Munson ship, the American Legion, and is ahead of the previous foreign ship mark of 39 hours, 20 minutes, held by the S. S. Bermudiana.

The tug Neptune left here for Halifax recently with the Gotham 85, carrying 1,250,000 gallons of gasoline. The load was towed down, unloaded and the return trip made—all covering 53 hours.

VETERANS' OUTING

Next Saturday the spacious Dorothy Bradford of the Provincetown line will carry a large group of veterans for a moonlight sail down the harbor to Nahant, out to the lightship, along the South Shore and back to Boston. The ship has been chartered by the officers of the Disabled Veterans' Hospital Service, Inc.

Dancing and an elaborate entertainment are planned as part of the program for the sail, which starts at 8 o'clock at Long wharf and ends about 10:30 o'clock.

Doubling for Love

thank goodness. Girls have learned that the feminine brain is equal to the very finest variety of male ditto and a lot of them are using that knowledge to advantage.

"Still harping on the career thing, I see. Don't be dumb, Ju. Darn it all, why don't you stop getting yourself up like a comedy old maid? If you wouldn't skin your hair back till it draws wrinkles in your forehead and if you'd ditch the cheaters—give yourself a break. I'll bet—Judy, I'll bet you'd land your man first of any girl on this boat!"

"That's enough." Judy's voice crackled with scorn. "When I 'land my man'—I won't, but if ever I should—it will be a man who doesn't let himself be hypnotized by frothy clothes and a cherub bob."

"Wrong, as usual. Way to a man's heart isn't through his intellect any more than it's through his stomach—not before he's married, at least. It's through his eyes, dear, and I don't mean probably . . . Anyway, let's go for a walk around the deck. They say we're off Maine, which ought to prove something or other."

Judy did not enjoy the walk. Betsy put on a white coat and a little white hat and left her legs bare. She hailed everybody by first names and invited one and all to join a "little shindy" in her cabin later.

Judy got away at last. She lay on her bed and tried to read "Evangeline," which seemed appropriate. But she went to sleep instead.

Peggy awakened her toward evening.

"If it isn't just like you! Go on a vacation and sleep it away. You've simply got to dress tonight!"

But Judy wanted only to get out on deck, feel the wind in her face. She splashed a small flood on the bathroom floor; neglected powder; drew her hair into the hardest, tightest knot she could manage. Rushed to the trunk and felt about for the familiar blue serge.

It was not there. She found a sweater jacket and skirt, marine blue trimmed with jade. And a white crepe de chine suit. And dresses—dozens of them. All frilly and lacy, like Betsy Rowe's. But the serge. . . . She would be lost without it.

"I just hadn't the nerve to tell you sooner, lamb," said Peggy. "I packed your things—the serge and your Oxfords and the tailored blouses—all in one bag. And, would you believe it? That bag is right in the corner of the upstairs hallway this very minute!"

"Oh, you can't mean we forgot it!"

"Something like that. But you'll get along, dear. Plenty of new things. Try the pink chiffon with the velvet coat."

Face gone blank and unhappy, Judy made a ring of rose-colored chiffon, drew the ring down over her head.

CURIOUS CREATURES

LAMPREYS
A SUB-ORDER OF THE FISHES, WHICH HAVE NO JAWS OR RIBS AND HAVE BUT A SINGLE NASAL OPENING — THEY POSSESS A SUCKER-LIKE MOUTH SURROUNDED BY A CIRCULAR LIP, WITH WHICH THEY ATTACH THEMSELVES TO OTHER FISHES — WITH THEIR RASP-LIKE TONGUES THEY CUT AWAY THE LIVING FLESH FOR FOOD — THEY BUILD DITCHES OR FURROWS IN WHICH THEY LAY THEIR EGGS — IF A ROCK IS IN THE WAY IT IS REMOVED WITH THE AID OF THE "VACUUM CUP" MOUTH.

MARY NOLAN IS EXONERATED IN DRUG PROBE

Los Angeles, Aug. 2 (US)—Federal investigation of charges resulting Wednesday in warrants being issued to narcotic agents to search apartments of Mary Nolan, blonde screen star, was officially under way today.

This became known when U. S. Attorney Samuel W. McNabb announced that all persons connected with the case would be summoned to his office, probably some time early next week.

Principally, McNabb said, he wanted to thoroughly quiz Clare Anderson and Caroline Clark, Hollywood nurses, whose sworn affidavits before U. S. Commissioner David B. Head, brought about the warrants.

The warrants were not served and the case brought to a standstill when V. H. Despain, federal narcotic agent, exonerated Miss Nolan of the nurses' assertions that the film actress was addicted to drugs.

McNabb also declared he would thoroughly probe asserted charges that the entire affair was a plot to ruin Miss Nolan's reputation.
